'Mercury Project' Tried

U.S. Tests Space Capsule, But Radio Contact Is Lost

BULLETIN

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) —An attempt to rocket an unmanned Project Mercury space capsule on a severe test was wrecked today, apparently by an explosion in the Atlas booster. The one - ton capsule and the Atlas rocket assembly apparently sank in the Atlantic 4 to 12 miles off Cape Canaveral.

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) —The United States launched an unmanned Project Mercury capsule for a severe test today, but lost radio contact with the Atlas booster 65 seconds after listoff.

The Atlas was to rocket the one-ton capsule 110 miles into space and 1,500 miles downrange to check on its ability to withstand a jarring plunge back through the earth's atmosphere.

The big missile with the Mercury capsule on its nose was launched in a driving wind and rainstorm at 9:13 a.m. and was immediately swallowed in low-hanging clouds.

Twenty minutes later the National Aeronautics and Space Administration announced:

"Preliminary data indicates all radio contact with Mercury-Atlas-1 was lost approximately 65 seconds after launch. Further data analysis is required before more positive test results information can be determined."

An official said that even if the Atlas failed during powered flight there is a chance the capsule may have fallen somewhere in the ocean between the Cape and the intended landing area 300 miles northwest of the West Indies island of Antigua.

The flight was to subject the one-ton capsule to the worst re-entry conditions an astronaut might encounter if his space cabin is suddenly jettisoned because of failure of the booster rocket shortly after launching.

It was an opening shot in a U.S. bid to send a man to the fringes of space by the end of this year and into orbit sometime in 1961.

There was no living thing aboard the capsule today although monkeys have ridden in two earlier Mercury test units.

The giant Atlas thundered from its pad at 9:13 a.m. EST. Its mission was to push its capsule to an altitude of 110 miles and release it at a speed of 13,000 miles a hour.

If all goes well, the space chamber will streak back to earth, slamming through the so-called "heat barrier" of the atmosphere with the force of a truck ramming a brick wall.

Expansion Considered

Parts Service Firm Buys Bradshaw Ave. Property

Purchase of the S. & S. Motor Sales building as the new home of the Parts Service Co. was announced today by Paul Craven, owner of the downtown automotive service firm. The transaction involves over $55,000.

Craven said Parts Service will move from its present location at 312 W. 4th St. to the one-story brick building of S. & S. at Bradshaw Ave. and Ravine St. about Sept. 1.

Craven also acquired two adjoining lots at S. & S. from the Winland estate and will use them for parking for his business and for possible future expansion.

This will provide the business with a 240-foot frontage on Bradshaw between Ravine and Fawcett St.

Craven said increasing business necessitated larger quarters. The firm now employes 21, including 4 in the machine shop. The firm wholesales automotive parts and provides machine shop service for industrial and truck engines. Employment would be increased in the new quarters when the business expands.

Craven opened Parts Service five years ago in the McNutt property on Market St., moving to the W. 4th St. location four years ago. He has had 27 years in the business and spent 10 years each with the Keys Co. and as manager of the Genuine Parts Co. before launching his firm.

S. & S. also has been operating an East End business since June in a brick building on Elizabeth St., purchased last January. Edison Smith, co-owner, said the Bradshaw business will be combined with the East End outlet and another building or addition will be erected on the Elizabeth St. lot. The firm now is obtaining prices for the new structure.

The Bradshaw property housed various auto agencies before S. & S. acquired it. S. & S. will concentrate its business as a tire distributor and used car sales at the East End site. S. & S. recently handled the Renault foreign car but relinquished the franchise. The Bradshaw building was owned by Smith and George Steele.

W. B. Douglas, owner of the building that Parts Service is leaving said the John Robertson Co. of Alliance will use it as a new outlet for its expanding wholesale plumbing supplies business.

Robertson has branches in Akron, Youngstown, Canton, Steubenville and Zanesville. The outlet here will be a "twig," another of which is operated at Rochester, Douglas said.

Group To File Petition Soon For Tax Move

A citizens' group seeking a third vote on a proposed municipal income tax at the Nov. 8 general election was scheduled to make a last-minute drive for signatures before filing petitions today with City Auditor Lawrence C. Applegate.

The filing may be delayed until Saturday, but if it is, a question might be raised over the 10-day period the auditor is required to hold the petitions for public inspection before making a certification to the County Election Board. At least 870 valid signatures are required.

The deadline for the auditor to certify to the Election Board—if he finds a ballot place is warranted—is Aug. 10 at 4 p. m. But the law says he must hold the petitions "10 full days" for public inspection before making the certification.

At the same time, the auditor is required to determine if the petitions carry enough valid signatures to warrant a ballot place.

The movement to seek the vote was started July 21 by a 20-man citizens group headed by Thomas Doland, Orchard Grove Ave. insurance agent. It seeks a ballot place for an initiative ordinance that would levy a tax of 80 cents per $100 on earnings, business profits and other income. Twenty petitions have been in circulation, but some of the proponents said

Nixon Set For Campaign After Convention Pledge

GOP Choice Gets Things Under Way

Addresses National Committee And Then Holds Press Parley

CHICAGO (AP)—Vice President Richard M. Nixon left the triumph of convention hurrahs behind him today to plunge into a back-breaking presidential campaign he views as a turning point in history.

To the roaring acclaim of the expiring GOP convention, Nixon Thursday night accepted in what he called "the greatest moment of my life" the Republican presidential nomination.

He pledged, if elected, to "build a better America" that "will not tolerate being pushed about by anybody, any place."

He welcomed aboard his "free world victory" ticket as a vice-presidential running mate towering Henry Cabot Lodge, United Nations ambassador and symbol of American resistance to Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's challenge to the free world.

With his credo for the campaign laid down in a 50-minute acceptance address before a wildly cheering convention, the Republican presidential nominee plunged immediately into the practical business of shoring up Republican unity and pepping up the party workers.

He arranged to address the newly constituted GOP National Committee where his support was more solid than perhaps any other Republican candidate had been able to command in this century.

This over, Nixon planned to meet the press for the first time as the party nominee.

The vice president reserved the afternoon for meetings with party leaders. He had to postpone many of these earlier in the week in a combined effort with his back-patting new ally, Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York, for the kind of liberalized platform the two men wanted and got.

Not all of the state-by-state reports to Nixon and his associates carried good news for the drive he launched against Sen. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts, the Democratic presidential nominee.

Midwestern leaders, many of them disappointed because a man from their section was not chosen to run for vice president, were said to have been more pessimistic about GOP chances in November than those from some other sections.

Southern delegates got over their first flush of anger at the adoption of a stronger civil rights plank than they liked. They reported some revived optimism about Nixon's chances of carrying some Southern states.

In New England, the optimism was tempered by Nixon's own estimate that Kennedy is stronger than he.

As for the Pacific Coast, Nixon will carry on there next week—after a weekend meeting here with farm organization leaders—the campaign that he said began with his acceptance speech.

More Thunderstorms Forecast For District

Another thunderstorm rattled the East Liverpool area Thursday night — the third this week — and more of the heavy showers are forecast, along with sticky heat and humidity.

Dam 8 at Newell said there were two storms last night, one at 7:10 and the other at 8:35, totaling 0.22 inch of rain. This raised the week's total to 1.59 inches.

Last night's turbulence was accompanied by heavy lightning but with much lighter winds than on Tuesday. Wellsville got little of the storm last night, which seemed to be centered in the northwest.

The wind and rain eased the temperature temporarily and the dam recorded a high of 86 yesterday afternoon and an overnight low of 68 — at midnight. Today's high range will be 84 to 90 and a low of 62 to 68 is expected.

Contracts Let For Midland Sewage Plant

Project Will Cost $407,000; Bond Bids To Be Asked

Midland Council awarded contracts amounting to nearly $407,000 Thursday night for construction of the borough's new sewage treatment plant.

It also adopted a resolution to sell $485,000 of bonds to finance the project. The amount is $140,000 under the $625,000 general bond issue which Midland voters approved April 26 for the project.

Contracts for low bids aggregating $406,998 were awarded for general construction, plumbing and heating and electrical work. The amount of $78,002 was earmarked for engineering service costs and legal expenses.

Solicitor Robert LeMasters was authorized by Council to begin advertising for bids for sale of the $485,000 bonds to be opened Sept. 8.

Council received 13 bids on the project last week and they were referred to Chester Engineers of Pittsburgh for study and recommendation. The bids awarded last night were the lowest submitted.

The contract for $357,907 for general construction was given to the Christopher Construction Co. of Columbus. Six other bids were considered.

Council awarded a $6,666 contract for plumbing and another for $24,777 for heating to McCarl's Plumbing & Heating Co. of Beaver Falls. The firm submitted the only bids for these phases.

The contract for electrical work was awarded the Thunderbird Electrical Co. of Monaca for $17,648. The Monaca firm was one of four bidders.

The difference of $78,002 is earmarked for engineering costs, legal expenses, laying a water line to connect with the plant's line at west borough limits and other work, officials said.

R. E. Steebner, borough engineer, will be in charge of the project, which will be constructed in the west end on 4½ acres donated by the Crucible Steel Co. several years ago.

The facility will be a primary treatment plant, designed to meet the state's present requirements for a borough.

Council set the next meeting Aug. 11.

Adenauer In France

PARIS (AP)—Chancellor Konhad Adenauer arrived today for weekend talks with President Charles de Gaulle on West European cooperation and the likelihood of new Soviet moves during the months of political campaigning and change in the United States.

Nixon Sets Tone Of Drive

World Problems Are Emphasized

CHICAGO (AP) — Richard M. Nixon, accepting the Republican nomination for president, called for "victory of freedom over tyranny, of plenty over hunger, of health over disease in every country of the world."

This is the answer to communism, he said.

Speaking from notes for 50 minutes Thursday night, Vice President Nixon thus may have set the tone for his campaign against Democratic nominee John F. Kennedy—"a campaign such as this country has never seen before," he called it.

In the speech to the final session of the 1960 Republican National Convention, he repeatedly attacked the domestic promises of the Democratic party and stressed the critical importance of international problems.

"Upon the next president of the United States will rest the responsibility to inspire and to lead the forces of freedom toward this goal" of winning the war against world poverty, misery and disease, Nixon said.

"It would be difficult for any man to say that he was qualified to provide this kind of leadership," Nixon continued, but he quickly implied that he was best fitted.

"I can only say to you tonight that I believe in the American dream because I have seen it come true in my own life," he said.

"I know something of the threat which confronts us and I know something of the effort which will be needed to meet it."

The speech was studded with digs at the Democratic platform and Sen. Kennedy's choice of a running mate, Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson.

Nixon applauded the delegates for their nomination of U.N. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge for vice president.

"In refreshing contrast to what happened in Los Angeles you nominated a man who shares my views on the great issues and who will work with me and not against me in carrying out our magnificent platform," Nixon said.

Nixon described the Democratic party platform as "the same old proposition that a political party should be all things to all men, and nothing more than that."

"They promised everything to everybody with one exception: they didn't promise to pay the bill," Nixon said.

"I happen to believe," Nixon continued, "that their program would be disastrous for America, it would wreck our economy, it

Ohio GOP Forgives Lodge For 1952 Anti-Taft Moves

CHICAGO (AP)—The Republican convention is over and so is the long feud between Ohio Republicans and Henry Cabot Lodge.

Followers of the late Sen. Robert A. Taft, the nation's "Mr. Republican" until his death in 1953, have had their political knives whetted for Lodge ever since 1952—when he helped Gen. Dwight Eisenhower grab the Republican presidential nomination away from Taft.

Thursday night, Ohio Republicans voted unanimously to nominate Lodge for the No. 2 spot on the 1960 GOP national ticket with with Richard M. Nixon. Former Ohio Sen. John W. Bricker seconded the Lodge nomination.

The fact that Buckeye State followers of the late Cincinnati senator cast all their 56 convention votes for Lodge does not mean they have forgotten. They merely have forgiven.

Several erstwhile Taft men discussed the pro-Lodge maneuver with The Associated Press confidentally.

One threw up his hands in resignation and commented, realistically, "You can't win 'em all!"

Another remarked: "I don't object to eating crow, if necessary, on occasion, but I like to have it clearly labeled 'crow.' "

He obviously referred to a sugar coating some of Ohio's Republican leaders put on Nixon's choice of Lodge as a running mate. The Ohio decision to support Lodge came during an hour-long, closed-door session of the Ohio delegation

Fire Destroys Frame House And Contents

Henry Ave. Blaze May Have Been Set By Bolt Of Lightning

A vacationing Henry Ave. family was called home early this morning after a fire, which may have started from a bolt of lightning, destroyed their frame house.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Simpson and son Charles, 16, had been spending the week at Guilford Lake.

They were awakened early this morning by a phone call from friends that their five - room home on Henry Ave. near the city limits was ablaze.

They returned to find all of their possessions destroyed except for the items they had with them.

Simpson still was too stunned today to estimate the loss. It is partially insured, he added.

City firemen were called at 5:45 a.m. but the fire had gained considerable headway when they arrived.

Firemen said the cause of the blaze still is undetermined.

Simpson said he believes a lightning bolt may have struck the home in last night's storm but the smoldering fire did not break into the open until early this morning.

Hobart Ring, a neighbor, discovered the blaze, seeing the pinkish glow through the early morning fog. Ring told Simpson he heard something like an explosion.

Pointing out that all appliances were disconnected except the refrigerator, the blast may have been the television tube exploding, Simpson said.

The family is staying temporarily with relatives, Mr. and Mrs. Dorhman F. Treadway, 347 Grant St.

Firemen answered two other alarms last night.

They were called to stand by at State and Beleek Sts. at 8:31 p.m. after another short circuit in electrical wires. They remained until utility crews arrived.

They were called to the home of Robert Kittridge, 707 Northside Ave., at 8:40 p. m. when wiring in a stove shorted out.

Reds May Not Permit Powers U.S. Lawyers

MOSCOW (AP)—Sources today said U2 pilot Francis Gary Powers will not be allowed American lawyers when he goes on trial for espionage.

The trial opens Aug. 17 before a military made up of a judge advocate and two "assessors." Informed sources said the tribunal will be of the "first instance," meaning Powers probably can appeal any sentence to a higher court. Death is the maximum penalty for espionage.

The fact that Buckeye State followers of the late Cincinnati senator cast all their 56 convention votes for Lodge does not mean they have forgotten. They merely have forgiven.

Several erstwhile Taft men discussed the pro-Lodge maneuver with The Associated Press confidentally.

One threw up his hands in resignation and commented, realistically, "You can't win 'em all!"

Another remarked: "I don't object to eating crow, if necessary, on occasion, but I like to have it clearly labeled 'crow.' "

He obviously referred to a sugar coating some of Ohio's Republican leaders put on Nixon's choice of Lodge as a running mate. The Ohio decision to support Lodge came during an hour-long, closed-door session of the Ohio delegation

Fire Destroys Frame House And Contents

Henry Ave. Blaze May Have Been Set By Bolt Of Lightning

A vacationing Henry Ave. family was called home early this morning after a fire, which may have started from a bolt of lightning, destroyed their frame house.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Simpson and son Charles, 16, had been spending the week at Guilford Lake.

They were awakened early this morning by a phone call from friends that their five - room home on Henry Ave. near the city limits was ablaze.

They returned to find all of their possessions destroyed except for the items they had with them.

Simpson still was too stunned today to estimate the loss. It is partially insured, he added.

City firemen were called at 5:45 a.m. but the fire had gained considerable headway when they arrived.

Firemen said the cause of the blaze still is undetermined.

Simpson said he believes a lightning bolt may have struck the home in last night's storm but the smoldering fire did not break into the open until early this morning.

Hobart Ring, a neighbor, discovered the blaze, seeing the pinkish glow through the early morning fog. Ring told Simpson he heard something like an explosion.

Pointing out that all appliances were disconnected except the refrigerator, the blast may have been the television tube exploding, Simpson said.

The family is staying temporarily with relatives, Mr. and Mrs. Dorhman F. Treadway, 347 Grant St.

Firemen answered two other alarms last night.

They were called to stand by at State and Beleek Sts. at 8:31 p.m. after another short circuit in electrical wires. They remained until utility crews arrived.

They were called to the home of Robert Kittridge, 707 Northside Ave., at 8:40 p. m. when wiring in a stove shorted out.

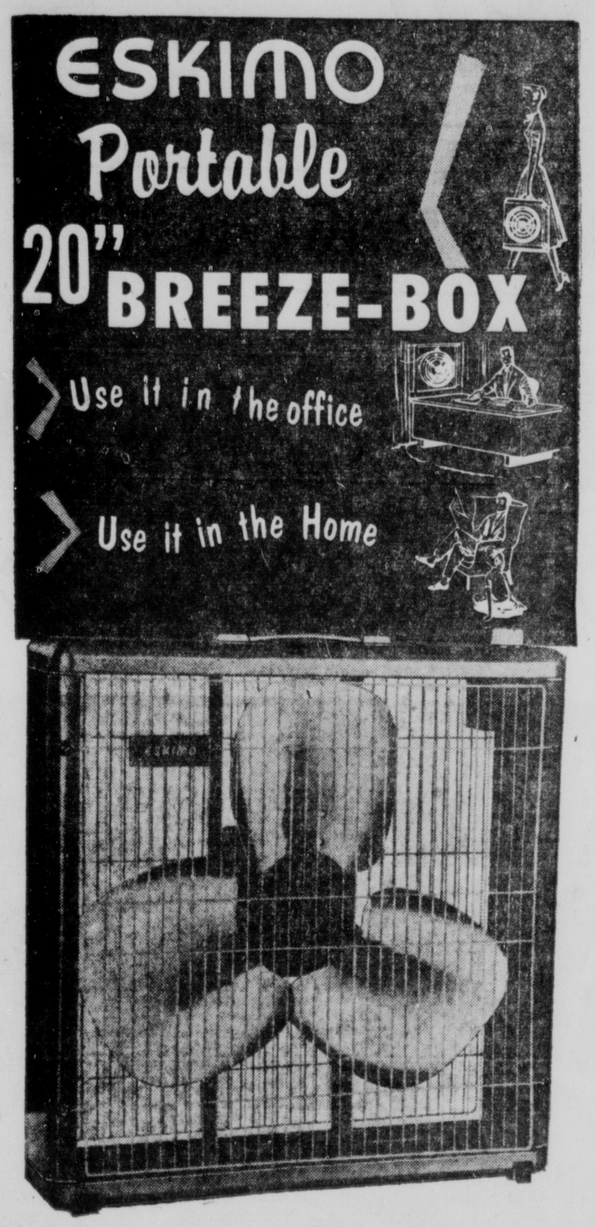

Reds May Not Permit Powers U.S. Lawyers

MOSCOW (AP)—Sources today said U2 pilot Francis Gary Powers will not be allowed American lawyers when he goes on trial for espionage.

The trial opens Aug. 17 before a military made up of a judge advocate and two "assessors." Informed sources said the tribunal will be of the "first instance," meaning Powers probably can appeal any sentence to a higher court. Death is the maximum penalty for espionage.

Nixon Begins Work On Plan For Campaign

CHICAGO (AP) — Richard M. Nixon turns to the mundane details of his campaign dates and strategy today after his hour of triumph at the Republican National Convention.

The GOP presidential nominee arranged to meet with the Republican National Committee this morning and then scheduled a news conference.

At the two sessions he planned to name some of the key figures in his campaign organization and also make public the full list of stops on his first campaign tour next week.

There was no doubt Nixon wanted Sen. Thruston B. Morton of Kentucky re-elected national chairman at the committee session.

As for the first week of campaigning, many of the dates already had leaked.

But it was certain the schedule would be a full one, bearing out the vice president's assertion to the roaring convention Thursday night that "this campaign begins tonight, here and now."

An Hawaiian GOP official disclosed that Nixon would be in Honolulu next Wednesday, giving him almost a full month's jump on his Democratic rival, Sen. John F. Kennedy. The Massachusetts senator had announced he would open his campaign in the 50th state about Sept. 1.

Nixon pledged to the convention he would carry his fight into every one of the 50 states before decision day, Nov. 8.

It was learned his plans now are to leave Chicago Tuesday and fly to Reno, Nev., native state of his wife, Pat, and then go on to Southern California where he was born.

His Hawaian swing is to take two days. En route back to Washington for the opening of the Senate session Aug. 8, he plans a stop at Seattle, Wash.

Nixon staged a party at his hotel Thursday night for Lodge, some of his close friends and associates and members of his staff. It was the first victory celebration which the hard-working Nixon organization allowed itself.

The vice president left his hotel briefly after midnight to drive to another party given by the California delegation.

Highway Aide Named

about nine hours after Nixon announced his decision.

"Mr. Republican's" own son, Robert Taft Jr., apparently capped the no-holds-barred Ohio caucus by espousing Lodge and telling his fellow delegates that his father always held Lodge in high regard. Taft is a member of the Ohio House of Representatives and the GOP platform committee.

Some Taft men, however, found it hard to forgive, let alone forget. They remarked pointedly that Lodge busied himself so much with the 1952 Eisenhower campaign that he lost his seat as senator from Massachusetts to the present Democratic presidential nominee, John F. Kennedy.

Both former Sen. Bricker, the delegation chairman, and Ohio GOP chairman Ray C. Bliss were in the select group of 30 leaders who conferred early Thursday with Nixon on the vice presidential selection.

It was Bliss' chore, as head of the Midwest and Rocky Mountain Republican group, to explain to a number of state chairmen at a breakfast session how Nixon's decision was reached.

He said he later explained also to the Ohio delegation that the group of 30 discussed possibilities for 90 minutes before the choice was narrowed to Lodge and national Republican chairman Thurston B. Morton, senator from Kentucky. It was then, Bliss related, that Nixon chose Lodge because of his intimate knowledge of foreign affairs.

Since his defeat by Kennedy, Lodge has served the Eisenhower Administration as a foreign affairs expert and U.N. ambassador.

In his often-applauded acceptance speech, Nixon called for what he labeled "a strategy of victory for the free world." This was his answer to the "new frontier" slogan laid down by Kennedy in his acceptance speech in Los Angeles two weeks ago.

The vice president said that Americans have always been able to understand the menace presented by missiles, airplanes and bombs. But he said they have been remiss in gauging the power of propaganda infiltrating the new nations reaching for freedom.

"I say tonight," he said with his chin drawn down in a firm line, "that we Americans shall rise to our greatest heights in this decade of the Sixties as we mount the offensive to meet those forces which threaten the peace and the rights of free men everywhere."

In an obvious shaft at Kennedy, he said he was not calling on Americans for "the grim sacrifice of desperation, but the rewarding choice which lifts us out of the humdrum life in which we live and gives us the supreme satisfaction which comes from working together in a cause greater than ourselves, greater than our nation, as great as the world itself."

Wellsville Police To File Ordinance

Petitions seeking a vote at the Nov. 8 general election on an initiative ordinance to reduce the work week of Wellsville policemen to 40 hours will be filed Saturday.

Police indicated the petitions will be turned over to City Auditor Edgar S. Davidson tomorrow, which apparently is the deadline for filing.

When the petitions are filed, Davidson is required to hold them for 10 days for public inspection, and also determine whether they have sufficient valid signatures for a ballot place.

Meanwhile, a committee sponsoring a referendum at the Nov. 8 election on parking meters still is considering its future course after Davidson ruled their petitions were lacking 16 valid signatures for a ballot place.

Reports indicate the group may seek a court order to compel the auditor to certify the validity of the petitions.

Cycling Boy Injured In Collision With Auto

A New Cumberland area boy was injured when struck by the auto of a Pennsylvania motorist while cycling on Gas Valley Rd. near Pughtown Thursday afternoon.

George Edward Smith, 12, is in "satisfactory" condition today at Weirton General Hospital with arm and shoulder injuries.

Hancock County sheriff's deputies said the driver, Joseph Rebrovich, 68, of Marianna, Pa., posted bond before Squire John D. Herron of New Cumberland for a hearing Aug. 8 on hazardous driving.

Deputies said they were unable to question the youngster and are continuing an investigation. The mishap occurred at 12:30 yesterday afternoon on the road leading off Route 2 to the County Children's Home.

Deaths and Funerals

Georgetown Widow Dies

Mrs. Janie Loy Swearingen of Georgetown R. D. 1, widow of Ira Swearingen, died Thursday night at 9:30 at the home of her sister, Mrs. Edna Govey, 206 Church St., Chester, after a brief illness. She was 69.

She was born in Marshall County, W. Va., Sept. 9, 1890, and was a member of the Bethel Methodist Church at Georgetown.

Besides her sister, she is survived by three daughters, Miss Cora Mae Swearingen and Miss Anna Belle Swearingen, both at home, and Mrs. Florence Janose of Ellwood City, and three brothers, Asa Loy of Steubenville, Dewey Loy of Wellsville and Arley Loy of Gates Mills.

Services will be held Sunday afternoon at 2:30 at the Welch Funeral Home in Hookstown by the Rev. H. H. Bish, pastor, assisted by Mrs. C. V. Hairhoger of Darlington, a former pastor. Burial will be in the Bethel Church Cemetery.

Friends may call after 7 tonight at the funeral home and Saturday from 2 to 4 and 7 to 10 p. m.

State Patrol Reaches Full Strength With 775

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Highway Patrol's full authorized strength of 775 men was reached today for the first time in several years.

Graduation of 36 students at the Ohio State Fairgrounds boosted the patrol to its full quota.

Col. Scott B. Radcliffe, patrol superintendent, said he hopes the next Legislature will authorize an increase in personnel, calling attention to the increase in traffic on present highways and the many miles of freeways and interstate highways opening annually.

2 Girls, Boy Confined

Canadian Mother Hides 3 Youngsters For 11 Years

TECUMSEH, Ont. (AP) — A mother told police she kept three of her six children hidden indoors for 11 years to keep landlords and friends from learning she had such a large family.

Police said the teen-age children, two girls and a boy, are retarded in growth. Hospital officials who treated them after their case was discovered Thursday night said they are "certainly in bad shape."

Authorities identified the youngsters as the children of Shirley Leach by a previous marriage. The boy, Gordon Dickerson, 15, stands only 3 feet 11 inches. His sister, Connie, 16, is also undersize, and the younger sister, Glenda, 13, appears unable to walk or talk properly.

They were allowed the freedom of their two-story frame house that they shared with 15 cats. They slept in a single bed. They had a playroom with toys, a TV set and were well-clothed. An older sister, now married and away from home, taught them reading, spelling and arithmetic.

The three other children, Donna, 22; Carrol, 20; and Donna Veronica, 12, all led normal lives with outside contact, but never disclosed the family secret.

Police said the mother and her husband appeared relieved when the case was discovered. The mother said she had been bothered about the situation for some time but did not know what to do about it.

It began when the mother moved with her second husband from Detroit to neighboring Windsor, Ont., in 1949. Because it was difficult to find housing for a large family she told a landlord she had only three children. The other three she kept hidden.

A year later the family moved to Tecumseh, about 25 miles from Windsor, and again claimed to have only three children.

Then, in 1953, the family bought a home. Although there now was no need to continue the subterfuge, police quoted Mrs. Leach, 38, as saying she was too embarrassed to tell her friends about the other three children. She also felt other children might make fun of them.

All six children were born to the mother during her previous marriage.

Police were called in when Gordon wandered away and went to a neighbor's home. The neighbor, Forest Richards, never having seen the boy before in the small town, called police.

Cleaning Firm Worker Hurt

An employe of the Richard Dry Cleaners at Wellsville received abrasions of the second and third fingers of the right hand while at work Thursday morning.

Howard Freeman, 38, of McCoy Ave. caught his hand in a machinery belt. He was treated at City Hospital.

Six other emergency cases were treated at the hospital yesterday.

Ronald Hildebrand, 16, of 717 E. 4th St. suffered first degree burns on the right ribs and back, from heat linament.

Charles P. Beaver, 19, of 1911 Lisbon St. was treated about 5:30 p. m. for a laceration of the index finger of the left hand, received on broken glass.

Brent Marker, 5, son of Edward Marker, 946 Morton St., received lacerations of the right thigh when he fell while playing in the woods.

William Link, 41, of 31-C Midland Heights lacerated his thumb while hammering at home.

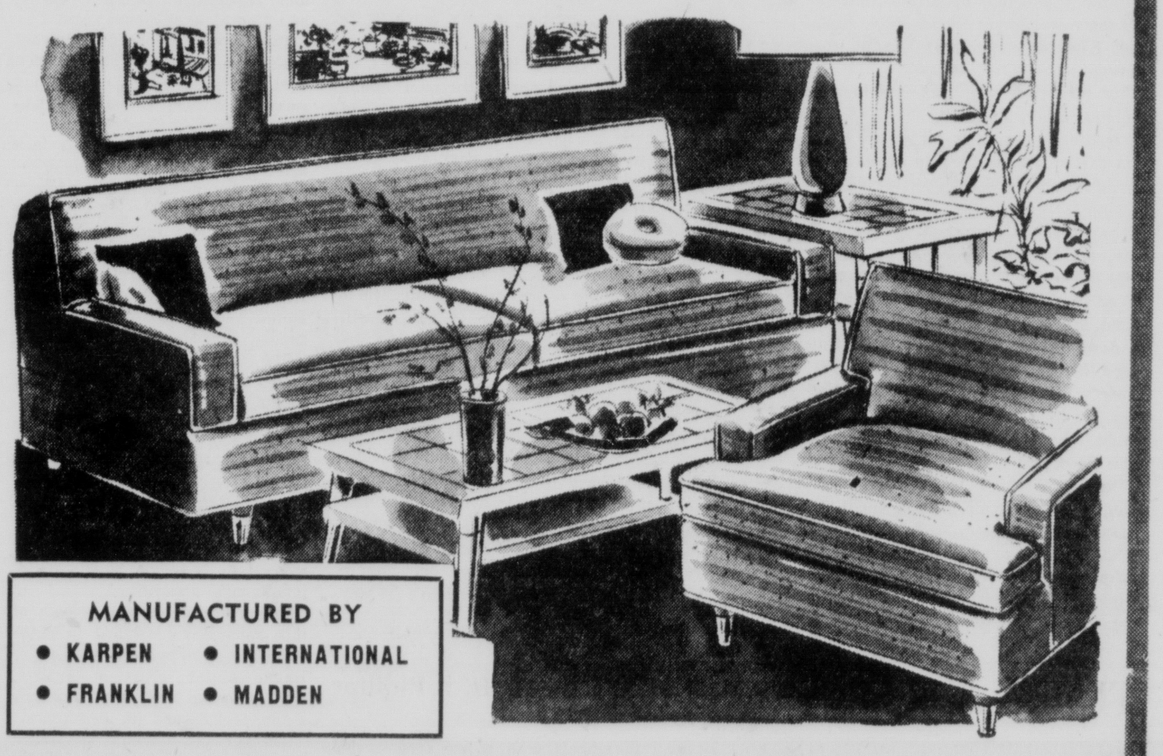

Carl Stone of Chillicothe cut the middle finger of the left hand on a window glass.

Some Taft men, however, found it hard to forgive, let alone forget. They remarked pointedly that Lodge busied himself so much with the 1952 Eisenhower campaign that he lost his seat as senator from Massachusetts to the present Democratic presidential nominee, John F. Kennedy.

Both former Sen. Bricker, the delegation chairman, and Ohio GOP chairman Ray C. Bliss were in the select group of 30 leaders who conferred early Thursday with Nixon on the vice presidential selection.

It was Bliss' chore, as head of the Midwest and Rocky Mountain Republican group, to explain to a number of state chairmen at a breakfast session how Nixon's decision was reached.

He said he later explained also to the Ohio delegation that the group of 30 discussed possibilities for 90 minutes before the choice was narrowed to Lodge and national Republican chairman Thurston B. Morton, senator from Kentucky. It was then, Bliss related, that Nixon chose Lodge because of his intimate knowledge of foreign affairs.

Since his defeat by Kennedy, Lodge has served the Eisenhower Administration as a foreign affairs expert and U.N. ambassador.

In his often-applauded acceptance speech, Nixon called for what he labeled "a strategy of victory for the free world." This was his answer to the "new frontier" slogan laid down by Kennedy in his acceptance speech in Los Angeles two weeks ago.

The vice president said that Americans have always been able to understand the menace presented by missiles, airplanes and bombs. But he said they have been remiss in gauging the power of propaganda infiltrating the new nations reaching for freedom.

"I say tonight," he said with his chin drawn down in a firm line, "that we Americans shall rise to our greatest heights in this decade of the Sixties as we mount the offensive to meet those forces which threaten the peace and the rights of free men everywhere."

In an obvious shaft at Kennedy, he said he was not calling on Americans for "the grim sacrifice of desperation, but the rewarding choice which lifts us out of the humdrum life in which we live and gives us the supreme satisfaction which comes from working together in a cause greater than ourselves, greater than our nation, as great as the world itself."

Wellsville Police To File Ordinance

Petitions seeking a vote at the Nov. 8 general election on an initiative ordinance to reduce the work week of Wellsville policemen to 40 hours will be filed Saturday.

Police indicated the petitions will be turned over to City Auditor Edgar S. Davidson tomorrow, which apparently is the deadline for filing.

When the petitions are filed, Davidson is required to hold them for 10 days for public inspection, and also determine whether they have sufficient valid signatures for a ballot place.

Meanwhile, a committee sponsoring a referendum at the Nov. 8 election on parking meters still is considering its future course after Davidson ruled their petitions were lacking 16 valid signatures for a ballot place.

Reports indicate the group may seek a court order to compel the auditor to certify the validity of the petitions.

The committee of William Fogo, Charles Donaldson and John Albaneso met with Davidson yesterday to go over the names he ruled invalid.

Cycling Boy Injured In Collision With Auto

A New Cumberland area boy was injured when struck by the auto of a Pennsylvania motorist while cycling on Gas Valley Rd. near Pughtown Thursday afternoon.

George Edward Smith, 12, is in "satisfactory" condition today at Weirton General Hospital with arm and shoulder injuries.

Hancock County sheriff's deputies said the driver, Joseph Rebrovich, 68, of Marianna, Pa., posted bond before Squire John D. Herron of New Cumberland for a hearing Aug. 8 on hazardous driving.

Deputies said they were unable to question the youngster and are continuing an investigation. The mishap occurred at 12:30 yesterday afternoon on the road leading off Route 2 to the County Children's Home.

State Patrol Reaches Full Strength With 775

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Highway Patrol's full authorized strength of 775 men was reached today for the first time in several years.

Graduation of 36 students at the Ohio State Fairgrounds boosted the patrol to its full quota.

Col. Scott B. Radcliffe, patrol superintendent, said he hopes the next Legislature will authorize an increase in personnel, calling attention to the increase in traffic on present highways and the many miles of freeways and interstate highways opening annually.

2 Girls, Boy Confined

Canadian Mother Hides 3 Youngsters For 11 Years

TECUMSEH, Ont. (AP) — A mother told police she kept three of her six children hidden indoors for 11 years to keep landlords and friends from learning she had such a large family.

Police said the teen-age children, two girls and a boy, are retarded in growth. Hospital officials who treated them after their case was discovered Thursday night said they are "certainly in bad shape."

Authorities identified the youngsters as the children of Shirley Leach by a previous marriage. The boy, Gordon Dickerson, 15, stands only 3 feet 11 inches. His sister, Connie, 16, is also undersize, and the younger sister, Glenda, 13, appears unable to walk or talk properly.

They were allowed the freedom of their two-story frame house that they shared with 15 cats. They slept in a single bed. They had a playroom with toys, a TV set and were well-clothed. An older sister, now married and away from home, taught them reading, spelling and arithmetic.

The three other children, Donna, 22; Carrol, 20; and Donna Veronica, 12, all led normal lives with outside contact, but never disclosed the family secret.

Police said the mother and her husband appeared relieved when the case was discovered. The mother said she had been bothered about the situation for some time but did not know what to do about it.

It began when the mother moved with her second husband from Detroit to neighboring Windsor, Ont., in 1949. Because it was difficult to find housing for a large family she told a landlord she had only three children. The other three she kept hidden.

A year later the family moved to Tecumseh, about 25 miles from Windsor, and again claimed to have only three children.

Then, in 1953, the family bought a home. Although there now was no need to continue the subterfuge, police quoted Mrs. Leach, 38, as saying she was too embarrassed to tell her friends about the other three children. She also felt other children might make fun of them.

All six children were born to the mother during her previous marriage.

Police were called in when Gordon wandered away and went to a neighbor's home. The neighbor, Forest Richards, never having seen the boy before in the small town, called police.

Cleaning Firm Worker Hurt

An employe of the Richard Dry Cleaners at Wellsville received abrasions of the second and third fingers of the right hand while at work Thursday morning.

Howard Freeman, 38, of McCoy Ave. caught his hand in a machinery belt. He was treated at City Hospital.

Six other emergency cases were treated at the hospital yesterday.

Ronald Hildebrand, 16, of 717 E. 4th St. suffered first degree burns on the right ribs and back, from heat linament.

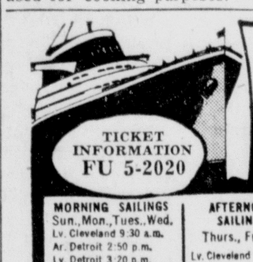

Charles P. Beaver, 19, of 1911 Lisbon St. was treated about 5:30 p. m. for a laceration of the index finger of the left hand, received on broken glass.

Brent Marker, 5, son of Edward Marker, 946 Morton St., received lacerations of the right thigh when he fell while playing in the woods.

William Link, 41, of 31-C Midland Heights lacerated his thumb while hammering at home.

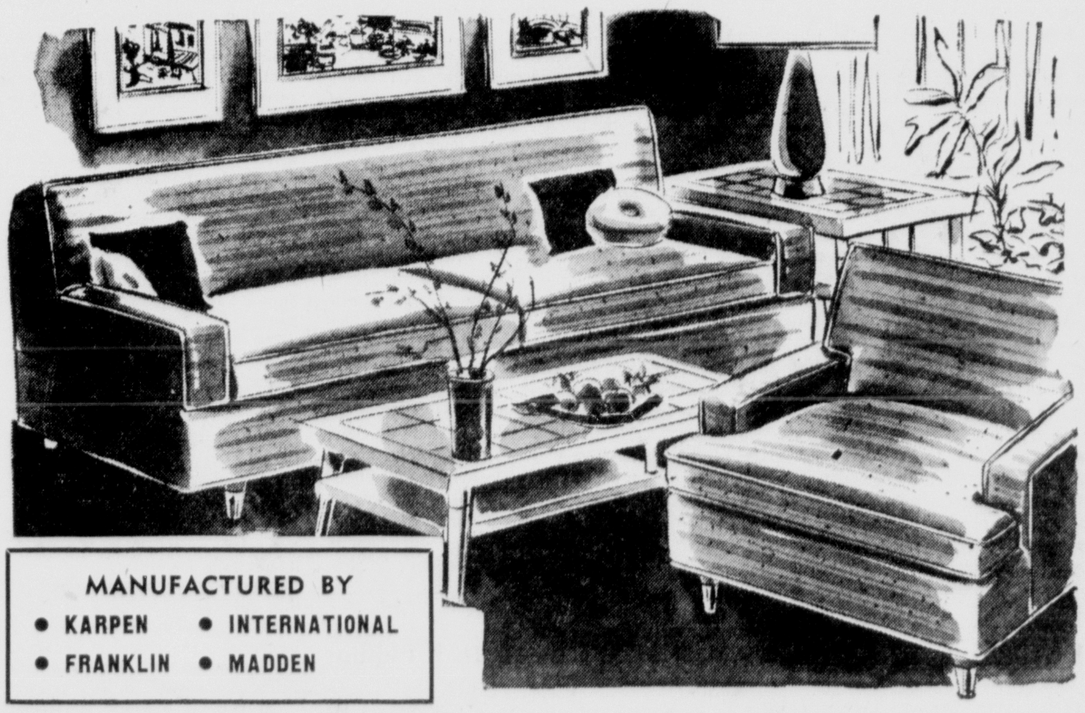

Carl Stone of Chillicothe cut the middle finger of the left hand on a window glass.

There Was Nobody But Nixon

The next President of the United States will be a political scientist.

Long before it was obvious to the Democrats in Los Angeles that their party's presidential nominee had to be John F. Kennedy, because he had earned the nomination by his skill and energy, it was obvious to Republicans that Richard M. Nixon had earned their party's nomination the same way.

Nelson A. Rockefeller was reluctant to concede this, but even he finally bowed to the inevitable, because he, like Kennedy and Nixon, belongs to the new generation of political scientists. He knows how to learn the score.

These young men have applied what they know to be true about science to the once dark art of politics. It is their belief that political effects can be attained by manipulation of the known circumstances of politics. Using all the tools at their disposal—modern communication, opinion testing, image project and swift transportation—they are able to accomplish things their fathers and grandfathers wouldn't have thought possible.

IN ACTION, these men are a revelation.

Vice President Nixon showed in the incisive way he handled his problems at Chicago the same sure touch his Democratic opponent showed in Los Angeles.

Kennedy had been running since the 1956 Democratic convention, when he narrowly lost the vice presidential nomination.

Mr. Nixon has been getting ready to step into the role of presidential contender since 1953, when Dwight Eisenhower gave him the privilege of understudying the presidency.

He learned his part well. He is the first in what may become a series of professional chief executives—professional in the sense that they will have prepared themselves methodically for a role they intended to assume, one day.

The temptation is always strong to believe that old eras are ending and new ones beginning. There is a human impulse to file current history in pigeonholes before it has quit being current.

But in this instance, it may turn out that the era of happenstance chief executives of the United States finally has ended—that political science has moved into presidential politics and nothing now will be left to chance, except the unpredictabilities of

When it was time for the Republican convention, there was nobody but Richard Nixon health and life.
to choose. To have picked anyone else would have been foolish.

The ingredients of the decision had been compounded and mixed according to formula. The result was predictable. The Republican party would nominate its first professionally prepared presidential candidate; there would be no alternative.

WHAT IS TO COME now will be another revelation of the new era—the first professionally directed and executed presidential campaign conducted on both sides according to the precepts of political science.

Before it's over, the poignancy of a remark by an old-time politician in the Democratic convention will have filtered into the consciousness of millions: "This is no place for amateurs."

Perhaps it will be no better than it was before.

Maybe politics doesn't really lend itself to the "scientific approach."

But if politics doesn't lend itself to the "scientific approach," two young presidential candidates in their 40s are both dead wrong about their major assumptions in 1960.

Ditching The Civil Rights Issue

One threadbare phrase has been discarded forever by the 1960 political conventions.

Neither party ever should mention "civil rights issue" again, except in reminiscence. The issue is dead. It was a long time dying.

The dying began when the 14th amendment to the Constitution was declared in effect in 1868. It said that all persons born or naturalized in the United States were its citizens and their privileges and immunities could not be abridged by state laws. It further said that all citizens were entitled to the equal protection of all the laws and that no person could be deprived of life, liberty, or property without due process of law.

This guarantee has been kicked around, twisted, misrepresented, distorted, shredded, misinterpreted, misapplied and muddled by two generations of willful Americans determined to thwart its purpose.

IT HAS BEEN ignored persistently by a type of southern politician whose public career was built on ability to exploit voter prejudice. It has been fine-drawn into legal cobwebs by a type of legalist who arrogated the right to read into basic law hair-splitting distinctions between what was obviously true and what the legalist wanted to believe was true.

The 14th amendment has been political fodder for hundreds of office seekers who have mouthed it and dropped underfoot what they did not feel like ingesting. But finally, at long last, both political parties, weary of trying to appease unappeasables both in the South and the North, have adopted statements so clearly in support of the 14th amendment that there is no issue any more.

THIS DOESN'T MEAN civil rights will be immune to tampering from now on. It means the tamperers have lost the political sanction that they once wheedled out of conventions, with threats of revenge and promises of support.

It means at long last that all those who practice prejudice are on their own. They cannot scuttle for cover under a dispute about the Constitution. They cannot clothe their legal and moral failure in mumbo-jumbo—and never again can they point to a statement in a political platform to excuse their act.

The 14th amendment has been taken out of partisan politics. It never should have been in politics in the first place — no more so than the Golden Rule, which is essentially what it is.

First There Would Be A Campaign

In the propaganda division of cold-war waging there will be no moves better than President Eisenhower's proposal for a worldwide showdown on Kremlinization.

But the appeal his idea will have for the millions who will talk about it as a subject of fertile discussion is cooled off by realization that a worldwide vote of his magnitude would be preceded by a worldwide campaign of similar magnitude.

The President's proposal calls only for the vote, not the campaign.

He is correct in assuming that most people on earth would choose the kind of freedom found in the United States against the kind of despotism found in the Soviet Union.

But before the people of the earth could know what kind of freedom is found here they would have to be told about it. They would have to be converted to something they never have heard about.

They would have to be told about something else they know nothing about—the despotism of 20th century Russian rule.

While the United States was trying to make them vote for freedom, the international Communist conspiracy would be trying to make them vote for the Kremlin. Voting is out of the Communist line—at least free voting—but propagandizing is very much in the Communist line.

The Kremlin carries it on with cool, cruel efficiency. The apparatus of the international Communist conspiracy is at its command. There is no lie too gross for it to tell, no violence too bloody for it to back away from, no plot too devilish for it to try.

Compared with its efforts, the efforts of the United States have been puny. This country has had to battle for even token funds to sustain a program. At any given instant, the impact of its efforts could be muffled by some pettiness or jealousy in government. Things are better than they used to be, but they started from such a low point after World War II that they had no way to go but up.

Freedom would win over despotism if the issue were clear. But before it could be clear, there would have to be a campaign, and it would take an optimist to believe the United States could hold its own in a propaganda contest with the Soviet Union.

If it had demonstrated any such ability since World War II, there wouldn't be anything to be scared of now.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

Even mechanical rabbits must stop to laugh while race horses exclaim, "This is too much" and niteries, contest promoters, casino operators, visiting racketeers and most pleasure seekers call it grim when Miami stages a court battle to end a simple prayer for schoolkids on the ground it can do them harm!

Children who see or sense an endless panorama of events and activities promoting the "eat, drink and be merry" theory of life can find reference to a common God bad for their characters, it is contended in an incredible petition by two faiths and an agnostic to bar the simple recognition of a Supreme Being.

It must be somebody's idea of keeping Miami in the headlines during the off-season.

The petitioners even demand reading from the Bible, or school mention of Christmas, Easter or Hanukkah, be tossed out in an area where the orange, the coconut, the beauty contest, horse chart studies and the mad rush for easy money and luxury living, get superdooper glorification.

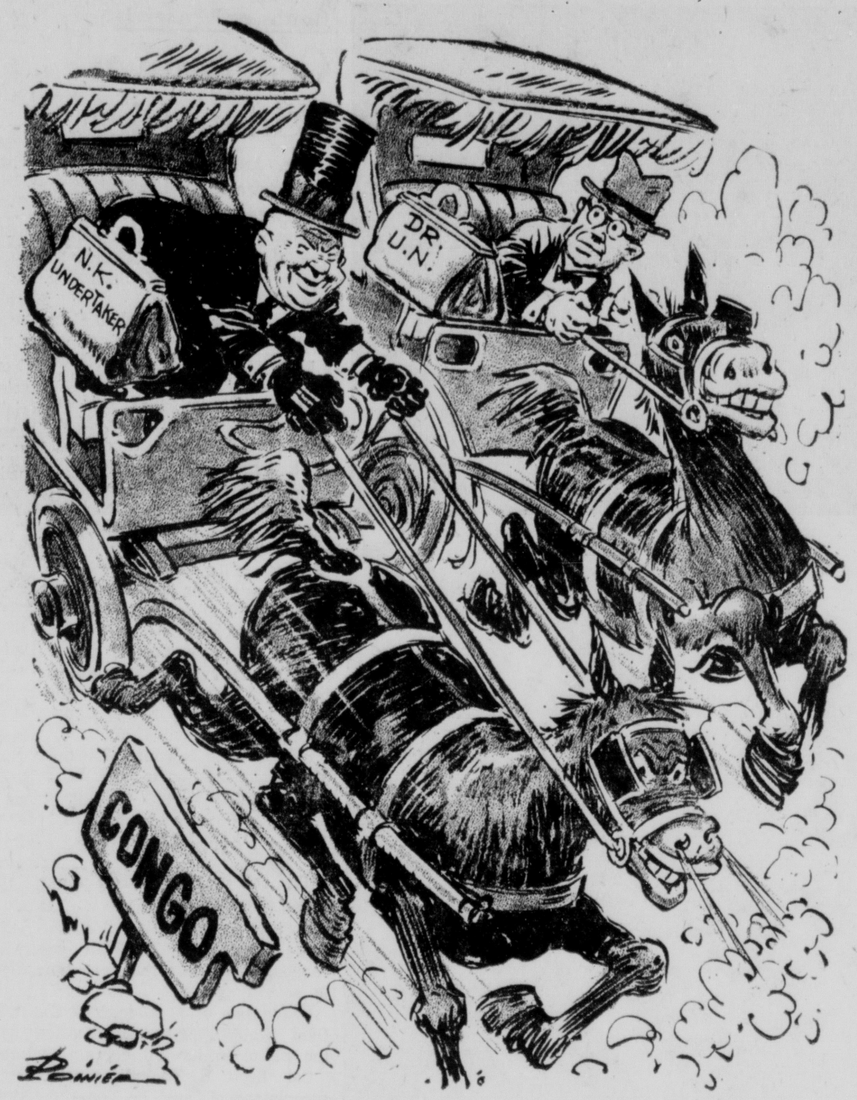

For generations moppets of all faiths came up well in schools with a few seconds for prayer in opening the school day.

In our day there were even Buddhists in the classrooms and we never heard of a feeling a common prayer could injure a kid. But these are strange times.

Any day now we may find Las Vegas, Reno and other "character building spots" holding hearings on the terrible danger of a child with bowed head in a public school.

Let the kiddies watch the stampede
To casino and to track;
Let 'em note the endless picture
Of the gamblers out and back;
They can see the bettors rushing
To the hot spots everywhere—
But they must not be permitted
To be touched by schoolroom prayer.
If the moppets hear the nightclubs
Tooting far into the night
Or hear talk of daily doubles
At the dog tracks, it's all right;
Get a load of crime and scandal;
See the mobsters as they swarm,
But no word of God to schoolkids.
IT WOULD TEND TO DO 'EM HARM!

Taking No Chances On Patient's Surviving

Be On Guard, Hoover Urges Americans

By Victor Riesel

Victor Riesel asked J. Edgar Hoover, FBI director, for his analysis of the Soviets' invisible invasion of the U.S. His reply follows.

By JOHN EDGAR HOOVER

The security of our nation — indeed, the safety and freedom of each American — rests in the hands of those who are in possession of any information which might be helpful to an enemy.

It is an indisputable fact that Communist-directed espionage activity exists on a massive worldwide front.

There has been no cessation of such activity in the United States. On the contrary, our military, scientific, and industrial secrets have been and continue to be targets on which a veritable army of espionage agents have focused their efforts.

What type of data do these agents seek?

The answer is: Anything and everything. It is a fact that the intelligence objectives of the Communist-bloc countries can properly be described as all-encompassing.

Why should the Communists be interested in securing information relative to a strike or other internal friction? Such items are valuable grist for their propaganda mill.

WHY SHOULD details relating to the personal lives of scientists and government officials attract attention of intelligence agents?

The answer in one brutal word —blackmail. If an unsavory incident can be dredged up, it may serve as a lever to secure additional data.

It goes without saying that, in a drive to achieve military superiority, the Communists continue to concentrate on securing data relating to developments and discoveries in the scientific field.

Theft of the secrets of construction and detonation of the atomic bomb was among the more spectacular efforts in this field.

The subsequent arrest and prosecution of such individuals as Klaus Fuchs, Harry Gold, Morton Sobel, David Greenglass and the Rosenbergs could not, of course, offset the fact that the Communists had secured data of immense value in advancing their objective — domination of the world.

Military information of any and every type is sought by the Soviet intelligence apparatus.

The operation of one branch of this apparatus, designed to penetrate the security of operations of United States forces in Austria, was followed by our military authorities abroad for two years.

Through the patriotic assistance of an informant who served his adopted country conscientiously, we were able to follow the trial of espionage as efforts were made to expand the operation on United States soil.

THESE EFFORTS were made by the second secretary of the Soviet Embassy in Washington. Information solicited on behalf of Soviet Russia included data relating to our Air Force personnel stationed abroad, morale among Air Force officers and enlisted personnel, Air Force interrogation techniques, the identity of United States intelligence sources, the identity of fellow employes of our confidential informant (employed by the United States government in a sensitive position) and the names of United States military personnel destined for overseas assignment.

The Communist diplomat - spy also sought information in United States intelligence files dealing with Russian installations and Russian military capabilities, the current location of a defected Soviet airman then in the United States and data dealing with the United States' preparations for war or defense.

This espionage attempt concluded with the trial and sentencing of two naturalized American citizens. The co-conspirator from the diplomatic corps was declared persona non grata by the State Department and returned to Russia.

The effort which Soviet intelligence agents make in seeking to minimize personal contact and consequent danger of compromise became very apparent in the case of Soviet spy Rudolf Ivanovich Abel.

In this case, a system of widely separated "dead drops" or "banks" was established throughout the metropolitan area of New York so that the espionage agents might make contact with each other.

THESE DROPS were located in parks, theaters, bars and other public places. Messages were left at benches, lamp posts or fences in these locations.

Often the messages were secreted in hollowed-out objects such as bolts, pencils or nickels. Such things as hollow cuff links, hollow flashlight battery, hollow-handled shaving brush and a hollowed nail were found in Abel's rooms.

The Soviet-bloc espionage apparatus seeks political, scientific, economic, cultural and military information of all types.

Why, for example, should they seek to gain knowledge of our passport procedures or tax regulations? Such knowledge is essential to their illegal or "deep cover" agents if the latter are to remain undetected in this country.

There has been an expansion of Soviet-block intelligence activities directed against the United States with widespread use of "legal" agents operating under the guise of diplomatic status.

There also has been a tightening-up of the organization structure of the entire Soviet intelligence apparatus.

Certainly, there is every indication that foreign directed espionage activity will be continued on an increasing scale for an indefinite period in the future.

Every American citizen should be aware of this and be on guard.

Farmers And Politicians

By Raymond Moley

LOS ANGELES

As noted in an earlier article, I have skipped the two conventions and instead have made an automobile trip from coast to coast.

It seemed that more perspective could be gotten on politics in that way than in lurking among the political figures who are filling the press and the airwaves. The experiment was richly rewarding in what I observed and what I heard.

I crossed three of the states which are located in that region which is the center of what is called the farm problem—Illinois, Iowa, and Nebraska.

Such a brief encounter with the area is, I realize, no way to evaluate that so-called problem. But my observation and conversation with a number of people in the small cities and towns provided food for reflection, especially after hearing over the air from the recent Democratic convention the screams of politicians concerning the dreadful plight of agriculture.

IF WE GAVE any credit to what some of them are saying, we would believe that the farmers of the Middle West are, in the phase of the late President Roosevelt, "living in the shadow of peasantry."

Since that expression was used in 1932, many billions have been spent to dispel that shadow and the end, according to the party platforms, is not yet.

I was especially impressed by the fact that the attitude of the people who live and do business in the towns and small cities differs sharply from that of the farmers.

Those people are in no sense a subsidized class. If they fail, they move elsewhere. They are, so far as I could hear, not especially sympathetic with the idea of a permanent guaranteee of the farmers' income by the federal government.

In short, they believe from firsthand knowledge that the farmers are a lot better off than is claimed by farm politicians.

One merchant told me that a farmer in his county told him that he was broke. As a result of a few questions, the merchant elicited the facts that the farmer was receiving $5,000 a year from the soil bank fund, that his cattle would bring $21,000 on the market, and he was offering his farm for sale at a price of $50,000.

The merchant, on the other hand, had no subsidy and realized that if he failed to make a living, he would have to move.

Similar stories were told me by proprietors of automobile repair shops and by other small businessmen.

MY CONCLUSION is that it would be possible for a candidate for president to tell the farmers the blunt truth and to offer a program of sound finance and efficient government.

This would appeal not only to the people in the small towns and cities but also to the millions of middle-income people in the suburbs of the large cities. For the major voting power in these farm states is no longer held by farmers.

I have no hope that such a course will be followed. Politicians of both parties are so profoundly impressed by the reputed unpopularity of Secretary Benson, who has been telling the farmers the blunt truth, that they will offer enlarging benefits for the farmers.

Through The Years

THIRTY YEARS AGO — An enumeration showed there were 20,825 children of school age in Columbiana County.

John A. McKenzie, New Cumberland attorney, was appointed special judge of the Hancock County Circuit Court.

TWENTY YEARS AGO — Columbiana County's fifth state roadside park was assured, with word that the NYA had approved plans for a recreation center in Wellsville.

The 30th anniversary of the founding of Glenmoor was celebrated with a homecoming at Melody Manor.

TEN YEARS AGO — Columbiana County commissioners appropriated $1,500 as the county's share in a Federal aid program for four secondary highways.

Gasoline prices in East Liverpool were increased a half - cent a gallon to 25 cents for regular and 27 cents for premium.

Triumvirate Of Experience

By David Lawrence

GOP Offers Nixon, Lodge And Eisenhower

CHICAGO—The Republicans plan to offer the country a triumvirate of experience to meet the crises of a troubled world.

If Richard Nixon is elected president and Henry Cabot Lodge is the vice president, they will confer and counsel often with Dwight Eisenhower.

America's policies thus will be formulated on the basis of experience with all the controversies and personalities in international affairs gained in eight fateful years.

This is the meaning of what has been urged in favor of the combination of Nixon and Lodge, both of whom have been associated so closely with the administration of President Eisenhower.

The way the delegates cheered Mr. Eisenhower and the enthusiastic reception given him by the people of Chicago would seem to indicate that folks generally would be glad to see Mr. Eisenhower continue to exert his influence, through his successor, on the side of patience yet firmness in dealing with the Soviet Union.

Henry Cabot Lodge is well known to TV audiences and in the press because of his courageous and skillful handling of the Soviet tirades in the United Nations meeting in New York.

SINCE the forthcoming political campaign will raise the issue of experience vs. inexperience in world affairs, the Republican leaders were wise to bring President Eisenhower here and to consider so favorably the selection of Henry Cabot Lodge for the vice presidential nomination.

For the feeling is that international issues will be dominant in the campaign. Both Nixon and Lodge are good debaters and have matter gained at first hand inside the United States government from day to day for the last seven years or more.

Mr. Lodge has proved a masterful diplomat and speaks French (the international language) fluently.

As for the platform controversies here, they appeared to fade away through "compromises." Phraseology that emphasizes in broad terms the desired objectives rather than specific formulas or legislative proposals was employed adroitly as usual to satisfy conflicting elements.

BUT THE Republicans did two significant things in their "civil rights" plank which will win them considerable support:

1. They didn't endorse "sit-ins." For to do so meant something the Democrats overlooked—that the word "sit-in" could be construed easily to include "sitdown" strikes in plants and factories as well as in business establishments. This particular issue was fought out in Michigan in the 1930s, when the Supreme Court of the United States declared "sit-in" strikes unlawful. Certainly in principle a nonviolent occupation of a factory isn't any different from a nonviolent occupation of a lunch counter.

The Republicans didn't mention "sit-in's" as such at all in the platform and wisely confined themselves to this broad statement: "We reaffirm the constitutional right to peaceable assembly to protest discrimination in private business establishments. We applaud the action of the businessmen who have abandoned discriminatory practices in retail establishments, and we urge others to follow their example."

The reference to "peaceable assembly" means, of course, only outside the stores, where there is a legal right to protest or demonstrate.

2. The other piece of political wisdom emerged as the Republicans took note that the Democrats, by their platform, had called for abolition of all literacy tests for voting. This would require a constitutional amendment. The Republicans, on the other hand, pledged "legislation to provide that the completion of six primary grades in a state-accredited school is conclusive evidence of literacy for voting purposes."

ON BALANCE, the South could regard the Republican "civil rights" proposals as somewhat better for them than the Democratic plank.

As for the Negro leaders in the North, they may well find, as they study it, more specific guarantees or proposals to achieve civil rights spelled out in the Republican than in the Democratic platform.

Indeed, the Republicans had an advantage because they could read the planks of their opponents and be guided by public criticisms.

It used to be that the Republicans held their convention first, but the procedure was turned around this year and the Republicans certainly profited by the mistakes made by the other side at Los Angeles.

At least, the Republicans are conducting an orderly convention and the delegates have been in their seats virtually all the time during the sessions.

Politicians' Opportunity

By James Marlow

CHICAGO

The politicians, now that their two big conventions are over, will get an extraordinarily fast chance to try to make good on their high-sounding promises here and in Los Angeles.

Congress must return Aug. 8 to complete its unfinished business. It took a vacation during the conventions. The unfinished business happens to involve some of the most important promises in both the Democratic and Republican platforms.

For instance: Aid to education and raising the minimum wage. If the advocates of civil rights, the most heated issue in both platforms, try to get action on that subject they may make a shambles of what is scheduled to be a three-week session.

Usually Congress in a campaign year completes its work before the conventions start. This gives the politicians until the following January—when the next Congress takes over—to produce on the big campaign talk.

This year Congress did such a meager job between January and the time it recessed in July, it had to return. But this upcoming session will be doubly extraordinary.

Three of the two parties' four top candidates will be working in the Senate. Because the whole country will be watching, their Senate activities will actually be part of their campaign.

President Eisenhower, anxious for a Republican victory, will have a hand in things which could range from holding conferences with congressional leaders to posing for pictures with Richard M. Nixon, the Republicans' presidential nominee.

Nixon, as vice president, will preside over the Senate, his usual role. Behind the scenes, of course, he'll be putting the heat on his fellow Republicans to see things his way.

Facing him all the while will be Sens. John F. Kennedy and Lyndon Johnson, whose were given the No. 1 and No. 2 spots on the Democrats' ticket at their Los Angeles convention two weeks ago.

Nixon's vice presidential running mate, Henry Cabot Lodge, can return temporarily to his job as U.S. ambassador to the United Nations.

Among the measures Congress left pending when it went on vacation were a minimum wage bill and another to give federal aid to education. On both these issues the Democratic and Republican platform promises differ.

The Democrats called for raising the minimum wage — which applies to workers in interstate commerce — from $1-an-hour to $1.25. The Republicans pledged support to raising the minimum, but didn't say how high.

Actually, before Congress recessed the Republicans were balking at anything higher than $1.15 and it wasn't clear they would even go for that.

Since the Democrats have big majorities in House and Senate they have the numbers to pass a $1.25 minimum wage bill. If it's too high for his taste, Eisenhower could veto it. That would kill it for 1960 if the Democrats weren't able to muster the necessary two-thirds vote to overcome the veto.

But if Eisenhower uses the veto for such a purpose — and makes it stick — he'll hurt Nixon with organized labor which supports the 25-cent boost in the minimum wage.

On education the Republicans advocate federal aid for school construction but not for teachers' salaries. The Democrats promised help not only in building classrooms but in paying teachers, too.

Other platform promises are apt to get mixed up in the three-week congressional session. But the politicians will have to hurry up their business and get out on the road with their campaign.

Besides the presidential race, all House seats and one-third of the Senate seats are at stake in November.

There Was Nobody But Nixon

The next President of the United States will be a political scientist.

Long before it was obvious to the Democrats in Los Angeles that their party's presidential nominee had to be John F. Kennedy, because he had earned the nomination by his skill and energy, it was obvious to Republicans that Richard M. Nixon had earned their party's nomination the same way.

Nelson A. Rockefeller was reluctant to concede this, but even he finally bowed to the inevitable, because he, like Kennedy and Nixon, belongs to the new generation of political scientists. He knows how to learn the score.

These young men have applied what they know to be true about science to the once dark art of politics. It is their belief that political effects can be attained by manipulation of the known circumstances of politics. Using all the tools at their disposal—modern communication, opinion testing, image project and swift transportation—they are able to accomplish things their fathers and grandfathers wouldn't have thought possible.

IN ACTION, these men are a revelation.

Vice President Nixon showed in the incisive way he handled his problems at Chicago the same sure touch his Democratic opponent showed in Los Angeles.

Kennedy had been running since the 1956 Democratic convention, when he narrowly lost the vice presidential nomination.

Mr. Nixon has been getting ready to step into the role of presidential contender since 1953, when Dwight Eisenhower gave him the privilege of understudying the presidency.

He learned his part well. He is the first in what may become a series of professional chief executives—professional in the sense that they will have prepared themselves methodically for a role they intended to assume, one day.

The temptation is always strong to believe that old eras are ending and new ones beginning. There is a human impulse to file current history in pigeonholes before it has quit being current.

But in this instance, it may turn out that the era of happenstance chief executives of the United States finally has ended—that political science has moved into presidential politics and nothing now will be left to chance, except the unpredictabilities of

When it was time for the Republican convention, there was nobody but Richard Nixon health and life.
to choose. To have picked anyone else would have been foolish.

The ingredients of the decision had been compounded and mixed according to formula. The result was predictable. The Republican party would nominate its first professionally prepared presidential candidate; there would be no alternative.

WHAT IS TO COME now will be another revelation of the new era—the first professionally directed and executed presidential campaign conducted on both sides according to the precepts of political science.

Before it's over, the poignancy of a remark by an old-time politician in the Democratic convention will have filtered into the consciousness of millions: "This is no place for amateurs."

Perhaps it will be no better than it was before.

Maybe politics doesn't really lend itself to the "scientific approach."

But if politics doesn't lend itself to the "scientific approach," two young presidential candidates in their 40s are both dead wrong about their major assumptions in 1960.

Ditching The Civil Rights Issue

One threadbare phrase has been discarded forever by the 1960 political conventions.

Neither party ever should mention "civil rights issue" again, except in reminiscence. The issue is dead. It was a long time dying.

The dying began when the 14th amendment to the Constitution was declared in effect in 1868. It said that all persons born or naturalized in the United States were its citizens and their privileges and immunities could not be abridged by state laws. It further said that all citizens were entitled to the equal protection of all the laws and that no person could be deprived of life, liberty, or property without due process of law.

This guarantee has been kicked around, twisted, misrepresented, distorted, shredded, misinterpreted, misapplied and muddled by two generations of willful Americans determined to thwart its purpose.

IT HAS BEEN ignored persistently by a type of southern politician whose public career was built on ability to exploit voter prejudice. It has been fine-drawn into legal cobwebs by a type of legalist who arrogated the right to read into basic law hair-splitting distinctions between what was obviously true and what the legalist wanted to believe was true.

The 14th amendment has been political fodder for hundreds of office seekers who have mouthed it and dropped underfoot what they did not feel like ingesting. But finally, at long last, both political parties, weary of trying to appease unappeasables both in the South and the North, have adopted statements so clearly in support of the 14th amendment that there is no issue any more.

THIS DOESN'T MEAN civil rights will be immune to tampering from now on. It means the tamperers have lost the political sanction that they once wheedled out of conventions, with threats of revenge and promises of support.

It means at long last that all those who practice prejudice are on their own. They cannot scuttle for cover under a dispute about the Constitution. They cannot clothe their legal and moral failure in mumbo-jumbo—and never again can they point to a statement in a political platform to excuse their act.

The 14th amendment has been taken out of partisan politics. It never should have been in politics in the first place — no more so than the Golden Rule, which is essentially what it is.

First There Would Be A Campaign

In the propaganda division of cold-war waging there will be no moves better than President Eisenhower's proposal for a worldwide showdown on Kremlinization.

But the appeal his idea will have for the millions who will talk about it as a subject of fertile discussion is cooled off by realization that a worldwide vote of his magnitude would be preceded by a worldwide campaign of similar magnitude.

The President's proposal calls only for the vote, not the campaign.

He is correct in assuming that most people on earth would choose the kind of freedom found in the United States against the kind of despotism found in the Soviet Union.

But before the people of the earth could know what kind of freedom is found here they would have to be told about it. They would have to be converted to something they never have heard about.

They would have to be told about something else they know nothing about—the despotism of 20th century Russian rule.

While the United States was trying to make them vote for freedom, the international Communist conspiracy would be trying to make them vote for the Kremlin. Voting is out of the Communist line—at least free voting—but propagandizing is very much in the Communist line.

The Kremlin carries it on with cool, cruel efficiency. The apparatus of the international Communist conspiracy is at its command. There is no lie too gross for it to tell, no violence too bloody for it to back away from, no plot too devilish for it to try.

Compared with its efforts, the efforts of the United States have been puny. This country has had to battle for even token funds to sustain a program. At any given instant, the impact of its efforts could be muffled by some pettiness or jealousy in government. Things are better than they used to be, but they started from such a low point after World War II that they had no way to go but up.

Freedom would win over despotism if the issue were clear. But before it could be clear, there would have to be a campaign, and it would take an optimist to believe the United States could hold its own in a propaganda contest with the Soviet Union.

If it had demonstrated any such ability since World War II, there wouldn't be anything to be scared of now.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

Even mechanical rabbits must stop to laugh while race horses exclaim, "This is too much" and niteries, contest promoters, casino operators, visiting racketeers and most pleasure seekers call it grim when Miami stages a court battle to end a simple prayer for schoolkids on the ground it can do them harm!

Children who see or sense an endless panorama of events and activities promoting the "eat, drink and be merry" theory of life can find reference to a common God bad for their characters, it is contended in an incredible petition by two faiths and an agnostic to bar the simple recognition of a Supreme Being.

It must be somebody's idea of keeping Miami in the headlines during the off-season.

The petitioners even demand reading from the Bible, or school mention of Christmas, Easter or Hanukkah, be tossed out in an area where the orange, the coconut, the beauty contest, horse chart studies and the mad rush for easy money and luxury living, get superdooper glorification.

For generations moppets of all faiths came up well in schools with a few seconds for prayer in opening the school day.

In our day there were even Buddhists in the classrooms and we never heard of a feeling a common prayer could injure a kid. But these are strange times.

Any day now we may find Las Vegas, Reno and other "character building spots" holding hearings on the terrible danger of a child with bowed head in a public school.

Let the kiddies watch the stampede
To casino and to track;
Let 'em note the endless picture
Of the gamblers out and back;
They can see the bettors rushing
To the hot spots everywhere—
But they must not be permitted
To be touched by schoolroom prayer.
If the moppets hear the nightclubs
Tooting far into the night
Or hear talk of daily doubles
At the dog tracks, it's all right;
Get a load of crime and scandal;
See the mobsters as they swarm,
But no word of God to schoolkids.
IT WOULD TEND TO DO 'EM HARM!

Taking No Chances On Patient's Surviving

Be On Guard, Hoover Urges Americans

By Victor Riesel

Victor Riesel asked J. Edgar Hoover, FBI director, for his analysis of the Soviets' invisible invasion of the U.S. His reply follows.

By JOHN EDGAR HOOVER

The security of our nation — indeed, the safety and freedom of each American — rests in the hands of those who are in possession of any information which might be helpful to an enemy.

It is an indisputable fact that Communist-directed espionage activity exists on a massive worldwide front.

There has been no cessation of such activity in the United States. On the contrary, our military, scientific, and industrial secrets have been and continue to be targets on which a veritable army of espionage agents have focused their efforts.

What type of data do these agents seek?

The answer is: Anything and everything. It is a fact that the intelligence objectives of the Communist-bloc countries can properly be described as all-encompassing.

Why should the Communists be interested in securing information relative to a strike or other internal friction? Such items are valuable grist for their propaganda mill.

WHY SHOULD details relating to the personal lives of scientists and government officials attract attention of intelligence agents?

The answer in one brutal word —blackmail. If an unsavory incident can be dredged up, it may serve as a lever to secure additional data.

It goes without saying that, in a drive to achieve military superiority, the Communists continue to concentrate on securing data relating to developments and discoveries in the scientific field.

Theft of the secrets of construction and detonation of the atomic bomb was among the more spectacular efforts in this field.

The subsequent arrest and prosecution of such individuals as Klaus Fuchs, Harry Gold, Morton Sobel, David Greenglass and the Rosenbergs could not, of course, offset the fact that the Communists had secured data of immense value in advancing their objective — domination of the world.

Military information of any and every type is sought by the Soviet intelligence apparatus.

The operation of one branch of this apparatus, designed to penetrate the security of operations of United States forces in Austria, was followed by our military authorities abroad for two years.

Through the patriotic assistance of an informant who served his adopted country conscientiously, we were able to follow the trial of espionage as efforts were made to expand the operation on United States soil.

THESE EFFORTS were made by the second secretary of the Soviet Embassy in Washington. Information solicited on behalf of Soviet Russia included data relating to our Air Force personnel stationed abroad, morale among Air Force officers and enlisted personnel, Air Force interrogation techniques, the identity of United States intelligence sources, the identity of fellow employes of our confidential informant (employed by the United States government in a sensitive position) and the names of United States military personnel destined for overseas assignment.

The Communist diplomat - spy also sought information in United States intelligence files dealing with Russian installations and Russian military capabilities, the current location of a defected Soviet airman then in the United States and data dealing with the United States' preparations for war or defense.

This espionage attempt concluded with the trial and sentencing of two naturalized American citizens. The co-conspirator from the diplomatic corps was declared persona non grata by the State Department and returned to Russia.

The effort which Soviet intelligence agents make in seeking to minimize personal contact and consequent danger of compromise became very apparent in the case of Soviet spy Rudolf Ivanovich Abel.

In this case, a system of widely separated "dead drops" or "banks" was established throughout the metropolitan area of New York so that the espionage agents might make contact with each other.

THESE DROPS were located in parks, theaters, bars and other public places. Messages were left at benches, lamp posts or fences in these locations.

Often the messages were secreted in hollowed-out objects such as bolts, pencils or nickels. Such things as hollow cuff links, hollow flashlight battery, hollow-handled shaving brush and a hollowed nail were found in Abel's rooms.

The Soviet-bloc espionage apparatus seeks political, scientific, economic, cultural and military information of all types.

Why, for example, should they seek to gain knowledge of our passport procedures or tax regulations? Such knowledge is essential to their illegal or "deep cover" agents if the latter are to remain undetected in this country.

There has been an expansion of Soviet-block intelligence activities directed against the United States with widespread use of "legal" agents operating under the guise of diplomatic status.

There also has been a tightening-up of the organization structure of the entire Soviet intelligence apparatus.

Certainly, there is every indication that foreign directed espionage activity will be continued on an increasing scale for an indefinite period in the future.

Every American citizen should be aware of this and be on guard.

Farmers And Politicians

By Raymond Moley

LOS ANGELES

As noted in an earlier article, I have skipped the two conventions and instead have made an automobile trip from coast to coast.

It seemed that more perspective could be gotten on politics in that way than in lurking among the political figures who are filling the press and the airwaves. The experiment was richly rewarding in what I observed and what I heard.

I crossed three of the states which are located in that region which is the center of what is called the farm problem—Illinois, Iowa, and Nebraska.

Such a brief encounter with the area is, I realize, no way to evaluate that so-called problem. But my observation and conversation with a number of people in the small cities and towns provided food for reflection, especially after hearing over the air from the recent Democratic convention the screams of politicians concerning the dreadful plight of agriculture.

IF WE GAVE any credit to what some of them are saying, we would believe that the farmers of the Middle West are, in the phase of the late President Roosevelt, "living in the shadow of peasantry."

Since that expression was used in 1932, many billions have been spent to dispel that shadow and the end, according to the party platforms, is not yet.

I was especially impressed by the fact that the attitude of the people who live and do business in the towns and small cities differs sharply from that of the farmers.

Those people are in no sense a subsidized class. If they fail, they move elsewhere. They are, so far as I could hear, not especially sympathetic with the idea of a permanent guaranteee of the farmers' income by the federal government.

In short, they believe from firsthand knowledge that the farmers are a lot better off than is claimed by farm politicians.

One merchant told me that a farmer in his county told him that he was broke. As a result of a few questions, the merchant elicited the facts that the farmer was receiving $5,000 a year from the soil bank fund, that his cattle would bring $21,000 on the market, and he was offering his farm for sale at a price of $50,000.

The merchant, on the other hand, had no subsidy and realized that if he failed to make a living, he would have to move.

Similar stories were told me by proprietors of automobile repair shops and by other small businessmen.

MY CONCLUSION is that it would be possible for a candidate for president to tell the farmers the blunt truth and to offer a program of sound finance and efficient government.

This would appeal not only to the people in the small towns and cities but also to the millions of middle-income people in the suburbs of the large cities. For the major voting power in these farm states is no longer held by farmers.

I have no hope that such a course will be followed. Politicians of both parties are so profoundly impressed by the reputed unpopularity of Secretary Benson, who has been telling the farmers the blunt truth, that they will offer enlarging benefits for the farmers.

Through The Years

THIRTY YEARS AGO — An enumeration showed there were 20,825 children of school age in Columbiana County.

John A. McKenzie, New Cumberland attorney, was appointed special judge of the Hancock County Circuit Court.

TWENTY YEARS AGO — Columbiana County's fifth state roadside park was assured, with word that the NYA had approved plans for a recreation center in Wellsville.

The 30th anniversary of the founding of Glenmoor was celebrated with a homecoming at Melody Manor.

TEN YEARS AGO — Columbiana County commissioners appropriated $1,500 as the county's share in a Federal aid program for four secondary highways.

Gasoline prices in East Liverpool were increased a half - cent a gallon to 25 cents for regular and 27 cents for premium.

Triumvirate Of Experience

By David Lawrence

GOP Offers Nixon, Lodge And Eisenhower

CHICAGO—The Republicans plan to offer the country a triumvirate of experience to meet the crises of a troubled world.

If Richard Nixon is elected president and Henry Cabot Lodge is the vice president, they will confer and counsel often with Dwight Eisenhower.

America's policies thus will be formulated on the basis of experience with all the controversies and personalities in international affairs gained in eight fateful years.

This is the meaning of what has been urged in favor of the combination of Nixon and Lodge, both of whom have been associated so closely with the administration of President Eisenhower.

The way the delegates cheered Mr. Eisenhower and the enthusiastic reception given him by the people of Chicago would seem to indicate that folks generally would be glad to see Mr. Eisenhower continue to exert his influence, through his successor, on the side of patience yet firmness in dealing with the Soviet Union.

Henry Cabot Lodge is well known to TV audiences and in the press because of his courageous and skillful handling of the Soviet tirades in the United Nations meeting in New York.

SINCE the forthcoming political campaign will raise the issue of experience vs. inexperience in world affairs, the Republican leaders were wise to bring President Eisenhower here and to consider so favorably the selection of Henry Cabot Lodge for the vice presidential nomination.

For the feeling is that international issues will be dominant in the campaign. Both Nixon and Lodge are good debaters and have matter gained at first hand inside the United States government from day to day for the last seven years or more.

Mr. Lodge has proved a masterful diplomat and speaks French (the international language) fluently.

As for the platform controversies here, they appeared to fade away through "compromises." Phraseology that emphasizes in broad terms the desired objectives rather than specific formulas or legislative proposals was employed adroitly as usual to satisfy conflicting elements.

BUT THE Republicans did two significant things in their "civil rights" plank which will win them considerable support:

1. They didn't endorse "sit-ins." For to do so meant something the Democrats overlooked—that the word "sit-in" could be construed easily to include "sitdown" strikes in plants and factories as well as in business establishments. This particular issue was fought out in Michigan in the 1930s, when the Supreme Court of the United States declared "sit-in" strikes unlawful. Certainly in principle a nonviolent occupation of a factory isn't any different from a nonviolent occupation of a lunch counter.

The Republicans didn't mention "sit-in's" as such at all in the platform and wisely confined themselves to this broad statement: "We reaffirm the constitutional right to peaceable assembly to protest discrimination in private business establishments. We applaud the action of the businessmen who have abandoned discriminatory practices in retail establishments, and we urge others to follow their example."

The reference to "peaceable assembly" means, of course, only outside the stores, where there is a legal right to protest or demonstrate.

2. The other piece of political wisdom emerged as the Republicans took note that the Democrats, by their platform, had called for abolition of all literacy tests for voting. This would require a constitutional amendment. The Republicans, on the other hand, pledged "legislation to provide that the completion of six primary grades in a state-accredited school is conclusive evidence of literacy for voting purposes."

ON BALANCE, the South could regard the Republican "civil rights" proposals as somewhat better for them than the Democratic plank.

As for the Negro leaders in the North, they may well find, as they study it, more specific guarantees or proposals to achieve civil rights spelled out in the Republican than in the Democratic platform.

Indeed, the Republicans had an advantage because they could read the planks of their opponents and be guided by public criticisms.

It used to be that the Republicans held their convention first, but the procedure was turned around this year and the Republicans certainly profited by the mistakes made by the other side at Los Angeles.

At least, the Republicans are conducting an orderly convention and the delegates have been in their seats virtually all the time during the sessions.

Politicians' Opportunity

By James Marlow

CHICAGO

The politicians, now that their two big conventions are over, will get an extraordinarily fast chance to try to make good on their high-sounding promises here and in Los Angeles.

Congress must return Aug. 8 to complete its unfinished business. It took a vacation during the conventions. The unfinished business happens to involve some of the most important promises in both the Democratic and Republican platforms.

For instance: Aid to education and raising the minimum wage. If the advocates of civil rights, the most heated issue in both platforms, try to get action on that subject they may make a shambles of what is scheduled to be a three-week session.

Usually Congress in a campaign year completes its work before the conventions start. This gives the politicians until the following January—when the next Congress takes over—to produce on the big campaign talk.

Driver Loses Plates, Permit

An East Liverpool man lost both the license plates for his auto and his operator's permit — at least temporarily — when he appeared today before Municipal Judge Samuel M. Chertoff, charged with failure to maintain financial responsibility insurance after his driver's license had been suspended on a charge of driving while under the influence of alcohol.

James William Landy, 942 Dresden Ave., was ordered by the court to surrender his license tags to Howard M. Lisk, district inspector for the State Bureau of Motor Vehicles, and to turn over his driver's license to the police department.

The plates and the license will be restored when Landy shows proof he has obtained financial responsibility insurance again, the judge said. Law provides for a motorist to obtain such insurance before he can drive again after his permt has been suspended for an offense such as driving while intoxicated.

Lisk said the state records show Landy was given a license suspension in Municipal Court Dec. 16, 1957, on a charge of driving while intoxicated. Then the state decreed a 3-year suspension for him on Jan. 1, 1958, Lisk said. Landy obtained the financial responsibility insurance Sept. 1, 1959, but canceled it on November 12, 1959, Lisk said.

His lack of insurance was disclosed yesterday when Landy was before the court on two other charges — operating an unsafe vehicle and improper registration.

Club Burglary Suspect Held For Grand Jury

A 22-year-old New Cumberland man was bound over to the September Grand Jury at a hearing Thursday before Squire John D. Herron on charges of breaking and entering.

Earl Fisher is being held in the County Jail in New Cumberland in lieu of $2,000 bond.

He entered a plea of guilty to charges of breaking and entering Club 66 on State Route 2 June 16. Fisher was arrested on charges filed by Police Chief Joseph H. Manypenny of New Cumberland after an investigation during which cigars and cigarettes believed taken from the tavern were found in the defendant's home.

145 Attend Open House For Golden Wedding

About 145 guests attended the open house celebration of Mr. and Mrs. Luther Davis of Greenwood, W. Va., Sunday in honor of their golden wedding anniversary.

Following attendance at church, Mrs. Berlin Williams, a daughter, served a buffet lunch at her home in Greenwood.

Open house was held in the afternoon at the couple's home. Mrs. Lessie Weekley, a sister of Mrs. Davis, who attended their wedding, presided at the punch bowl.

Guests were from Canton, Salem, East Liverpool, Homestead, Beaver, Clarksburg, West Milford and Moundsville.

Trainer Jimmy Pitt has a pet name for Bally Ache, the Kentucky Derby winner. He calls the colt Bright Eyes.

City Woman Cited For Buying 3 Consecutive 10-Day Plates

Accused of obtaining 3 consecutive 10-day license tags for a new auto from 3 different registrars, a 27-year-old East Liverpool woman was given a suspended fine of $50 and costs Thursday by Municipal Judge Samuel M. Chertoff.

Mrs. Beverly Arnold, 345 W. 6th St., was taken into custody yesterday morning by Howard Lisk, district inspector for the State Bureau of Motor Vehicles, and Capt. Robert H. Pyle.

Lisk warned today that the 10-day tags are not renewable and an auto purchaser is entitled to only one of the temporary licenses. The new state law was designed as a convenience for an auto purchaser who does not have tags that can be transferred legally from another car, he explained.

While the title for the newly-purchased auto is being processed, the law permits the motorist to obtain the 10-day tags so that he can drive the car in the meantime, Lisk explained. Mrs. Arnold was charged with furnishing false information when applying for auto registration. The offense carries a maximum penalty of a $200 fine, Lisk said.

The inspector said a check of applications at area agencies disclosed the multiple issuance of 10-day tags. Mrs. Arnold obtained the first on June 6 at the Columbiana County Motor Club, he said. It expired June 19. Then she obtained a 10-day tag on June 21 from Robert Owen, East End registrar. It expired July 1. The third temporary tag was acquired July 7 from Mrs. Mary Rahter, Wellsville registrar. It expired July 17.

In the first two applications Mrs. Arnold gave her own name, but listed a New Castle address, Lisk said. In the third application, she listed the auto owner as the Keystone Specialty Co. of New Castle.

The investigation disclosed that Mrs. Arnold was "duped" into the act "on the advice of an acquaintance," Lisk said.

Chester Mayor, Others To Act As Targets For Ball

Chester Mayor Ray Collins is going to do his share to aid the city's volunteer firemen despite their differences over his refusal to allow the department to conduct a bingo game at its fair in City Park.

Mayor Collins along with Don Chaney and others will be the "targets" in a baseball-throwing contest Saturday night at the fair in which a direct hit will dump the new city official into a tub of water.

The mayor will sit on a plank above the tub between 8 and 9 p. m. All proceeds will be turned over to the firemen.

The fair will close tomorrow night after a week's run in which it has been rained out twice. A storm about 8:30 last night sent visitors scurrying home.

It will open at 7 tonight and tomorrow night with greased pole contests scheduled at 7:30.

The climbers will be vying for a $5 award tonight but the prize Saturday night will be a plastic wading pool.

However, to eliminate "rigging," tomorrow night's contest will be limited to a climber and one helper. Three and four youngsters have been working together in an attempt to reach the cash prize.

No formal charges have been filed against the suspect, who was taken into custody Thursday afternoon by Patrolman William E. McDaniel. The suspect was wearing the allegedly stolen watch, police said. It was recovered, but the meat and doughnuts were written off on the crime report as "consumed."

At the time of the burglary, Allison named the man as a suspect. He said the man slept the preceding night on the front porch of his home and was seen walking away from the home in mid-afternoon, carrying a paper sack.

Ohio Edison Hit By Walkout Move

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—Two locals of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers started an unauthorized walkout at Ohio Edison Co. installations today, the company reported.

At Lorain and Elyria, 98 workers in Local 509 left their jobs, and at Sandusky and Port Clinton 81 workers in Local 1194 walked out, the company said.

Other locals in Massillon, Mansfield, Warren, Marion and Alliance are reported at work. The IBEW represents about 625 Ohio Edison employes. Their collective bargaining contract expired July 1 but has been extended to Aug. 21.

Frank Adams, international representative of the union, said the strikers would be told to return to their posts.

IBEW negotiators have rejected offers which the company says are similar to the terms of a new contract with six locals of the Utility Workers of America. The UWA represents about 1,320 in these locals. At Youngstown, a seventh local representing about 800 has been negotiating separately, and has voted to disaffiliate with the UWA.

The contract accepted by the joint council of the six UWA locals provide for wage increases in the first year ranging from 6 to 13 cents an hour, equivalent to four per cent, and further increases in the second year, ranging from 5½ to 14 cents.

Ohio Covered By Oil Scum Off River Rd.

Safety - Service Director Lee Copenhaver today warned East Liverpool district small craft operators against an oil slick that covers the Ohio River off the River Rd. to a point near Broadway.

The oil leaked from a hole in the hull of a barge Tuesday night while it was being emptied at the dock of the Mississippi - Ohio River Oil Co. on River Rd. about midway between downtown and East End, the director said.

The heavy oil could mar the hull of a small boat, so boat operators should stay clear of the area until the slick moves downstream, the director said. He said a check with the company today disclosed that about a dozen complaints have been received of small boats encountering the oil.

The director said city officials checked the riverfront yesterday after receiving complaints of the oil pollution and then discovered it had come from a leaking barge. He said the company's home offices in Pittsburgh and Cincinnati have been notified.

When the investigation was made yesterday the oil slick was close inshore from the company's docks to a point about off Broadway, Copenhaver said. The area is used heavily by small craft docked at Broadway and along the River Rd.

Driver Loses Plates, Permit

An East Liverpool man lost both the license plates for his auto and his operator's permit — at least temporarily — when he appeared today before Municipal Judge Samuel M. Chertoff, charged with failure to maintain financial responsibility insurance after his driver's license had been suspended on a charge of driving while under the influence of alcohol.

James William Landy, 942 Dresden Ave., was ordered by the court to surrender his license tags to Howard M. Lisk, district inspector for the State Bureau of Motor Vehicles, and to turn over his driver's license to the police department.

The plates and the license will be restored when Landy shows proof he has obtained financial responsibility insurance again, the judge said. Law provides for a motorist to obtain such insurance before he can drive again after his permt has been suspended for an offense such as driving while intoxicated.

Lisk said the state records show Landy was given a license suspension in Municipal Court Dec. 16, 1957, on a charge of driving while intoxicated. Then the state decreed a 3-year suspension for him on Jan. 1, 1958, Lisk said. Landy obtained the financial responsibility insurance Sept. 1, 1959, but canceled it on November 12, 1959, Lisk said.

His lack of insurance was disclosed yesterday when Landy was before the court on two other charges — operating an unsafe vehicle and improper registration.

Club Burglary Suspect Held For Grand Jury

A 22-year-old New Cumberland man was bound over to the September Grand Jury at a hearing Thursday before Squire John D. Herron on charges of breaking and entering.

Earl Fisher is being held in the County Jail in New Cumberland in lieu of $2,000 bond.

He entered a plea of guilty to charges of breaking and entering Club 66 on State Route 2 June 16. Fisher was arrested on charges filed by Police Chief Joseph H. Manypenny of New Cumberland after an investigation during which cigars and cigarettes believed taken from the tavern were found in the defendant's home.

145 Attend Open House For Golden Wedding

About 145 guests attended the open house celebration of Mr. and Mrs. Luther Davis of Greenwood, W. Va., Sunday in honor of their golden wedding anniversary.

Following attendance at church, Mrs. Berlin Williams, a daughter, served a buffet lunch at her home in Greenwood.

Open house was held in the afternoon at the couple's home. Mrs. Lessie Weekley, a sister of Mrs. Davis, who attended their wedding, presided at the punch bowl.

Guests were from Canton, Salem, East Liverpool, Homestead, Beaver, Clarksburg, West Milford and Moundsville.

City Woman Cited For Buying 3 Consecutive 10-Day Plates

Accused of obtaining 3 consecutive 10-day license tags for a new auto from 3 different registrars, a 27-year-old East Liverpool woman was given a suspended fine of $50 and costs Thursday by Municipal Judge Samuel M. Chertoff.

Mrs. Beverly Arnold, 345 W. 6th St., was taken into custody yesterday morning by Howard Lisk, district inspector for the State Bureau of Motor Vehicles, and Capt. Robert H. Pyle.

Lisk warned today that the 10-day tags are not renewable and an auto purchaser is entitled to only one of the temporary licenses. The new state law was designed as a convenience for an auto purchaser who does not have tags that can be transferred legally from another car, he explained.

While the title for the newly-purchased auto is being processed, the law permits the motorist to obtain the 10-day tags so that he can drive the car in the meantime, Lisk explained. Mrs. Arnold was charged with furnishing false information when applying for auto registration. The offense carries a maximum penalty of a $200 fine, Lisk said.

The inspector said a check of applications at area agencies disclosed the multiple issuance of 10-day tags. Mrs. Arnold obtained the first on June 6 at the Columbiana County Motor Club, he said. It expired June 19. Then she obtained a 10-day tag on June 21 from Robert Owen, East End registrar. It expired July 1. The third temporary tag was acquired July 7 from Mrs. Mary Rahter, Wellsville registrar. It expired July 17.

In the first two applications Mrs. Arnold gave her own name, but listed a New Castle address, Lisk said. In the third application, she listed the auto owner as the Keystone Specialty Co. of New Castle.

The investigation disclosed that Mrs. Arnold was "duped" into the act "on the advice of an acquaintance," Lisk said.

Gas Blast Hits Home, 14 Hurt

NEW KENSINGTON, Pa. (AP) — At least 14 persons were injured Thursday night when a gas explosion ripped apart a two-story building, hurling brick and cinder blocks as far as a half city square.

Four members of a family in the shattered home and three from an adjacent house, damaged in the blast, were admitted to Citizens Hospital where they are in "satisfactory" condition.

Fire Chief Edward Clawson said three of the injured had to be dug out of the debris.

Two of the city's fire companies, police and Civil Defense workers rushed to the scene about a block from the main business district when the blast let go at about 9:45 p.m.

Two bulldozers and three wrecking trucks helped to remove debris so workers could reach the injured.

Six houses surrounding the house had windows blown out and suffered other damage. Several pieces of lumber were driven through the siding of a frame house nearby.

It was reported one family, which had just moved in yesterday, had the gas turned on about 5:30 p.m. and then noticed a leak after the hot water tank was lighted.

A shutoff valve reportedly was missing from one of the gas lines. The gas was turned off and the valve installed.

SEARCHERS SIFT the debris of a New Kensington (Pa.) home devastated by a natural gas explosion that injured at least 14 persons and reduced the two-story duplex to a pile of boards and broken glass. (UPI Telephoto)

Nominations Awaited By 'Constitution' Party

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—Constitution party delegates gathered today to nominate candidates for president and vice president.

Southern in origin and strongly conservative, the Constitution party espouses removal of all farm controls and repeal of the federal income tax. It is a strong supporter of states' rights.

In 1956, the party's presidential candidate, T. Coleman Andrews, former U. S. commissioner of internal revenue, polled 175,679 votes in 19 states. He didn't carry a single state or win an electoral vote.

Railroad Union Names Heath As No. 2 Officer

CLEVELAND (AP)—The 45,000-member Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers has named Perry S. Heath, 60, as its second-ranking officer, assistant grand chief engineer. Heath, an assistant grand chief since 1953, started railroading as a fireman with the Santa Fe at Pueblo, Colo., in 1917 and was the union's general chairman for Santa Fe from 1945 to 1953. Heath succeeds Roy E. Davidson, 57, who moves up to grand chief engineer next Monday, replacing Guy L. Brown, who retires at age 67.

Cuban Struggle Seen As Marxist Revolution

HAVANA (AP) — Cuba's left-wing economic czar, National Bank President Ernesto Guevara, today likened Cuba's struggle to a Marxist revolution. He denounced the government of his native Argentina for urging Fidel Castro's regime to reject Soviet meddling in the Western Hemisphere.

Guevara, a soldier of fortune and confidant of Prime Minister Fidel Castro, spoke after midnight at the opening session of the Communist-accented Latin American Youth Congress.

Rockefeller Flubs 'M' In Nixon Introduction

CHICAGO (AP) — Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York introduced the GOP presidential nominee in glowing terms at the convention Thursday night, but gave him the wrong middle initial.

Rockefeller wound up by presenting "Richard E. Nixon," accenting each syllable and the initial for dramatic effect.

Nixon's middle initial is M for Milhous.

Ike Sees GOP Ballot Victory

DENVER (AP) — President Eisenhower says Richard M. Nixon and Henry Cabot Lodge face a struggle right down to Election Day. But he expresses confidence the Republican ticket will defeat the Democrats in November.

Eisenhower predicted a tough struggle and GOP victory in a congratulatory telegram Thursday night to Vice President Nixon, the Republican presidential nominee, and Lodge, his running mate.

The message was dispatched to the candidates at the party's Chicago convention as soon as it became apparent that Lodge, U. S. ambassador to the United Nations would be unopposed for the vice presidential nomination. Nixon formally won the No. 1 spot on the ticket Wednesday evening.

Eisenhower, here for a visit with his seriously ill mother-in-law after addressing the convention on Tuesday night, stressed what is expected to be the dominant theme of the Nixon-Lodge campaign — what the President termed a background of wisdom and experience in government affairs.

The President watched the nomination of Lodge on television after approving a $53,200,000 loan to Peru to spur development of that country's economy. The step was a forerunner of the goodwill aid program the President is planning for Latin American nations generally.

The loan is being extended by the Export-Import Bank.

Eisenhower will leave Denver by jet plane Saturday morning and return to Newport, R. I., for another week of the vacation he interrupted to travel to Chicago and Denver.

Stark Vice Jury May Be Released

CANTON, Ohio (AP) — James Tidball, foreman of the special grand jury investigating gambling and vice in Stark County, says he will ask Monday that the jury be dismissed.

Tidball said Thursday he believes the jury, ordered a year ago by Gov. Michael V. DiSalle, no longer serves a useful purpose.

The request for dismissal will go to Common Pleas Judge George N. Graham, who is on vacation this week. The jury has not met for several weeks.

Ohio Atty. Gen. Mark McElroy said in Columbus he had heard nothing of plans to disband the jury. He indicated he will discuss the matter with Judge Graham.

The state's probe here has cost $88,000 and resulted in 16 indictments. Thirteen persons were charged with knowingly permitting gambling on their property in Massillon. Seven pleaded guilty and were fined. Three were found innocent, two cases were dismissed, and one remaining case probably will not be tried because the property owner lives in another state.

Scandinavia Hits Ike For Blast At Socialism

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — The Scandinavian press today charged President Eisenhower with risking U. S. relations with foreign friends to make political capital at home.

In their second day of heated comment, Swedish and Danish newspapers said the President had blundered and didn't know what he was talking about in his remarks to a Republican party gathering in Chicago Wednesday.

Advocating a middle-of-the-road policy, Eisenhower cited the "soaring record of suicides, drunkenness and lack of ambition" in a friendly European nation with a Socialist system. He didn't name the country, but Norway, Sweden and Denmark all have socialist governments.

Man Finds Wreck Of Plane Missing Since 1943 Flight

FRESNO, Calif. (AP)—The case of another long-missing and perhaps forgotten World War II bomber appears to have been solved. The remains of a two-engine bomber were discovered in a remote mountain lake Wednesday.

The case is similar to the discovery of a B24 in the Libyan desert last year.

A log book found near the half-submerged plane bore the name of William T. Cronin. Cronin, a second lieutenant from Olean, N. Y., was the navigator of one of two military planes that vanished Dec. 6, 1943, on training flights from Fresno's Hammer Field.

Others aboard Cronin's plane were Lt. Ellis H. Fish of Minneapolis; Lt. Charles W. Turvey of Reesville (Clinton County), Ohio; Lt. Robert M. Hester of West Los Angeles, Calif., Sgt. Howard A. Wandpke of Toledo, Ohio, and Sgt. Robert O. Bursey of Rutland, Vt.

Ranger Leroy Brock, who found the wreckage in Le Conte Lake at the 11,000-foot level of Kings Canyon National Park, said the only other things he found were an open parachute, a brief case and a flight boot with the remains of a foot.

Crucible Adds Motor Grade Silicon Steel

The Crucible Steel Co., leading producer of specialty steels, announced that M-27 — motor grade silicon steel — has been added to its product line at Midland. Mill orders for strip in the standard gauge and sizes will be accepted by all 37 Crucible branch sales offices.

Violence Hits Chicago Area

CHICAGO (AP) — Two gangs of negro teen-agers, some armed with guns, others with crude weapons, clashed on a West Side street corner Thursday night in what police called a vengeance fight. Before it was over one youth lay dead, another injured.

Negroes and white persons hurled rocks and insults at each other at a swimming pool and police rounded up more members of a Negro gang said to be responsible for a series of rapes and robberies in Lincoln Park on the North Side.

About 25 members of the Egyptian Cobras and Vice Lords gangs participated in the street clash which was marked by gunfire.

Richard Parks, 16, died with a bullet in the chest. Sammy Mitchell, also 16, suffered a bullet wound in the shoulder. Both were members of the Vice Lords.

Police seized one of the Egyptian Cobras, Robert Lewis, 15, who was carrying a .22-caliber rifle. Lewis, police said, admitted the shootings which he said was in retaliation for Parks hurling a brick at him earlier in the day.

Two other members of the Cobras also were seized and held without charge. The other gang members fled when police arrived.

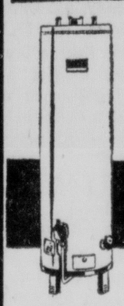

In another move, police hauled about 15 members of the Vandaleers gang in for a showup. Five members of the Vandaleers have been indicted for rape, robbery and assault after they allegedly beat two white men with baseball bats and raped their pregnant wives Tuesday night in Lincoln Park.

At the showup, several victims of recent robberies and assaults in the Lincoln Park area identified several youths as their assailants, police said. The youths were held for further questioning.

Gas Blast Hits Home, 14 Hurt

NEW KENSINGTON, Pa. (AP) — At least 14 persons were injured Thursday night when a gas explosion ripped apart a two-story building, hurling brick and cinder blocks as far as a half city square.

Four members of a family in the shattered home and three from an adjacent house, damaged in the blast, were admitted to Citizens Hospital where they are in "satisfactory" condition.

Fire Chief Edward Clawson said three of the injured had to be dug out of the debris.

Two of the city's fire companies, police and Civil Defense workers rushed to the scene about a block from the main business district when the blast let go at about 9:45 p.m.

Two bulldozers and three wrecking trucks helped to remove debris so workers could reach the injured.

Six houses surrounding the house had windows blown out and suffered other damage. Several pieces of lumber were driven through the siding of a frame house nearby.

It was reported one family, which had just moved in yesterday, had the gas turned on about 5:30 p.m. and then noticed a leak after the hot water tank was lighted.

A shutoff valve reportedly was missing from one of the gas lines. The gas was turned off and the valve installed.

SEARCHERS SIFT the debris of a New Kensington (Pa.) home devastated by a natural gas explosion that injured at least 14 persons and reduced the two-story duplex to a pile of boards and broken glass. (UPI Telephoto)

She first lost it less than two years after her marriage while digging in her garden. Twenty years later her husband found the ring. Less than two years it was lost again.

Panhandler Gets Taken By Man's 'Sob Story'

BALTIMORE (AP) — As Lee Poist, a soft drink supervisor, sat in a truck the other day, a man approached and asked him for money.

To teach the man a lesson, Poist thought, he poured out his own sob story about how tough things were financially. Then he gasped as the panhandler pulled out a roll of $17 and peeled off $1 for Poist.

Poist says he'll keep it for life.

New York was the fifth largest state, behind Virginia, Pennsylvania, North Carolina and Massachusets, in the first census in 1790.

Nixon

would dash our people's high hopes for a better life."

Turning to foreign affairs, Nixon said that at the Democratic convention in Los Angeles, "we heard that American prestige is at an all-time low."

"This is my answer," Nixon said.

"I say that at a time the Communists are running us down abroad, it is time to speak up for America at home.

"While it is dangerous to see nothing wrong in America, it is just as wrong to refuse to recognize what is right about America."

Echoing a theme popular among Republican orators this week, Nixon, 47, derided Kennedy, 43, for saying that the world needs young leadership:

It was not older leaders like French President Charles de Gaulle and British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan but Kennedy "who made the rash and impulsive suggestion that President Eisenhower could have apologized or sent regrets to Mr. Khrushchev for the U2 flights."

Kennedy has said "the President should have expressed regret over the crash of the U2 in Soviet territory rather than issue a statement that turned out to be a lie."

In discussing his proposed war against tyranny, poverty, and hunger, Nixon said "our answer to the threat of the Communist revolution is renewed devotion to the great ideals of the American revolution."

"When Mr. Khrushchev says our grandchildren will live under communism," Nixon said, "let us say his grandchildren will live in freedom.

"When Mr. Khrushchev says the Monroe Doctrine is dead in the Americas, we say the doctrine of freedom applies everywhere in the world."

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — Daniel J. Murphy Jr., manager of the district Social Security Office, says a lot of young people have poor memories when applying for a Social Security card.

Lodge To Quit U.N. Post For Election Push

CHICAGO (AP)—Henry Cabot Lodge, a blueblooded diplomat from Boston, took his place beside Richard M. Nixon today in the fight to keep Republicans at the nation's helm.

Nominated without opposition Thursday night as the GOP vice presidential candidate, Lodge pledged to "expend every ounce of energy" to help the Republicans to victory.

Nixon, the Republican presidential nominee, had picked Lodge as his running mate after a conference with party leaders.

Lodge, the chief U.S. spokesman at the United Nations, arranged to go with Nixon to a meeting of the Republican National Committee to lay out campaign plans and then to sit in on a news conference called by Nixon.

The latest word from Lodge was that he planned to resign his U.N. post next month, although White House press secretary James Hagerty said Thursday he saw no need for such action.

Lodge was presented to the final session of the Republican National Convention as a man who has been "tested and proved in the fires of today's world."

In accepting the vice-presidential nomination, he said the "life and death struggle" between the Communists and the free world gives this year's election "its compelling, overwhelming importance to us and the free world."

No one, he said, is so well fitted as Nixon to represent this country "in the turmoil of world politics." In the platform adopted by the convention, he said, the Republicans have the program the country needs.

Lodge, 58, was placed in nomination by Rep. Walter Judd of Minnesota, the convention keynoter, who was favored by many Mid-westerners for Nixon's running mate.

In 1952 it was Lodge who managed Eisenhower's successful campaign to win the GOP presidential nomination from the late Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio.

In the same year Lodge lost his seat in the U.S. Senate to John F. Kennedy, now the Democratic candidate for president.

Farm Bureau Reports Plans To Study Taxes

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Farm Bureau Federation announced today that its board of trustees had approved a special study of Ohio's real and personal property tax program.

Wendell Weller of Urbana, vice president of the farm organization, said the federation felt such a study would be a long step forward toward helping the state equalize tax collections "and perhaps bring Ohio even more revenue in the bargain."

"The study will compare Ohio's tax program with other states and explore possibilities for revenue which the farm bureau federation can recommend in place of adding taxes on the already overburdened real estate tax demand," Weller said.

The trustees appointed a tax consultant from Ohio State University's College of Commerce to aid in the project.

Brake Failure Blamed For Walnut St. Mishap

Brake failure was blamed for a crash Thursday at 12:17 p. m. on Walnut St. at Bradshaw Ave. in which an auto rammed the rear of another halted for a traffic signal.

A 1955 four-door sedan driven by Harry D. Merrick, 16, of Carrollton R. D. 1 struck a halted 1958 two-door operated by C. L. Brown, 44, of Alliance, officers said.

Merrick told police he was driving downgrade on St. Clair and preparing to turn onto Walnut St. when his brakes failed. He said he was unable to pull into the opposite lane because of oncoming traffic, so he hit the rear of the halted Brown auto. The crash caused heavy damage to the front end of the Carrollton car and also damaged the rear of the Alliance auto, police said.

A total of $173.65 has been paid so far to Hancock County wool growers in the national wool program for the 1959 marketing year, Mrs. Norma Murray, office manager of the County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee, said today.

The payments now being made were earned on marketing of wool and unshorn lambs during the period of April 1, 1959 through March 31, 1960.

Payments are being made now on applications received up to May 1, 1960, Mrs. Murray said. The 1960 marketing year will continue until March 31, 1961, and payments for marketing during that period will be made next summer.

Perfume 'Round the Clock

Q.—Dear Jane: I adore perfume, but for some reason or other its fragrance just does not last on me. I have told several of my friends that I want a new perfume, but first I must find out about a lasting one.—Mrs. G. B.

A.—A particularly good idea for women who claim that perfume does not "stay with them" is a Liquid Skin Sachet. It smooths on the skin very easily, and lingers longer because of its sachet base. It has a slower rate of diffusion and evaporation than any other type of fragrance and was originated by Houbigant. Try their Chantilly Liquid Skin Sachet. Only $2.50 plus tax at BLOOR'S PHARMACY

Wool Producers Earn $173 In Federal Funds

A total of $173.65 has been paid so far to Hancock County wool growers in the national wool program for the 1959 marketing year, Mrs. Norma Murray, office manager of the County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee, said today.

The payments now being made were earned on marketing of wool and unshorn lambs during the period of April 1, 1959 through March 31, 1960.

On shorn wool, the rate of payment is 43.2 per cent of the grower's net proceeds from wool marketings, or $43.20 per $100 received. For unshorn lambs, the rate is 75 cents per hundred-weight for the liveweight of lambs sold.

Payments are being made now on applications received up to May 1, 1960, Mrs. Murray said. The 1960 marketing year will continue until March 31, 1961, and payments for marketing during that period will be made next summer.

Perfume 'Round the Clock

Q.—Dear Jane: I adore perfume, but for some reason or other its fragrance just does not last on me. I have told several of my friends that I want a new perfume, but first I must find out about a lasting one.—Mrs. G. B.

A.—A particularly good idea for women who claim that perfume does not "stay with them" is a Liquid Skin Sachet. It smooths on the skin very easily, and lingers longer because of its sachet base. It has a slower rate of diffusion and evaporation than any other type of fragrance and was originated by Houbigant. Try their Chantilly Liquid Skin Sachet. Only $2.50 plus tax at BLOOR'S PHARMACY

'Checkers Speech' Recalled

Nixon Faced Crisis In '52

(Richard Nixon enters the presidential campaign with some formidable assets — but he has also left a backtrail strewn with political enemies. This is another in a series of articles.)

By SAUL PETT

CHICAGO (AP) — It was an extraordinary night in the history of politics and the performing arts.

It was Sept. 23, 1952 and, from a television studio in Los Angeles, the Republican candidate for vice president of the United States was, it seemed, baring his soul and emptying his pockets.

"I am going at this time to give this television and radio audience a complete financial history; everything I've earned; everything I've spent; everything I owe."

At the moment, Richard Milhouse Nixon, only two years a senator and six years a politician, hung by his thumbs from a rope about to snap.

Would Richard Nixon be able to explain the $18,000 "Nixon fund" contributed by California supporters? Would Richard Nixon, aged 39, who had come up high and fast, now be dropped into political darkness or would he be able to climb back to safety; would Richard Nixon, candidate of the party set to "clean up the mess in Washington," resign or be dumped off the ticket by Dwight D. Eisenhower?

Nixon stared earnestly at the camera as though it were an old friend, suddenly grown cold and suspicious, who was about to turn his back on him.

Nixon said he had never made personal use of the fund, that it had been used only to cover political expenses, that no contributor had ever received special consideration from him as senator.

He described in painful detail his career, his finances, his family situation, the mortgages. The houses they bought. The borrowed money. His daughters' little cocker spaniel, Checkers, which he would never give up, no matter what.

And as the camera dwelled on his wife, he said:

"Well, that's about it. That's what we have and that's what we owe. It isn't very much but Pat and I have the satisfaction that every dime that we've got is honestly ours. I should say this—that Pat doesn't have a mink coat. But she does have a respectable Republican cloth coat. And I always tell her that she'd look good in anything."

The telegrams poured in by the thousands. A change of heart came over Republican leaders and newspapers which had demanded his scalp. Dwight D. Eisenhower was convinced. Richard Nixon remained on the ticket.

The "Checkers speech" was more than just a passing crisis in the life of Richard Nixon. It probably helps to explain why even today the feeling that surrounds him is high, intense and sharply divided. He is a man who has been involved in many highly emotional moments recorded on the national cardiograph.

There were the campaigns of 1952 and 1954.

Richard Nixon, the "man who had trapped Alger Hiss," was swinging wide and hard.

He repeatedly charged the Democrats with being "soft on communism." He said Secretary of State Dean Acheson suffered from "color blindness—a form of pink eye toward the Communist threat in the United States."

He called Adlai Stevenson "Adlai the appeaser — who got a Ph.D. from Dean Acheson's college of cowardly Communist containment."

In 1954, he said Harry Truman, Stevenson and Acheson were "traitors to the high principles in which many of the nation's Democrats believed." A coast to coast storm blew up over the use of the word, "traitor."

Nixon protested that he had said only that they were traitors to their party, not their country. But it was 1954 and the nation was still shaken by a divisive tremor called "McCarthyism" and the word "traitor" in any context had a special impact.

From the standpoint of his morale, 1954 was "the worst of Nixon's first 12 years in politics," wrote Earl Mazo, who apparently was given more time with the vice president than any other biographer. Nixon even talked about retiring from public life.

It had been a rough year, politically and personally. The Republicans lost seats in Congress. And there had been incidents.

In his home town, Whittier, Calif., a citizens group killed a move to name a street after the vice president. At his alma mater, Whittier College, where he was to deliver the commencement address, several seniors protested. A separate receiving line had to be created for those (it turned out to be two) students who preferred not to shake Nixon's hand.

Delinquency Case Brings Jail Term

A steubenville man was given a year in the County Jail Thursday by Juvenile Judge Louis Tobin for contributing to the delinquency of a 14-year-old East Liverpool girl but his companion was freed when found not involved.

William E. Houchin, 22, who has a child but is separated from his wife, was given a suspension of nine months of the sentence providing he does not associate with an under-age girl.

A contributing charge against Edward Cochran, 23, also of Steubenville, was dismissed by the court after investigation showed he was merely a passenger in Houchin's car when they were arrested at 1:17 a. m. July 17 with the girl.

The girl, considered a delinquent because she was out after curfew, refused to testify for herself and was turned over to the County Welfare Department for disposition Aug. 18. The department meanwhile will investigate her background and conditions at her home, where she resided with her mother.

Houchin still has a date in Municipal Court, as he was also accused of carrying a concealed weapon — a gun was found in the car — and for driving without an operator's license.

Kiwanis Guest Discusses Impressions Of Venezuela

Venezuelans are a study in contrast, the Rev. Harold Eller, former area minister, told the Kiwanis Club Thursday afternoon at the Travelers Hotel. He has been operating a school there for the Bethlehem Steel Co.

The natives are interesting because of their deep feelings, changing moods and attitude toward life, the former pastor of the Yellow Creek Presbyterian Church said.

Although there are many Indians, Negros and Spanish, most of the natives are a mixture of the races.

The country has more of a race problem than in America although it denies this, Rev. Eller said, explaining Venezuelans use shades of color to determine their standings.

There is no middle class — the people either being rich or very poor, but even the destitute have visions of being rich tomorrow. Very few ever think of just making a living, he said.

Because of the country's temperature range of 70 to 90 the year around, even the poverty-stricken can exist without money. Only a few clothes are needed and a fish and a wild pineapple can make a meal, Rev. Eller said.

Because of the climate, it is not uncommon to see girls up to 6 and boys up to 10 going naked, even in the cities. The adults are more modest, Rev. Eller pointed out, adding, "The women are even more modest than some women here."

The natives love gambling and have virtually no regard for money which causes one of the nation's biggest problems.

Because of their attitude, virtually everything must be imported and prices are extremely high, citing butter at $1.50 a pound.

Soon after a native gets a job and makes a few dollars, he becomes dissatisfied and wants "to live it up in the cities," Rev. Eller asserted. Despite encouragement from the government with tax-free land for farming, those who start farms generally abandon them after making a profit for a year or so, and then go to the cities.

Another reason for the high prices is the natives' love of bargaining. Merchants will ask three to five times the value of an item in order to bargain.

"If you accept the first price, they are not sorry about cheating you but unhappy because they think they could have gotten more," Rev. Eller continued.

Rev. Eller said he believes the Venezuelans are changing their attitude toward Fidel Castro. In the beginning, the natives and Cubans in the country regarded him almost as a god.

However, Castro's attitude toward the United States has changed the thinking of the people, lowering their estimate of the Cuban leader. The government, which is friendly to America, has been warning its people the country cannot get along without the United States.

The Cuban leader's stand on oil also has hurt since it can affect Venezuela directly, Rev. Eller pointed out. Much of the oil is pumped in Venezuela but is refined in Cuba. If Cuba halts oil refining, the result will affect Venezuela, he explained.

Rev. Eller went to Venezuela eight years ago to set up a school for children of American employes. The firm also operates a school for native children, provides housing, recreation and medical and dental care for the employes.

Americans are in supervisory posts with most of the work being done by the natives. The Venezuelan government insists three natives be hired for each American employed.

Iron ore is mined from a mountain in the Venezuelan jungle and then hauled by train to a river port 35 miles away where it is transferred to river boats for a 250-mile trip to an ocean port.

Rev. Eller was introduced by Dr. Roland Stover, program chairman. William Porter, president, presided.

Youth Held In Attack At Geneva-On-The-Lake

ASHTABULA, Ohio (AP)—A 17-year-old Cleveland youth has been arrested in nearby Geneva-on-the-Lake and accused of assaulting a 20-year-old girl who lost her left eye. The attack occurred last Saturday night, two miles south of the Ashtabula County resort, according to Mayor Wilson W. Finely. The mayor said the boy could give no reason for the assault on the girl he had met that afternoon and arranged for a date.

The girl, from Hubbard, was taken to Ashtabula General Hospital and then transferred to Youngstown North Side Hospital, where the eye was removed. The youth has been taken to Juvenile Court in Jefferson to face assault charges.

Vote Is Sought On Initiation Fees Of Pottery Union

Local Union 218 at Torrance, Calif., has requested a referendum on the new constitution of the International Brotherhood of Operative Potters, seeking to amend the section that specifies the share of initiation fees paid to the international.

It notified IBOP headquarters of the request to change a sentence in the constitution to read "50 cents of the initiation fee shall be paid to the international union" instead of "one third of the initiation fee shall be paid to the international union."

The Potters Herald, union newspaper, published official notice of the request Thursday and pointed out the new constitution provides a referendum sought by locals must be concurred in "by at least 10 local unions in 5 states, territories or provinces, consisting of at least 10 per cent of the membership of the Brotherhood in good standing."

The new constitution was adopted at the annual convention earlier this month at Seattle. Previously, seven locals were permitted to request a referendum and there were no limitations on their locations or membership.

'Checkers Speech' Recalled

Nixon Faced Crisis In '52

(Richard Nixon enters the presidential campaign with some formidable assets — but he has also left a backtrail strewn with political enemies. This is another in a series of articles.)

By SAUL PETT

CHICAGO (AP) — It was an extraordinary night in the history of politics and the performing arts.

It was Sept. 23, 1952 and, from a television studio in Los Angeles, the Republican candidate for vice president of the United States was, it seemed, baring his soul and emptying his pockets.

"I am going at this time to give this television and radio audience a complete financial history; everything I've earned; everything I've spent; everything I owe."

At the moment, Richard Milhouse Nixon, only two years a senator and six years a politician, hung by his thumbs from a rope about to snap.

Would Richard Nixon be able to explain the $18,000 "Nixon fund" contributed by California supporters? Would Richard Nixon, aged 39, who had come up high and fast, now be dropped into political darkness or would he be able to climb back to safety; would Richard Nixon, candidate of the party set to "clean up the mess in Washington," resign or be dumped off the ticket by Dwight D. Eisenhower?

Nixon stared earnestly at the camera as though it were an old friend, suddenly grown cold and suspicious, who was about to turn his back on him.

Nixon said he had never made personal use of the fund, that it had been used only to cover political expenses, that no contributor had ever received special consideration from him as senator.

He described in painful detail his career, his finances, his family situation, the mortgages. The houses they bought. The borrowed money. His daughters' little cocker spaniel, Checkers, which he would never give up, no matter what.

And as the camera dwelled on his wife, he said:

"Well, that's about it. That's what we have and that's what we owe. It isn't very much but Pat and I have the satisfaction that every dime that we've got is honestly ours. I should say this—that Pat doesn't have a mink coat. But she does have a respectable Republican cloth coat. And I always tell her that she'd look good in anything."

The telegrams poured in by the thousands. A change of heart came over Republican leaders and newspapers which had demanded his scalp. Dwight D. Eisenhower was convinced. Richard Nixon remained on the ticket.

The "Checkers speech" was more than just a passing crisis in the life of Richard Nixon. It probably helps to explain why even today the feeling that surrounds him is high, intense and sharply divided. He is a man who has been involved in many highly emotional moments recorded on the national cardiograph.

There were the campaigns of 1952 and 1954.

Richard Nixon, the "man who had trapped Alger Hiss," was swinging wide and hard.

He repeatedly charged the Democrats with being "soft on communism." He said Secretary of State Dean Acheson suffered from "color blindness—a form of pink eye toward the Communist threat in the United States."

He called Adlai Stevenson "Adlai the appeaser — who got a Ph.D. from Dean Acheson's college of cowardly Communist containment."

In 1954, he said Harry Truman, Stevenson and Acheson were "traitors to the high principles in which many of the nation's Democrats believed." A coast to coast storm blew up over the use of the word, "traitor."

Nixon protested that he had said only that they were traitors to their party, not their country. But it was 1954 and the nation was still shaken by a divisive tremor called "McCarthyism" and the word "traitor" in any context had a special impact.

From the standpoint of his morale, 1954 was "the worst of Nixon's first 12 years in politics," wrote Earl Mazo, who apparently was given more time with the vice president than any other biographer. Nixon even talked about retiring from public life.

It had been a rough year, politically and personally. The Republicans lost seats in Congress. And there had been incidents.

In his home town, Whittier, Calif., a citizens group killed a move to name a street after the vice president. At his alma mater, Whittier College, where he was to deliver the commencement address, several seniors protested. A separate receiving line had to be created for those (it turned out to be two) students who preferred not to shake Nixon's hand.

Delinquency Case Brings Jail Term

A steubenville man was given a year in the County Jail Thursday by Juvenile Judge Louis Tobin for contributing to the delinquency of a 14-year-old East Liverpool girl but his companion was freed when found not involved.

William E. Houchin, 22, who has a child but is separated from his wife, was given a suspension of nine months of the sentence providing he does not associate with an under-age girl.

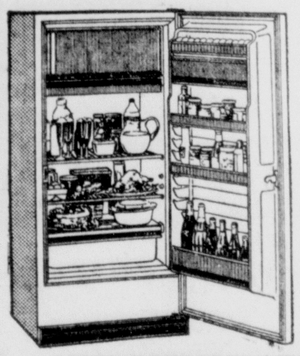

A contributing charge against Edward Cochran, 23, also of Steubenville, was dismissed by the court after investigation showed he was merely a passenger in Houchin's car when they were arrested at 1:17 a. m. July 17 with the girl.

The girl, considered a delinquent because she was out after curfew, refused to testify for herself and was turned over to the County Welfare Department for disposition Aug. 18. The department meanwhile will investigate her background and conditions at her home, where she resided with her mother.

Houchin still has a date in Municipal Court, as he was also accused of carrying a concealed weapon — a gun was found in the car — and for driving without an operator's license.

Former Pastor Speaker

Kiwanis Guest Discusses Impressions Of Venezuela

Venezuelans are a study in contrast, the Rev. Harold Eller, former area minister, told the Kiwanis Club Thursday afternoon at the Travelers Hotel. He has been operating a school there for the Bethlehem Steel Co.

The natives are interesting because of their deep feelings, changing moods and attitude toward life, the former pastor of the Yellow Creek Presbyterian Church said.

Although there are many Indians, Negros and Spanish, most of the natives are a mixture of the races.

The country has more of a race problem than in America although it denies this, Rev. Eller said, explaining Venezuelans use shades of color to determine their standings.

There is no middle class — the people either being rich or very poor, but even the destitute have visions of being rich tomorrow. Very few ever think of just making a living, he said.

Because of the country's temperature range of 70 to 90 the year around, even the poverty-stricken can exist without money. Only a few clothes are needed and a fish and a wild pineapple can make a meal, Rev. Eller said.

Because of the climate, it is not uncommon to see girls up to 6 and boys up to 10 going naked, even in the cities. The adults are more modest, Rev. Eller pointed out, adding, "The women are even more modest than some women here."

The natives love gambling and have virtually no regard for money which causes one of the nation's biggest problems.

Because of their attitude, virtually everything must be imported and prices are extremely high, citing butter at $1.50 a pound.

Soon after a native gets a job and makes a few dollars, he becomes dissatisfied and wants "to live it up in the cities," Rev. Eller asserted. Despite encouragement from the government with tax-free land for farming, those who start farms generally abandon them after making a profit for a year or so, and then go to the cities.

Another reason for the high prices is the natives' love of bargaining. Merchants will ask three to five times the value of an item in order to bargain.

"If you accept the first price, they are not sorry about cheating you but unhappy because they think they could have gotten more," Rev. Eller continued.

Rev. Eller said he believes the Venezuelans are changing their attitude toward Fidel Castro. In the beginning, the natives and Cubans in the country regarded him almost as a god.

However, Castro's attitude toward the United States has changed the thinking of the people, lowering their estimate of the Cuban leader. The government, which is friendly to America, has been warning its people the country cannot get along without the United States.

The Cuban leader's stand on oil also has hurt since it can affect Venezuela directly, Rev. Eller pointed out. Much of the oil is pumped in Venezuela but is refined in Cuba. If Cuba halts oil refining, the result will affect Venezuela, he explained.

Rev. Eller went to Venezuela eight years ago to set up a school for children of American employes. The firm also operates a school for native children, provides housing, recreation and medical and dental care for the employes.

Americans are in supervisory posts with most of the work being done by the natives. The Venezuelan government insists three natives be hired for each American employed.

Iron ore is mined from a mountain in the Venezuelan jungle and then hauled by train to a river port 35 miles away where it is transferred to river boats for a 250-mile trip to an ocean port.

Rev. Eller was introduced by Dr. Roland Stover, program chairman. William Porter, president, presided.

Youth Held In Attack At Geneva-On-The-Lake

ASHTABULA, Ohio (AP)—A 17-year-old Cleveland youth has been arrested in nearby Geneva-on-the-Lake and accused of assaulting a 20-year-old girl who lost her left eye. The attack occurred last Saturday night, two miles south of the Ashtabula County resort, according to Mayor Wilson W. Finely. The mayor said the boy could give no reason for the assault on the girl he had met that afternoon and arranged for a date.

The girl, from Hubbard, was taken to Ashtabula General Hospital and then transferred to Youngstown North Side Hospital, where the eye was removed. The youth has been taken to Juvenile Court in Jefferson to face assault charges.

Vote Is Sought On Initiation Fees Of Pottery Union

Local Union 218 at Torrance, Calif., has requested a referendum on the new constitution of the International Brotherhood of Operative Potters, seeking to amend the section that specifies the share of initiation fees paid to the international.

It notified IBOP headquarters of the request to change a sentence in the constitution to read "50 cents of the initiation fee shall be paid to the international union" instead of "one third of the initiation fee shall be paid to the international union."

The Potters Herald, union newspaper, published official notice of the request Thursday and pointed out the new constitution provides a referendum sought by locals must be concurred in "by at least 10 local unions in 5 states, territories or provinces, consisting of at least 10 per cent of the membership of the Brotherhood in good standing."

The new constitution was adopted at the annual convention earlier this month at Seattle. Previously, seven locals were permitted to request a referendum and there were no limitations on their locations or membership.

TV Violence Can Cause Delinquency

All efforts at children's education, secular or religious, assume that the ideas and feelings in the minds and hearts of children now tend to become their deeds later. Indeed, your common sense and mine make us believe we can help shape the behavior and ideals of our children tomorrow by controlling what they see, hear and feel today. Accordingly, we try to expose our children to examples of kindness and compassion, co-operation and deep consideration of every other human being as a very precious person. How difficult this is to do when right at home he can turn on the TV and enjoy, for several hours a day, day after day, from the time he is two or younger, interesting programs of violence, gore and horror.

Garry C. Meyers

ASK ONE OF these youngsters from three to seven or eight to tell you a story out of his head or draw you a story on paper. Chances are the heroes in these stories will be stabbers, shooters, killers.

In a letter to the editor of one of the big circulation magazines a mother says she showed her five-year-old son the house they once lived in. The boy quickly said that when he grew up and got married, he was going to kill the people in that house so he could live in it.

The astonished mother explained how wrong that would be and that we don't do such things.

"Oh, yes," the lad replied, "that's the way they do it now. They shoot people all the time on TV."

Yet most broadcasting officials would have you believe that TV programs of violence have nothing to do with juvenile delinquency.

EVEN SOME educational writers have stated that there is no proof that programs of violence on TV can cause delinquency.

Yet these same writers will cite scattered cases in which young children have increased their vocabularies from viewing TV or that older children have read more of certain kinds of books, thanks to a TV program.

Why do they never cite instances reported by judges and psychiatrists in which a child who is apprehended as a murderer says he got the idea and technique from TV?

Why do we have to wait for proof when common sense declares that anything a young child sees and hears has a lot to do with his later ideals and behavior?

Khrushchev Answer Set

Kennedy, Johnson To Air 'Shock' Reply For Russia

By G. MILTON KELLY

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (AP)—Sens. John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson, Democratic running mates for President and vice president, meet tonight to discuss a proposed military spending shock treatment reply to insults from Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev.

It will be their first meeting since they accepted nominations at the national convention.

A move to force Republican hands on the issue on how much the United States must spend for arms to be safe ranks high on their agenda. They have other things to discuss, however.

Kennedy said Thursday more defense money is needed. But he mentioned no dollar total. Averell Harriman, one of his top foreign policy advisers and the man many expect will be Kennedy's secretary of state if the Democrats win, has advocated a two billion dollar extra appropriation in the Congress session starting Aug. 8. Republican Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York has advocated even more—3½ billions.

Harriman's idea, he told newsmen here after a visit with Kennedy last week, is to earmark a couple of billions for specific military purposes as a "jarring" answer to the insults Khrushchev has heaped on this country since the U-2 spy plane incident. Harriman's philosophy is that Khrushchev understands strength — and that we are not so strong as we should be militarily.

Johnson also has been critical of the Eisenhower administration's defense program. He will fly here tonight, stopping en route to visit former President Harry S. Truman.

Sources close to Kennedy said the two standard bearers will discuss the whole matter at length. Kennedy will meet Johnson at the airport, and drive him to his home for an evening of talk and an overnight stay. They plan to sit up late, and have a news conference Saturday morning.

Adlai Stevenson, Democratic presidential nominee in 1952 and 1956, is due this afternoon but apparently has no plan to get together with Kennedy until Saturday after Johnson leaves.

Oil Official Clarifies Truck Drivers' Status

Possibilities of a strike of district gasoline truck drivers will be determined by negotiations of their Youngstown union, rather than at Cleveland, George Willshaw said today in clarifying the labor situation of the Standard Oil Co. of Ohio and the Independent Petroleum Workers Union.

Some 15 district gas stations would be affected if the Youngstown local decides to strike, but negotiations now going on at Cleveland would not apply locally. The Cleveland local has threatened a strike for Saturday midnight to enforce wage demands.

The Youngstown local is made up of drivers who haul gasoline from the Niles pipeline terminal to district gas stations. Willshaw is dealers' salesman at Standard's local bulk terminal.

The U. S. customs duty on a foreign-made car is 8½ per cent of the vehicle's appraised value.

Airport Study Sought

CINCINNATI (AP)—City Manager C. A. Harrell has asked City Council for $2,000 for the city's share in a study of the possible use of a regional airport in southwest Ohio. Dayton officials proposed the airport halfway between the two cities, which are 50 miles apart. Harrell said Dayton would put up $2,000 for the study and Middletown and Hamilton would contribute $500 apiece.

Potters Union Buys Share In Florida Hotel

The International Brotherhood of Operative Potters is in an association of eight labor unions which announced Thursday the purchase of a Miami Beach hotel which will be used as a home for retired members.

A sales agreement for the President Madison Hotel was signed by the Macomb Corp., representing the Brody family of Miami Beach, which has owned the hotel for 18 years, and the Four Freedoms Hotels, Inc., of New York City.

The IBOP announced several months ago it was one of the participating unions in the Four Freedoms group, explaining the plan would entitle retired potters to live in the hotel at minimum rates but with full hotel accommodations, including meals.

Other unions making up the group are: American Radio Association, International Union of Electrical Workers, International Leathergoods, Plastics and Novelty Workers Union, Textile Workers of America, Aluminum Workers International Union and the Laundry and Dry Cleaning International.

No sale price was disclosed for the 205-room hotel, built in 1939. Four Freedoms officials said the first of the permanent residents will move in by October.

Louis Levine, a public relations man for Four Freedoms, said each union will have its own system of selecting members to live in the President Madison. Unions will be allotted space on the basis of how much money they put into the plan, he added.

He described the President Madison as a "pilot project" and said "the corporation has its eye on other properties if the President Madison plan works out."

Why are some drugs like "ecstasy sauce?"

If you read "Li'l Abner" you may recall how the Gourmet's Club plotted to make "Ecstasy Sauce" from the Yokums' pet pig, Salomey. Recipe: Boil down one hammus alabamus (Salomey) until just one single, solitary delicious drop remains—and that is "Ecstasy Sauce." In terms of food, this is humorously ridiculous, but it's actually routine in the making of drugs. Often hundreds of pounds of raw materials must be processed and reprocessed to obtain one tiny pinch of the active medication. Which helps explain why modern drugs are so potent, and why we pharmacists dispense them only when your physician writes a prescription.

No sale price was disclosed for the 205-room hotel, built in 1939. Four Freedoms officials said the first of the permanent residents will move in by October.

Louis Levine, a public relations man for Four Freedoms, said each union will have its own system of selecting members to live in the President Madison. Unions will be allotted space on the basis of how much money they put into the plan, he added.

He described the President Madison as a "pilot project" and said "the corporation has its eye on other properties if the President Madison plan works out."

Khrushchev Answer Set

Kennedy, Johnson To Air 'Shock' Reply For Russia

By G. MILTON KELLY

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (AP)—Sens. John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson, Democratic running mates for President and vice president, meet tonight to discuss a proposed military spending shock treatment reply to insults from Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev.

It will be their first meeting since they accepted nominations at the national convention.

A move to force Republican hands on the issue on how much the United States must spend for arms to be safe ranks high on their agenda. They have other things to discuss, however.

Kennedy said Thursday more defense money is needed. But he mentioned no dollar total. Averell Harriman, one of his top foreign policy advisers and the man many expect will be Kennedy's secretary of state if the Democrats win, has advocated a two billion dollar extra appropriation in the Congress session starting Aug. 8. Republican Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York has advocated even more—3½ billions.

Harriman's idea, he told newsmen here after a visit with Kennedy last week, is to earmark a couple of billions for specific military purposes as a "jarring" answer to the insults Khrushchev has heaped on this country since the U-2 spy plane incident. Harriman's philosophy is that Khrushchev understands strength — and that we are not so strong as we should be militarily.

Johnson also has been critical of the Eisenhower administration's defense program. He will fly here tonight, stopping en route to visit former President Harry S. Truman.

Sources close to Kennedy said the two standard bearers will discuss the whole matter at length. Kennedy will meet Johnson at the airport, and drive him to his home for an evening of talk and an overnight stay. They plan to sit up late, and have a news conference Saturday morning.

Adlai Stevenson, Democratic presidential nominee in 1952 and 1956, is due this afternoon but apparently has no plan to get together with Kennedy until Saturday after Johnson leaves.

Oil Official Clarifies Truck Drivers' Status

Possibilities of a strike of district gasoline truck drivers will be determined by negotiations of their Youngstown union, rather than at Cleveland, George Willshaw said today in clarifying the labor situation of the Standard Oil Co. of Ohio and the Independent Petroleum Workers Union.

Some 15 district gas stations would be affected if the Youngstown local decides to strike, but negotiations now going on at Cleveland would not apply locally. The Cleveland local has threatened a strike for Saturday midnight to enforce wage demands.

The Youngstown local is made up of drivers who haul gasoline from the Niles pipeline terminal to district gas stations. Willshaw is dealers' salesman at Standard's local bulk terminal.

The U. S. customs duty on a foreign-made car is 8½ per cent of the vehicle's appraised value.

Airport Study Sought

CINCINNATI (AP)—City Manager C. A. Harrell has asked City Council for $2,000 for the city's share in a study of the possible use of a regional airport in southwest Ohio. Dayton officials proposed the airport halfway between the two cities, which are 50 miles apart. Harrell said Dayton would put up $2,000 for the study and Middletown and Hamilton would contribute $500 apiece.

Why are some drugs like "ecstasy sauce?"
If you read "Li'l Abner" you may recall how the Gourmet's Club plotted to make "Ecstasy Sauce" from the Yokums' pet pig, Salomey. Recipe: Boil down one hammus alabamus (Salomey) until just one single, solitary delicious drop remains—and that is "Ecstasy Sauce." In terms of food, this is humorously ridiculous, but it's actually routine in the making of drugs. Often hundreds of pounds of raw materials must be processed and reprocessed to obtain one tiny pinch of the active medication. Which helps explain why modern drugs are so potent, and why we pharmacists dispense them only when your physician writes a prescription.

Out Of The Air

The quadrennial cry for a "streamlining" of political conventions is not properly a question for the radio and television networks to resolve. It is a problem for the political parties.

There are four basic purposes for a national nominating convention: To nominate a candidate for president; to nominate a candidate for vice president; to write a platform; to present the ticket, the platform and the party to the nation against a background of enthusiasm and deep political conviction.

The nominating procedures for president and vice president are self - sustaining in interest and drama.

But interest flags when the convention presents its platform and otherwise offers its image to the television and radio audience.

THERE IS a happy area somewhere between the long moments of convention boredom, on the one hand, and a slick condensation of the convention procedure, on the other.

On the night of Wednesday, July 13, more people were looking at the Democratic National Convention that ever looked at any one event in all history. Nevertheless, the Democrats tried the patience of that incredible audience to the breaking point with weary demonstrations, limp seconding speeches and the revolting massage of egos in the form of nominating speeches for "favorite sons."

The acknowledged clumsiness of the convention procedure is inviting all sorts of "crackpot" suggestions in the nature of well intentioned remedies.

One proposal — and this one is being subscribed to by a number of influential political leaders — is that a national, 50 - state primary election be undertaken.

WHEN YOU point out that the candidates had enough difficulty managing the limited number of state primaries this year, and when you inquire about the resources of money, energy and nerves that might permit them to engage in 50 primaries, there invariably follows the bland reply, "They would do it by television."

This, I suppose, is quite flattering; but since I am a child of the early 20th century, I am not quite sure about this Orwellian suggestion that we replace the county or state caucus with a transistor.

Rather, I am convinced that the managers of political conventions have it within their power and persuasion to make of these phenomena "things of beauty."

It therefore behooves the political parties to present themselves with more crispness. There is undeniable nonsense and tedium which can be eliminated; but there is no justification for complete panic to the end that conventions must be eliminated or displaced by nationwide televised primaries.

Beware the plumber who proposes that the leaking faucet can be eliminated by a nuclear-powered water distillery.

By DAVID BRINKLEY

Political convention oratory, floor demonstrations, platform prose and the other aspects of this Early American ritual have been so lovingly explored by the learned disciplines that there is not a great deal left to say about them.

But there is another ritual here that has not had adequate research, and may therefore be worth a few tentative lines now.

That is the political convention press conference. In the last two or three conventions it has developed a character peculiar to itself, and it is entirely unlike the ordinary, or newsmaking, press conference, where reporters ask questions and get some kind of answers.

The convention press conference uses the same physical form, but otherwise it is basically different in conception and purpose. Its purpose is not to furnish information or to clarify issues of public policy. Its purpose is to push, promote and propagandize a candidate or a point of view.

ITS PURPOSE is to put out the "information" that there is a great billowing enthusiasm for this or that candidate or idea. Once that statement is made, the holder of the press conference steadfastly refuses to say any more, because he does not want the idea (he is pushing) to be mixed up with a lot of other things that might take attention away from it.

After reporters are assembled and the television cameras are heated up, there is a statement, carefully written in a room upstairs and then brought down and read in the most solemn and sincere tones.

Then there are questions and invariably the answers are a repetition of what is in the statement, and nothing is added, because, again, the purpose is to plant in the press and on the air one single idea, and no more.

There was an example on the opening day of the Democratic convention in Los Angeles. The candidates pursuing Kennedy used this press conference device with such persistence and skill that toward nightfall a number of otherwise level-headed people began halfway believing Kennedy might be stopped.

DELEGATES began asking worried questions of each other in the elevators, and there was talk of blocs of votes leaving Kennedy.

Of course it was false, but the press conference device here described did indeed have some effect. Had the race been closer, had Kennedy not been as strong as he was, it might have worked.

Conventions are hazardous enough with the hotel elevators, long hours and an uncertain diet. Here is another hazard, perhaps more serious, that I believe needs to be watched.

College Figure Taken

DiSalle Stays Killer's Death For 2 Months

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—A convicted Cleveland slayer who says he would rather die than serve a life sentence has 60 more days before his wishes may be carried out.

Joseph L. Cosby, 23, scheduled to die tonight in Ohio Penitentiary's electric chair, was given the two-month stay Thursday by Gov. Michael V. DiSalle. The governor said he granted the delay so counsel could seek evidence in the hope of saving Cosby from the chair for the Oct. 10, 1958, holdup slaying of Raymond Mack, a Cleveland shoe store manager.

DiSalle also heard pleas from attorneys and relatives to spare the life of Huston Nelson, 18, scheduled for execution Aug. 5 for the holdup-shooting of Mrs. Bernice Wilson, 61, in her Cincinnati drug store Feb. 9, 1959. The governor, however, did not indicate when he would announce a decision in that case.

DiSalle's ruling in the Cosby case came after Robert Krypansky, attorney for the condemned man, met with the governor and asked more time question George Crew, Cleveland salesman, who said he saw two men flee the shoe store about the time of the killing.

Crew said he did not report the incident because he considered it unimportant.

Cosby claims he shot Mack accidentally when one of two holdup men bumped him as they fled from the store. He said the bump caused the gun he carried to discharge. Cosby claims he was a customer.

During the hearing with Nelson's relatives and attorneys, DiSalle denounced newspaper criticism about his consideration of first-degree murder cases.

"I'd like to have some of these smart editorial writers sit in on some of these hearings and see whether a man's life should be taken."

Cincinnati attorneys pleading for executive clemency for the condemned youth said Nelson obtained a gun from a 28-year-old man who also bought him liquor and gave him drugs.

Present at the hearing were Nelson's parents, Huston Nelson Sr. and Mrs. Doris Hill; his grandmother, Mrs. Mamie Nelson, who raised the youth after his parents separated; an aunt, Mrs. Inez Barns, and the Rev. Robert Reed.

BUMPER TOMATO CROP. Perfect pollination may be the answer to the unusually high number of tomatoes growing on several plants in the backyard garden of Ralph L. Waite, 247 Virginia Ave., Chester. He is pictured with one plant bearing 40 odd-sized tomatoes, considered unusual by growers. Two other plants have 42 and 38 tomatoes, respectively, growing in clusters of a dozen or more. Waite a retired railroader, said the plants appeared to have died sometime ago after they were given a dose of fertilizer but suddenly came to life and are now three to four feet high. In his hand is one of the king-sized "beefsteak" tomatoes plucked from the vine.

Democrats Name Ryan, Ujhelyi To Head Ohio Drive

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Gerald Ryan, deputy Franklin County recorder, and Joe Ujhelyi, Democratic chairman of Lorain County, have been named co-chairmen to head the 1960 Democratic registration drive in Ohio.

State Chairman William L. Coleman, who announced the appointments Thursday, said an intensive registration campaign will be held in September.

In Cleveland, the Democrats named Emil J. Masgay and Bernard Friedman to head the Cuyahoga County drive. The move is said to be an effort to help heal the split between Gov. Michael V. DiSalle and Cuyahoga County Chairman Ray T. Miller Sr.

Masgay, county clerk, is a Miller "regular." Friedman was one of the original supporters of DiSalle in his gubernatorial campaign two years ago.

Both were to fly to Washington today to confer with Robert Kennedy, brother of presidential nominee John F. Kennedy.

Masgay and Friedman will join Ryan and Ujhelyi at the Washington meeting, along with these other registration leaders:

Marguerite Parrish, Dayton, former president of the State Federation of Democratic Women; George Wilson, Cincinnati, member of the Hamilton County Election Board; and Paul Perkins, Canton, Stark County Democratic chairman.

Youngstown and Toledo leaders will meet Robert Kennedy Wednesday in Chicago when he holds a session for western states.

Hancock Dog Warden Clarifies Regulations

Sherman Williams of Lawrenceville, Hancock County dog warden, said today West Virginia law allows dogs, which have been licensed and inoculated against rabies, to run at large.

Although the owners are not required to keep the animals confined if they have complied with the law, they are responsible for any damages caused by the dogs, Williams said.

The dog warden made the statement after Chester Mayor Ray Collins announced earlier this week he planned action against those who permitted their canines to run at large, citing numerous complaints he had received of people being frightened by dogs.

Novelist Dies At 96

NEW YORK (AP) — Ethel Lillian Voynich, 96, whose 19th century novel, "The Gadfly," made her the most celebrated American author behind the Iron Curtain, died Wednesday. She received several tributes recently from the Soviet government for her book, a romantic story of a young Englishman who became a revolutionary hero in 19th century Italy fighting the Hapsburgs.

Fair Trade Hit In Ohio Ruling

CLEVELAND (AP) — Ohio's "fair trade" law, aimed at keeping up prices of name brand products, has been declared unconstitutional.

The ruling Thursday by Common Pleas Judge Eugene R. McNeill, sitting here by assignment from Van Wert County, was the first full-scale test of the new law. It went into effect Oct. 22, 1959 after another fair trade law also was declared unconstitutional a couple of years ago.

The decision was a victory for Hudson Distributors, Inc., cut-rate retailers of name brand cosmetics and drugs. The judge ruled against the Upjohn Co. and Eli Lilly & Co. in a declaratory judgment action to see if the law is legal. He also dismissed the firm's cross-petition asking that their list prices be enforced.

The decision, which probably will be appealed to the Ohio Supreme Court, may influence 31 cases now pending in state courts.

Judge McNeill ruled that the law provides no control over the manufacturer in setting the price. "The very persons who have the most personal interest in the products are granted the right to set its price," he said. Quoting from the Ohio Supreme Court decision which upset the previous law, he said:

". . . In addition, (it) delegates legislative power and discretion to private persons." The judge noted that regardless of other changes in the act, this delegation of legislative authority remains.

The new law holds that a party may remove evidence of the trademark or name and then sell the article at any price. "This is mainly a paper right," Judge McNeill said, "as the proprietor can eliminate this right by making his mark on the merchandise in such a way that it cannot be removed."

Salem Teen-Age Boys Cited For Vandalism

LISBON — Three Salem Boys, 12, 13 and 14, pleaded guilty to destruction of property at a hearing Thursday before Juvenile Judge Louis Tobin.

They upset garbage cans on porches and tore up plants in gardens.

They were placed on probation to their parents, ordered to earn $1 per week in the next 10 weeks and turn it over to the court and they must be at home each night at 9 and attend Sunday School and church each week.

The youths admitted the vandalism and the parents said they paid the householders for the damages.

The youths must also report to Cornelious Csepke, juvenile probation officer, each week until he releases them, according to Judge Tobin, who also required the trio to apologize to the homeowners.

Ohio Traffic Deaths Climb For First 5 Months Of '60

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—There was a lot of tragedy, heartache and human suffering wrapped up today in a single, white sheet of paper issued by the Ohio Department of Highway Safety.

But none of these was visible in the cold, hard statistical tables which made up the department's report on traffic accidents in Ohio for the first five months of this year.

The report listed 61,573 highway accidents, involving 111,960 drivers —causing 708 deaths and injuring 31,296 persons. In the same period last year there were 601 persons killed and 28,408 injured, in 56,545 accidents.

The death rate for the five months this year is 18 per cent above the same period last year. Mileage rates are up, of course, and probably there are more drivers this year than last—but still the rate is up. The report said the fatal accident rate per 100 million car-miles in the five months this year was 4 compared to 3.3 last year.

Of the total number of accidents, 49,850 involved collision of one motor vehicle with another, responsible for 307 of the 708 deaths. Collision of motor vehicles with pedestrians, trains, trolley buses, animal-drawn vehicles, bicycles or fixed objects, and accidents involving only one car in which it ran off the road or overturned, accounted for the other deaths.

A total of 140 pedestrians were killed in the five-month period, and 1,683 injured.

Here are some other statistics in the report:

Probably the most dangerous time for drivers is between 3 p. m. and 6 p. m. daily. Of the total accidents, 16,508 happened between these hours.

For the whole week, by far the most accidents happened on Friday and Saturday between the hours of 3 p. m. and 6 p. m.

Of the total of 118,311 vehicles of all types involved in the accidents, 104,314 were passenger cars 7,797 trucks or truck-tractors and 3,528 truck combinations.

Of all accidents, 40,349 took place in daylight and 255 of them were fatal; 20,850 took place in darkness and 349 of them were fatal. Records of times in 374 other accidents were not available.

Wheeling Boys Admit Blaze Crippling Wires

WHEELING, W. Va. (AP) — Two youngsters who went under the Ohio River Bridge to smoke have admitted causing a fire that disrupted telephone, police, fire and news wire communications over a vast area.

Fire Inspector Edgar F. Forsch said the boys, age 13 and 14, admitted they had built a tarpaper shack on one of the bridge pillars and would go there to smoke.

Last Friday the shack caught fire and the fire eventually broke cables owned by the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. and Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. along with police and fire alarm wires.

The break left 1,400 telephone customers in this area without service and AT&T reported news wire trouble from New York to San Francisco.

No charges have been placed against the boys yet.

Public Beaches

- Exercises For Cramps
- Luminous Clocks

Q. Is overcrowding of beaches a health hazard to swimmers?
A. The Public Health Laboratory Service Of England made a 7-year study of this problem. Samples of sea water were collected from over 40 different beaches. The English investigators seemed to agree that while heavily contaminated sea water (but not fresh water) at certain beaches could theoretically cause a great deal of disease, the fact of the matter is that it doesn't.

Q. Are exercises helpful in overcoming cramps and discomfort during certain days?
A. Some doctors advocate stretching exercises for dysmenorrhea (painful menstruation). Others either are not so sure that it helps or attribute the good results simply to enthusiasm for this method of treatment. If exercises help the individual, then it doesn't matter whether there is medical agreement as to the whys and wherefores.

Q. I have had a radium dial clock beside my bed for years. Could such a clock give off enough radiation to cause cancer?

A. The amount of radiation given off by a radium dial clock would not in itself be sufficient to cause harm. However, it adds to the total radiation we receive and in this sense it might be considered undesirable. Man cannot escape some radiation. We are constantly exposed to "background" radiation originating within and above the earth. This amount of radiation — and more — isn't harmful but there is a limit. Because the hazards of radiation are not fully known it is best to avoid unnecessary exposure. A radium dial watch or clock is a drop in the radiation bucket but why add the drop when it isn't necessary?

The quadrennial cry for a "streamlining" of political conventions is not properly a question for the radio and television networks to resolve. It is a problem for the political parties.

There are four basic purposes for a national nominating convention: To nominate a candidate for president; to nominate a candidate for vice president; to write a platform; to present the ticket, the platform and the party to the nation against a background of enthusiasm and deep political conviction.

The nominating procedures for president and vice president are self - sustaining in interest and drama.

But interest flags when the convention presents its platform and otherwise offers its image to the television and radio audience.

THERE IS a happy area somewhere between the long moments of convention boredom, on the one hand, and a slick condensation of the convention procedure, on the other.

On the night of Wednesday, July 13, more people were looking at the Democratic National Convention that ever looked at any one event in all history. Nevertheless, the Democrats tried the patience of that incredible audience to the breaking point with weary demonstrations, limp seconding speeches and the revolting massage of egos in the form of nominating speeches for "favorite sons."

The acknowledged clumsiness of the convention procedure is inviting all sorts of "crackpot" suggestions in the nature of well intentioned remedies.

One proposal — and this one is being subscribed to by a number of influential political leaders — is that a national, 50 - state primary election be undertaken.

WHEN YOU point out that the candidates had enough difficulty managing the limited number of state primaries this year, and when you inquire about the resources of money, energy and nerves that might permit them to engage in 50 primaries, there invariably follows the bland reply, "They would do it by television."

This, I suppose, is quite flattering; but since I am a child of the early 20th century, I am not quite sure about this Orwellian suggestion that we replace the county or state caucus with a transistor.

Rather, I am convinced that the managers of political conventions have it within their power and persuasion to make of these phenomena "things of beauty."

It therefore behooves the political parties to present themselves with more crispness. There is undeniable nonsense and tedium which can be eliminated; but there is no justification for complete panic to the end that conventions must be eliminated or displaced by nationwide televised primaries.

Beware the plumber who proposes that the leaking faucet can be eliminated by a nuclear-powered water distillery.

By DAVID BRINKLEY

Political convention oratory, floor demonstrations, platform prose and the other aspects of this Early American ritual have been so lovingly explored by the learned disciplines that there is not a great deal left to say about them.

But there is another ritual here that has not had adequate research, and may therefore be worth a few tentative lines now.

That is the political convention press conference. In the last two or three conventions it has developed a character peculiar to itself, and it is entirely unlike the ordinary, or newsmaking, press conference, where reporters ask questions and get some kind of answers.

The convention press conference uses the same physical form, but otherwise it is basically different in conception and purpose. Its purpose is not to furnish information or to clarify issues of public policy. Its purpose is to push, promote and propagandize a candidate or a point of view.

ITS PURPOSE is to put out the "information" that there is a great billowing enthusiasm for this or that candidate or idea. Once that statement is made, the holder of the press conference steadfastly refuses to say any more, because he does not want the idea (he is pushing) to be mixed up with a lot of other things that might take attention away from it.

After reporters are assembled and the television cameras are heated up, there is a statement, carefully written in a room upstairs and then brought down and read in the most solemn and sincere tones.

Then there are questions and invariably the answers are a repetition of what is in the statement, and nothing is added, because, again, the purpose is to plant in the press and on the air one single idea, and no more.

There was an example on the opening day of the Democratic convention in Los Angeles. The candidates pursuing Kennedy used this press conference device with such persistence and skill that toward nightfall a number of otherwise level-headed people began halfway believing Kennedy might be stopped.

DELEGATES began asking worried questions of each other in the elevators, and there was talk of blocs of votes leaving Kennedy.

Of course it was false, but the press conference device here described did indeed have some effect. Had the race been closer, had Kennedy not been as strong as he was, it might have worked.

Conventions are hazardous enough with the hotel elevators, long hours and an uncertain diet. Here is another hazard, perhaps more serious, that I believe needs to be watched.

College Figure Taken

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Rev. J. Eugene Gallery, S. J., 61, from 1947 to 1953 president of Scranton (Pa.) University, died Thursday of cancer.

DiSalle Stays Killer's Death For 2 Months

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—A convicted Cleveland slayer who says he would rather die than serve a life sentence has 60 more days before his wishes may be carried out.

Joseph L. Cosby, 23, scheduled to die tonight in Ohio Penitentiary's electric chair, was given the two-month stay Thursday by Gov. Michael V. DiSalle. The governor said he granted the delay so counsel could seek evidence in the hope of saving Cosby from the chair for the Oct. 10, 1958, holdup slaying of Raymond Mack, a Cleveland shoe store manager.

DiSalle also heard pleas from attorneys and relatives to spare the life of Huston Nelson, 18, scheduled for execution Aug. 5 for the holdup-shooting of Mrs. Bernice Wilson, 61, in her Cincinnati drug store Feb. 9, 1959. The governor, however, did not indicate when he would announce a decision in that case.

DiSalle's ruling in the Cosby case came after Robert Krypansky, attorney for the condemned man, met with the governor and asked more time question George Crew, Cleveland salesman, who said he saw two men flee the shoe store about the time of the killing.

Crew said he did not report the incident because he considered it unimportant.

Cosby claims he shot Mack accidentally when one of two holdup men bumped him as they fled from the store. He said the bump caused the gun he carried to discharge. Cosby claims he was a customer.

During the hearing with Nelson's relatives and attorneys, DiSalle denounced newspaper criticism about his consideration of first-degree murder cases.

"I'd like to have some of these smart editorial writers sit in on some of these hearings and see whether a man's life should be taken."

Cincinnati attorneys pleading for executive clemency for the condemned youth said Nelson obtained a gun from a 28-year-old man who also bought him liquor and gave him drugs.

Present at the hearing were Nelson's parents, Huston Nelson Sr. and Mrs. Doris Hill; his grandmother, Mrs. Mamie Nelson, who raised the youth after his parents separated; an aunt, Mrs. Inez Barns, and the Rev. Robert Reed.

BUMPER TOMATO CROP. Perfect pollination may be the answer to the unusually high number of tomatoes growing on several plants in the backyard garden of Ralph L. Waite, 247 Virginia Ave., Chester. He is pictured with one plant bearing 40 odd-sized tomatoes, considered unusual by growers. Two other plants have 42 and 38 tomatoes, respectively, growing in clusters of a dozen or more. Waite a retired railroader, said the plants appeared to have died sometime ago after they were given a dose of fertilizer but suddenly came to life and are now three to four feet high. In his hand is one of the king-sized "beefsteak" tomatoes plucked from the vine.

Hancock Dog Warden Clarifies Regulations

Sherman Williams of Lawrenceville, Hancock County dog warden, said today West Virginia law allows dogs, which have been licensed and inoculated against rabies, to run at large.

Although the owners are not required to keep the animals confined if they have complied with the law, they are responsible for any damages caused by the dogs, Williams said.

The dog warden made the statement after Chester Mayor Ray Collins announced earlier this week he planned action against those who permitted their canines to run at large, citing numerous complaints he had received of people being frightened by dogs.

Democrats Name Ryan, Ujhelyi To Head Ohio Drive

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Gerald Ryan, deputy Franklin County recorder, and Joe Ujhelyi, Democratic chairman of Lorain County, have been named co-chairmen to head the 1960 Democratic registration drive in Ohio.

State Chairman William L. Coleman, who announced the appointments Thursday, said an intensive registration campaign will be held in September.

In Cleveland, the Democrats named Emil J. Masgay and Bernard Friedman to head the Cuyahoga County drive. The move is said to be an effort to help heal the split between Gov. Michael V. DiSalle and Cuyahoga County Chairman Ray T. Miller Sr.

Masgay, county clerk, is a Miller "regular." Friedman was one of the original supporters of DiSalle in his gubernatorial campaign two years ago.

Both were to fly to Washington today to confer with Robert Kennedy, brother of presidential nominee John F. Kennedy.

Masgay and Friedman will join Ryan and Ujhelyi at the Washington meeting, along with these other registration leaders:

Marguerite Parrish, Dayton, former president of the State Federation of Democratic Women; George Wilson, Cincinnati, member of the Hamilton County Election Board; and Paul Perkins, Canton, Stark County Democratic chairman.

Youngstown and Toledo leaders will meet Robert Kennedy Wednesday in Chicago when he holds a session for western states.

Novelist Dies At 96

NEW YORK (AP) — Ethel Lillian Voynich, 96, whose 19th century novel, "The Gadfly," made her the most celebrated American author behind the Iron Curtain, died Wednesday. She received several tributes recently from the Soviet government for her book, a romantic story of a young Englishman who became a revolutionary hero in 19th century Italy fighting the Hapsburgs.

Fair Trade Hit In Ohio Ruling

CLEVELAND (AP) — Ohio's "fair trade" law, aimed at keeping up prices of name brand products, has been declared unconstitutional.

The ruling Thursday by Common Pleas Judge Eugene R. McNeill, sitting here by assignment from Van Wert County, was the first full-scale test of the new law. It went into effect Oct. 22, 1959 after another fair trade law also was declared unconstitutional a couple of years ago.

The decision was a victory for Hudson Distributors, Inc., cut-rate retailers of name brand cosmetics and drugs. The judge ruled against the Upjohn Co. and Eli Lilly & Co. in a declaratory judgment action to see if the law is legal. He also dismissed the firm's cross-petition asking that their list prices be enforced.

The decision, which probably will be appealed to the Ohio Supreme Court, may influence 31 cases now pending in state courts.

Judge McNeill ruled that the law provides no control over the manufacturer in setting the price. "The very persons who have the most personal interest in the products are granted the right to set its price," he said. Quoting from the Ohio Supreme Court decision which upset the previous law, he said:

". . . In addition, (it) delegates legislative power and discretion to private persons." The judge noted that regardless of other changes in the act, this delegation of legislative authority remains.

The new law holds that a party may remove evidence of the trademark or name and then sell the article at any price. "This is mainly a paper right," Judge McNeill said, "as the proprietor can eliminate this right by making his mark on the merchandise in such a way that it cannot be removed."

Salem Teen-Age Boys Cited For Vandalism

LISBON — Three Salem Boys, 12, 13 and 14, pleaded guilty to destruction of property at a hearing Thursday before Juvenile Judge Louis Tobin.

They upset garbage cans on porches and tore up plants in gardens.

They were placed on probation to their parents, ordered to earn $1 per week in the next 10 weeks and turn it over to the court and they must be at home each night at 9 and attend Sunday School and church each week.

The youths admitted the vandalism and the parents said they paid the householders for the damages.

The youths must also report to Cornelious Csepke, juvenile probation officer, each week until he releases them, according to Judge Tobin, who also required the trio to apologize to the homeowners.

Ohio Traffic Deaths Climb For First 5 Months Of '60

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—There was a lot of tragedy, heartache and human suffering wrapped up today in a single, white sheet of paper issued by the Ohio Department of Highway Safety.

But none of these was visible in the cold, hard statistical tables which made up the department's report on traffic accidents in Ohio for the first five months of this year.

The report listed 61,573 highway accidents, involving 111,960 drivers —causing 708 deaths and injuring 31,296 persons. In the same period last year there were 601 persons killed and 28,408 injured, in 56,545 accidents.

The death rate for the five months this year is 18 per cent above the same period last year. Mileage rates are up, of course, and probably there are more drivers this year than last—but still the rate is up. The report said the fatal accident rate per 100 million car-miles in the five months this year was 4 compared to 3.3 last year.

Of the total number of accidents, 49,850 involved collision of one motor vehicle with another, responsible for 307 of the 708 deaths. Collision of motor vehicles with pedestrians, trains, trolley buses, animal-drawn vehicles, bicycles or fixed objects, and accidents involving only one car in which it ran off the road or overturned, accounted for the other deaths.

A total of 140 pedestrians were killed in the five-month period, and 1,683 injured.

Here are some other statistics in the report:

Probably the most dangerous time for drivers is between 3 p. m. and 6 p. m. daily. Of the total accidents, 16,508 happened between these hours.

For the whole week, by far the most accidents happened on Friday and Saturday between the hours of 3 p. m. and 6 p. m.

Of the total of 118,311 vehicles of all types involved in the accidents, 104,314 were passenger cars 7,797 trucks or truck-tractors and 3,528 truck combinations.

Of all accidents, 40,349 took place in daylight and 255 of them were fatal; 20,850 took place in darkness and 349 of them were fatal. Records of times in 374 other accidents were not available.

Drivers in the 24-34 year - old bracket were involved in the most accidents—23,524.

Wheeling Boys Admit Blaze Crippling Wires

WHEELING, W. Va. (AP) — Two youngsters who went under the Ohio River Bridge to smoke have admitted causing a fire that disrupted telephone, police, fire and news wire communications over a vast area.

Fire Inspector Edgar F. Forsch said the boys, age 13 and 14, admitted they had built a tarpaper shack on one of the bridge pillars and would go there to smoke.

Last Friday the shack caught fire and the fire eventually broke cables owned by the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. and Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. along with police and fire alarm wires.

The break left 1,400 telephone customers in this area without service and AT&T reported news wire trouble from New York to San Francisco.

No charges have been placed against the boys yet.

A. The amount of radiation given off by a radium dial clock would not in itself be sufficient to cause harm. However, it adds to the total radiation we receive and in this sense it might be considered undesirable. Man cannot escape some radiation. We are constantly exposed to "background" radiation originating within and above the earth. This amount of radiation — and more — isn't harmful but there is a limit. Because the hazards of radiation are not fully known it is best to avoid unnecessary exposure. A radium dial watch or clock is a drop in the radiation bucket but why add the drop when it isn't necessary?

Ann Landers

ANSWERS YOUR PROBLEMS

Dear Ann Landers: I have a fat uncle who is also the richest one in the whole family. He owns about half the cattle in Texas and then they had to go find oil on his grazing land.

This uncle came to visit us last week. I had just finished practicing the violin and although I know I should not have done it, I left the violin on a chair. Well, this big fat uncle sat right down on the violin and smashed it to pieces.

Instead of offering to buy me a new fiddle he said, "Violins don't belong on chairs." He also made a few means cracks about the crashing sound scaring him.

I think it was mighty cheap of him not to offer to buy me a new violin. He could get me a Stradivarius and never miss the money. Am I right?—FORMER FIDDLER.

Dear Former Fiddler: Violins don't belong on chairs.

But people ought to exercise a reasonable amount of caution before sitting any place. There could be darning needles, crochet hooks, fly paper, kittens or a baby brother on one of those chairs.

This column appears in many Texas cities. Let's hope your rich uncle isn't too cheap to buy a newspaper, and that he sees this letter and takes the hint.

P.S.: It needn't be a Stradivarious, Unc — but get the kid at least as good a violin as you sat on.

Off-Beat Drummer

Dear Ann: My father was a rather famous band leader. I always had a yen for musicians.

At 18 I fell for a drummer. He was terribly handsome and I was a romantic nitwit who thought I knew it all. My dad told me Teddy was n.g. but I wouldn't listen.

Well, to make a long story short I lost control of myself and wound up pregnant. When I told Teddy he said it was a tough break for me and he had his carer to think about. He skipped town and I was left to face the music — without my musician.

A wonderful fellow I used to go with heard about my trouble and begged me to marry him. He isn't much on looks but he has wonderful character and he was crazy about me. We were married six months before the baby was born. He treats the boy as if it were his own.

Two years have passed and we are happy together although my life isn't exciting or romantic.

I got a phone call from my drummer boy yesterday. He says he hasn't been able to get me out of his mind. He's coming to town in two weeks to play a job and wants to see me and his son. He says legally the boy is his, and I have no right to keep him away.

I have no interest in seeing him but I want to know if he has a right to see his son? Please help me.—CLARISSA.

-:-

Dear Clarissa: If this heel has the nerve to call when he gets to town tell him to take his drum and beat it.

Biologically, he's the father but he has no legal rights. The man who married you is the boy's legal father.

Worldly Wise

Dear Ann: Our son who is 18, and a high school senior, is going steady with a girl 16. She's as mature physically as a 20-year-old girl and years ahead of our son in ideas. To make matters worse, her parents are very lenient with her and the girl does as she pleases.

We would die if our son got into trouble. Keeping company with such a girl always triples the danger. What can we do?—P.D.Q.

Dear P.D.Q. You can't control someone else's daughter. These days you do well to control your own.

Don't be bashful about setting limits for your son and see to it that he obeys them. If he has had good moral upbringing and is armed with the facts, you needn't worry.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of The Review enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

TV Debates Seen For Kennedy And Nixon Campaigns

NEW YORK (AP) — An unprecedented face-to-face television debate series appears likely between the Republican and Democratic presidential nominees.

At Hyannis Port, Mass., Thursday, Sen. John F. Kennedy, the Democratic nominee, quickly accepted an invitation from Robert W. Sarnoff, board chairman of the National Broadcasting Co., to appear in a "great debate" on the air.

In Chicago Vice President Richard M. Nixon's press secretary said he assumed arrangements would be worked out for such d-e bates. Herbert G. Klein said Sarnoff's wire had been received but that Nixon had not yet replied.

The Columbia Broadcasting system and the American Broadcasting Co. also expressed readiness to offer peak air time for such debates, but said federal regulations are an obstacle.

CBS news president Sig Mickelson said Section 315 of the Communications Act must be amended so as not to require equal time for splinter party opponents.

The U. S. Senate has approved such a change. Similar action is pending in the House.

Leonard H. Goldenson, president of American Broadcasting-Paramount Theaters, Inc., sent telegrams to Nixon and Kennedy outlining a proposal for the three networks to alternate in giving them prime time each week for nine weeks. He said the plan is predicated on a waiver by Congress of section 315.

Sarnoff told the candidates by telegram that the aim was to devote four programs, each an hour long, to "joint discussion of the issues." Sarnoff added that four other programs of an hour each would be scheduled for questioning of candidates by journalistic panels.

Salesman 'Subs' For Missing Miss

MANSFIELD, Ohio (AP)—Seventy-five beaming young men, bouquets in their hands, waited expectantly at the airport here Thursday for arrival of Lynda Lee Mead, Miss America of 1960.

The plane arrived, the boarding ramp was adjusted—and out stepped the lone Mansfield arrival—a traveling salesman carrying a briefcase.

Seems that Lynda Lee, as she said in a telephone call from Cleveland, had plane departure trouble and wouldn't arrive until later in the evening. She was coming to take part in the Miss Ohio Pageant finals tonight and Saturday night.

The young men were members of the Mansfield Junior Chamber of Commerce. Along with Mayor Robert Lemley, they made up the welcoming committee.

Hotel May Be Bought By Case And Reserve

CLEVELAND (AP)—Hotel Tudor Arms, built in 1926 at a cost of about two million dollars, may become a dormitory for graduate students of both Western Reserve University and Case Institute of Technology.

Neil J. Carothers, president of the University Circle Development Foundation, disclosed that negotiations to buy the 12-story hotel have been in progress a long time. Carothers said that unless the deal can be completed in time to make the hotel's accommodations available to 500 students for the fall term, the negotiations would be terminated.

Slot Machines Found In Home At Cincinnati

CINCINNATI (AP)—Charles A. Hinsch, 55, Cincinnati investment broker, faces a charge of illegal possession of two slot machines after a raid by vice squad detectives on his home. Police armed with a search warrant, confiscated the machines Thursday.

Hinsch, scheduled for a police court hearing today, readily admitted he had the machines and said he did not know possession of them was illegal under felony statutes. Conviction in the charge carries a fine of up to $5,000 and a prison term of one to five years.

Giant Rookie Pitcher Wins Third Straight

The Sports Bench

By BOB DUFFY
Sports Editor

All-Stars Coming To Town . . .

Right smack in the middle of two red-hot pennant races comes the first annual Penn-Ohio All-Star football game.

Some fans say it's too early for the pigskin to make its appearance, while others find the game providing a welcome relief to the tight baseball picutre.

We admit that the game may be rushing the season, but the East Palestine Jaycees, sponsors of the event, found it almost impossible to take a later date.

Such a decision would have resulted in competition from two other contests, the annual North-South game at Canton, coming up in two weeks, and the Ohio-West Virginia All-Star games Aug. 13 at Wheeling.

Mel Smith, chairman of the Penn-Ohio affair, has been the big push behind the mid-summer event. Mel is expecting 5,000 to 6,000 fans at Patterson Field Saturday night.

He reported that reserve seat tickets, which were sold in the various cities represented by the grid talent, have been sold out for sometime. Some tickets will be available at the gate tomorrow night, however.

If the game is a success this year, the Jaycees, barring any interference from the Ohio High School Athletic Association, are planning to move the contest to New Castle's 10,000-seat stadium next year.

—:—

THE GAME offers a perfect opportunity for college scouts to get their eyes full. While the proceeds will go toward a scholarship fund, the some 50 performers in the game also stand a good chance to be spotted for a college offer.

Western Pennsylvania and Ohio always have been hotbeds of the nation's football.

You can pick up about any college roster and find Pennsylvania and Ohio boys somewhere along the line.

Watch Ohio's Speed . . .

THINGS to watch for Saturday night: The speed of the Ohio backfield. Three of the backs were dashmen, led by Bob Mackall at quarterback, who ran the 100-yard dash last spring under 10 seconds.

At halfbacks are George Morris of East Palestine and Tom Brooks of Lisbon, Track and field fans will remember that Brooks beat both Mackall and Morris in the "100" during the county meet last May at East Palestine.

Pete Schmauch, Salem's hard-charging fullback, rounds out the Ohio backfield.

MIDLAND'S Kenny Russell impressed us last football season with his uncanny knack of throwing strikes at long distances.

In order to win the starting quarterback position with the Pennsylvania eleven, Russell had to beat out two pretty good boys in Bob Matale of New Castle and Bob Bathgate of Ellwood City.

—:—

CAMP NOTES: Only one serious injury has been recorded at the training camp. Nick Frisk, Ellwood City halfback, reinjured a shoulder and will be out for the game.

Tackle Chuck Robinson and quarterback Willis Woods, two of East Palestine's All-Tri-County League stars, were named co-captains of the Ohio squad for the game Saturday.

Pennsylvania has named Russell of Midland to captain its team.

Ohio coach Bud Bucher recieved a telegram from Gov. DiSalle at the Mt. Union camp site. The message said: "We wish you and your team the best of luck in your weekend endeavor against Pennsylvania."

The East Palestine Jaycees were attempting to have Ohio's governor present for the game.

Two last-minute additions to the Pennsylvania squad Wednesday were Rudy Krivoshia and Martin Schulte of Midland. Both are halfbacks.

—:—

We know less about Pennsylvania than the Ohio squad since the Columbiana boys are more familiar, but we like Ohio by one touchdown Saturday night.

Little Leaguer Stuck With It . . .

WHEN Mike McVay blasted a home run and circled the bases to give the East Liverpool Americans a 3-2 victory at Massillon the other night it was only the third Little League game in which young Mike had played this season.

A rained-out game and a horseback ride resulted in a broken left arm for the youngster last May.

Mike, who was to catch for Homer Laughlin during the regular campaign, went horseback riding after a Little League game was rained out one day early in the season.

He fell off the horse and suffered a broken arm. This probably would have ended the baseball season for most boys.

But Mike likes the game a little too well, so he showed up at every game his Homer Laughlin teammates played and acted as base coach and did about anything he could but play.

Finally toward the end of the season his arm healed and he was put into catch in the final regular season contest.

As a 10-year-old in 1959, Mike was an outstanding cathcer. Although he missed the regular Little League season this year, the American League coaches thought enough of his ability to add him to the All-Star squad.

Their judgment and the fact that Mike stuck with baseball although he was injured paid big dividends last Monday night when his home run put the American League All-Stars in the district finals.

Besides baseball young Mike likes horses and has been after his dad to buy him one. His dad, who is "Tuffy" McVay, a former Minor League ballplayer himself, had been able to talk young Mike out of a horse up until Monday.

After his son hit the home run blast, his dad just shook his head and told several people around him, "It looks like I'm going to buy a horse."

This 'N That In Sports . . .

WYNN HAWKINS, sent back to the minors by the Cleveland Indians, pitched his second straight victory Thursday for the Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League.

Hawkins allowed Jersey City only three hits in a 7-1 decision.

—:—

PAT MANCUSO'S successor at Leetonia High School is Ike Farrah, who was an assistant coach at Barberton last season. In addition to being head football coach, Farrah will serve as head track coach and junior high basketball coach. Thirty-two candidates applied for the Leetonia job.

—:—

VINCE PALYN, former Midland and Dayton University grid star, is working out with the Buffalo Bills of the newly formed American Football League.

—:—

PROFESSIONAL basketball will come to Canton Sept. 26. The McKinley Bulldog Booster Club is sponsoring a game between the Cincinnati Royals and Detroit Pistons at the Canton Fieldhouse.

Canton also plays host next Saturday night to the Olympic All-Stars and the Cleveland Pipers.

—:—

THE EAST LIVERPOOL High School Varsity Letterman's Club has installed a new board carrying the 1960 Potter football schedule at the intersection of W. 8th St. and Dresden Ave.

Leonard Webber, of the Coca-Cola Bottling Co., donated the land for the construction of the board. Lights were also installed to make the board visable at night.

Frisco Nails Decision In 10th Inning

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

It was rookie uprising day in the National League Thursday. Candidates for first-year honors popped up nearly everywhere.

In San Francisco, pitching sensation Juan Marichal posted his third straight spectacular performance, a seven-hitter, as the Giants defeated the Milwaukee Braves 3-2 in 10 innings.

In Los Angeles, big Frank Howard drove in six runs with a grand slam homer and a single as the Dodgers outslugged the Cincinnati Reds 8-6.

In Chicago, Pancho Herrera walloped his 15th home run and drove in two runs in Philadelphia's 3-2 decision over the Cubs.

Other first-year men who distinguished themselves were Philadelphia pitcher Dallas Green, who turned in a winning six-hitter, the Cubs' Morris Thacker, who drove in his team's only run, and Cincinnati's Gordon Coleman and Chico Cardenas, who homered in a losing cause.

Pittsburgh, enjoying a day off with St. Louis, saw its first-place lead increased to two games over Milwaukee.

Marichal, the Giants' 21-year-old right-hander, continued the brilliant pitching that marked his debut when he turned in a spectacular one-hitter against Philadelphia. His second victory was a 4-hitter against Pittsburgh.

Felipe Alou drove in the winning run in the 10th with a single off shortstop Johnny Logan's chest. The hit scored Joey Amalfitano who doubled with one out and moved to third when loser Warren Spahn walked Orlando Cepeda after purposely passing Willie Mays.

Howard, hailed as the "next Babe Ruth," hit his grand slammer in the first inning after a hit batter, a single and an error had filled the bases. The homer was his 16th of the season. Howard's single also came with the bases loaded, in the second.

Cincinnati and Los Angeles made only 12 hits between them, five of them home runs. Besides Howard, Coleman and Cardenas, Frank Robinson hit his 20th for the Reds and Chuck Essegian got his second for the Dodgers.

Bobby Del Greco and Herrera accounted for all the Phillies' runs in their victory over the Cubs.

Semi-Finals Are Set In Non-Pro Tourney

Semi-finals in the Pennsylvania Non-Pro Tournament will be held Saturday at Crucible Field in Midland with the first game at 1 p. m. finding Wampum meeting Clarence. The second game at 3:30 p. m. pits Youngwood against Quakertown. The two survivors meet Sunday at 2:30 p. m. for the championship.

Hamilton Leaves 8 Winning Seasons Behind Him At Midland; Accepts Vandergrift Post

George Hamilton, head basketball coach at Midland High School the last eight years, is leaving to take a similar position at Vandergrift, Pa. With him will go outstanding won-loss records matched by only a very few coaches in the state of Pennsylvania.

His records at Midland speak for themselves. He made the announcement of his new post Thursday.

Hamilton, who turned 42 Wednesday, has the distinction of leading Midland to five Section 8 championships in the space of eight seasons.

—:—

HIS OVERALL won-loss record is an outstanding one. It shows 151 victories against only 40 defeats for a percentage of .789.

The veteran Midland coach said "this new job is a challenge to me; the team last year at Vandergift only won four while losing 19 games."

"It will be like going back home for me," Hamilton said. He was raised in Salina, Pa., only 12 miles from Vandergrift.

"The job offers an opportunity for advancement, since a new $3,500,000 high school will be completed within two years."

Vandergrift will be taken in by the Kiski Area Joint Schools when the new high school is completed.

Officials at Vandergrift High School contacted Hamilton for the job.

Hamilton left a few parting words in the town where he made a hotbed of basketball and saw the construction of a new $587,614 gymnasium which was opened last year.

"I have enjoyed every year at Midland," Hamilton said.

"Midland is one of the better basketball towns that I have seen. And before leaving I would like to predict that Carl Anderson should be close to the all-state team next season. He is without a doubt one of the outstanding high school players in Pennsylvania."

HAMILTON had great teams at Midland. They called the 1954-55 squad the best he has ever coached. That year with such stars as Herbie Lake and Mel Evans Midland posted a 23-2 record and reached the semi-finals of the WPIAL tourney before being eliminated.

GEORGE HAMILTON
Leaves Outstanding Record.

His first Section 8 championship came in 1953-54 when his team posted a 19-5 record. Hamilton's first season at Midland in 1952 ended in an 18-4 record and the Leopards finished second in Section 8.

In 1955-56, Hamilton's team showed a 16-6 mark, followed in the 1956-57 campaign by a 12-10 record, his worst in eight years at Midland.

In 1957-58, Midland started a string of Section 8 titles. That team posted an 18-5 mark, followed the next year by a 22-5 campaign and another Section championship.

The 1959-60 team featured by Movie Smith, Gene Lake, Steve Yetso, and Anderson, all brought along under Hamilton, advanced to the semi-finals of the WPIAL before losing to Uniontown in an overtime battle.

BEFORE Hamilton came to Midland he coached at Bell Township and met with similar success there. In five years, his teams won three Sectional championships and was never worse than third in the Section.

Another record Hamilton is quite proud of was his mark of 29 consecutive victories as football coach at Bell Township.

His coaching career started in 1946 at Washington Township High School, where he suffered his only losing season as a high school coach. That team was 9-11 for the campaign, but still finished third in the Section 21 standings.

This past season Hamilton was named head coach of the Western Pennsylvania which plays an annual two-game series with Northeastern Ohio All-Star cagers.

Little League Tourney Game Resumes Tonight

Rain interferred with the District 4 Little League Title game Thursday at Myler Park, but action is scheduled to pick up tonight at 6 p. m. where it left off yesterday.

When the action resumes tonight, the American League will go into the game with a 2-0 lead after Mike McVay and Larry Radcliffe scored in the second inning.

The game will begin in the first of the third inning with one out and Tom Hansen of the National League All-Stars on third base. Hansen had singled and moved to third base on an infield out.

Len Walker was pitching for the Americans while Mike Goodballet will be toiling for the Nationals after relieving Nick Marchbanks in the second inning.

Yesterday's Stars

Batting, Frank Howard, Dodgers — the big outfielder drove in six runs with a grand slam homer and a single to lead the Dodgers to an 8-6 victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

Pitching, Jerry Barber, Orioles —The 21-year-old southpaw hurled a one hitter — Hank Bauer's sixth inning single — and shut out the Kansas City Athletics 5-0.

Chicago White Sox catcher Sherm Lollar set a personal record when he hit 22 home runs in 1959.

Paul Charges Dodger Pitchers With Beaning

By CHARLES MAHER
Associated Press Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Like Russia and the West, Cincinnati and the Los Angeles Dodgers are not at war. But they haven't exactly got a flourishing alliance going either.

Lingering hostilty came to the surface Thursday when Cincinnati general manager Gabe Paul accused the Dodger pitching staff of conducting a calculated campaign of bean-balling.

The atmosphere lacked some of the cordiality of a fraternity reunion Thursday night when the Dodgers won the rubber match of the three-game series 8-6.

Dodger reliever Larry Sherry was spiked on the shoe by Vada Pinson while covering first base in the ninth inning and Sherry said later he thought Pinson might have gone out of his way to step on him.

The other show of belligerence occurred in the fourth, when one of Roger Craig's pitches hit Redleg catcher Ed Bailey on the leg.

Craig and Bailey bellowed at each other as Bailey trotted to first. Bailey said later they were "just shooting the breeze," but it appeared at the time they might have preferred to use bullets.

The Dodgers ridiculed Paul's bean-ball accusations.

"I'm certainly not aware of any plot," said pitcher Don Drysdale, who hit Pinson with one pitch Wednesday night and put Frank Robinson on the seat of his pants with two others.

Madison Square Garden lost about $200,000, when it promoted the Gene Tunney — Tom Heeney fight in New York's Yankee Stadium in 1928.

East End Tied For 1st Place In City Loop

East End defeated Studen's, 5-2 to move into a two-way tie for first place in the City Softball League Thursday.

Gene Talbott won his sixth straight game without a defeat with a three-hit performance and faced only 24 batters. He also was the hitting star with a bases-loaded triple in the sixth inning.

Jerry Seevers, the losing hurler, gave up only five hits.

In another contest, American Vitrified was leading Patterson-Wetzel, 5-0 in the third inning when the game was called because of rain.

(Next Week's Schedule)
Wednesday

East End vs. Midland, 6 p. m.
American Vitrified vs. Studen's, 7 p. m.

Thursday

East End vs. Midland, 6 p. m.
Patterson-Wetzel vs. Studen's, 7 p.m.

Littler Leads Eastern Open By 2 Strokes

By GEORGE BOWEN

BALTIMORE (AP) — Gene Littler, a golfer with a seeming penchant for money and shy on prestige, is off and running again today in the race for the $3,500 first prize in the Eastern Open tournament.

The 30-year-old Singing Hills, Calif., pro started the second round with a two-stroke margin. Littler burst ahead Thursday by shooting a 65, seven under par, for the second straight time in the opening round of the Eastern.

It is the lowest score for the two-year-old 6,820-yard municipal course.

Although he has won only the Oklahoma City Open this year and failed to survive the qualifying cutoff for such honored events as the Masters, Littler has collected $20,211 in his last dozen tournaments. Last year, he won five of the PGA circuit and his earnings of more than $44,000 were third highest among the traveling pros.

Littler's record tying round stole the show from veteran Jackie Burke, 37, and newcomer Juan Rodriguez of Puerto Rico.

They came in with 67 a few hours before Littler steamed home. Rodriguez was a real darkhorse. It is only the fourth tourney in this country for the 116 pounder who stands less than five feet, eight inches tall.

Four others, George Bayer, Lionel Hebert, Doug Ford and Bob Goalby, were only three strokes back of Littler and par was little more than a figure of comparison.

Giant Rookie Pitcher Wins Third Straight

The Sports Bench

All-Stars Coming To Town . . .

Right smack in the middle of two red-hot pennant races comes the first annual Penn-Ohio All-Star football game.

Some fans say it's too early for the pigskin to make its appearance, while others find the game providing a welcome relief to the tight baseball picutre.

We admit that the game may be rushing the season, but the East Palestine Jaycees, sponsors of the event, found it almost impossible to take a later date.

Such a decision would have resulted in competition from two other contests, the annual North-South game at Canton, coming up in two weeks, and the Ohio-West Virginia All-Star games Aug. 13 at Wheeling.

Mel Smith, chairman of the Penn-Ohio affair, has been the big push behind the mid-summer event. Mel is expecting 5,000 to 6,000 fans at Patterson Field Saturday night.

He reported that reserve seat tickets, which were sold in the various cities represented by the grid talent, have been sold out for sometime. Some tickets will be available at the gate tomorrow night, however.

If the game is a success this year, the Jaycees, barring any interference from the Ohio High School Athletic Association, are planning to move the contest to New Castle's 10,000-seat stadium next year.

THE GAME offers a perfect opportunity for college scouts to get their eyes full. While the proceeds will go toward a scholarship fund, the some 50 performers in the game also stand a good chance to be spotted for a college offer.

Western Pennsylvania and Ohio always have been hotbeds of the nation's football.

You can pick up about any college roster and find Pennsylvania and Ohio boys somewhere along the line.

Watch Ohio's Speed . . .

THINGS to watch for Saturday night: The speed of the Ohio backfield. Three of the backs were dashmen, led by Bob Mackall at quarterback, who ran the 100-yard dash last spring under 10 seconds.

At halfbacks are George Morris of East Palestine and Tom Brooks of Lisbon, Track and field fans will remember that Brooks beat both Mackall and Morris in the "100" during the county meet last May at East Palestine.

Pete Schmauch, Salem's hard-charging fullback, rounds out the Ohio backfield.

MIDLAND'S Kenny Russell impressed us last football season with his uncanny knack of throwing strikes at long distances.

In order to win the starting quarterback position with the Pennsylvania eleven, Russell had to beat out two pretty good boys in Bob Matale of New Castle and Bob Bathgate of Ellwood City.

—:—

CAMP NOTES: Only one serious injury has been recorded at the training camp. Nick Frisk, Ellwood City halfback, reinjured a shoulder and will be out for the game.

Tackle Chuck Robinson and quarterback Willis Woods, two of East Palestine's All-Tri-County League stars, were named co-captains of the Ohio squad for the game Saturday.

Pennsylvania has named Russell of Midland to captain its team.

Ohio coach Bud Bucher recieved a telegram from Gov. DiSalle at the Mt. Union camp site. The message said: "We wish you and your team the best of luck in your weekend endeavor against Pennsylvania."

The East Palestine Jaycees were attempting to have Ohio's governor present for the game.

Two last-minute additions to the Pennsylvania squad Wednesday were Rudy Krivoshia and Martin Schulte of Midland. Both are halfbacks.

We know less about Pennsylvania than the Ohio squad since the Columbiana boys are more familiar, but we like Ohio by one touchdown Saturday night.

Little Leaguer Stuck With It . . .

WHEN Mike McVay blasted a home run and circled the bases to give the East Liverpool Americans a 3-2 victory at Massillon the other night it was only the third Little League game in which young Mike had played this season.

A rained-out game and a horseback ride resulted in a broken left arm for the youngster last May.

Mike, who was to catch for Homer Laughlin during the regular campaign, went horseback riding after a Little League game was rained out one day early in the season.

He fell off the horse and suffered a broken arm. This probably would have ended the baseball season for most boys.

But Mike likes the game a little too well, so he showed up at every game his Homer Laughlin teammates played and acted as base coach and did about anything he could but play.

Finally toward the end of the season his arm healed and he was put into catch in the final regular season contest.

As a 10-year-old in 1959, Mike was an outstanding cathcer. Although he missed the regular Little League season this year, the American League coaches thought enough of his ability to add him to the All-Star squad.

Their judgment and the fact that Mike stuck with baseball although he was injured paid big dividends last Monday night when his home run put the American League All-Stars in the district finals.

Besides baseball young Mike likes horses and has been after his dad to buy him one. His dad, who is "Tuffy" McVay, a former Minor League ballplayer himself, had been able to talk young Mike out of a horse up until Monday.

After his son hit the home run blast, his dad just shook his head and told several people around him, "It looks like I'm going to buy a horse."

This 'N That In Sports . . .

WYNN HAWKINS, sent back to the minors by the Cleveland Indians, pitched his second straight victory Thursday for the Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League.

Hawkins allowed Jersey City only three hits in a 7-1 decision.

PAT MANCUSO'S successor at Leetonia High School is Ike Farrah, who was an assistant coach at Barberton last season. In addition to being head football coach, Farrah will serve as head track coach and junior high basketball coach. Thirty-two candidates applied for the Leetonia job.

—:—

VINCE PALYN, former Midland and Dayton University grid star, is working out with the Buffalo Bills of the newly formed American Football League.

—:—

PROFESSIONAL basketball will come to Canton Sept. 26. The McKinley Bulldog Booster Club is sponsoring a game between the Cincinnati Royals and Detroit Pistons at the Canton Fieldhouse.

Canton also plays host next Saturday night to the Olympic All-Stars and the Cleveland Pipers.

THE EAST LIVERPOOL High School Varsity Letterman's Club has installed a new board carrying the 1960 Potter football schedule at the intersection of W. 8th St. and Dresden Ave.

Leonard Webber, of the Coca-Cola Bottling Co., donated the land for the construction of the board. Lights were also installed to make the board visable at night.

Frisco Nails Decision In 10th Inning

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

It was rookie uprising day in the National League Thursday. Candidates for first-year honors popped up nearly everywhere.

In San Francisco, pitching sensation Juan Marichal posted his third straight spectacular performance, a seven-hitter, as the Giants defeated the Milwaukee Braves 3-2 in 10 innings.

In Los Angeles, big Frank Howard drove in six runs with a grand slam homer and a single as the Dodgers outslugged the Cincinnati Reds 8-6.

In Chicago, Pancho Herrera walloped his 15th home run and drove in two runs in Philadelphia's 3-2 decision over the Cubs.

Other first-year men who distinguished themselves were Philadelphia pitcher Dallas Green, who turned in a winning six-hitter, the Cubs' Morris Thacker, who drove in his team's only run, and Cincinnati's Gordon Coleman and Chico Cardenas, who homered in a losing cause.

Pittsburgh, enjoying a day off with St. Louis, saw its first-place lead increased to two games over Milwaukee.

Marichal, the Giants' 21-year-old right-hander, continued the brilliant pitching that marked his debut when he turned in a spectacular one-hitter against Philadelphia. His second victory was a 4-hitter against Pittsburgh.

Felipe Alou drove in the winning run in the 10th with a single off shortstop Johnny Logan's chest. The hit scored Joey Amalfitano who doubled with one out and moved to third when loser Warren Spahn walked Orlando Cepeda after purposely passing Willie Mays.

Howard, hailed as the "next Babe Ruth," hit his grand slammer in the first inning after a hit batter, a single and an error had filled the bases. The homer was his 16th of the season. Howard's single also came with the bases loaded, in the second.

Cincinnati and Los Angeles made only 12 hits between them, five of them home runs. Besides Howard, Coleman and Cardenas, Frank Robinson hit his 20th for the Reds and Chuck Essegian got his second for the Dodgers.

Bobby Del Greco and Herrera accounted for all the Phillies' runs in their victory over the Cubs.

Semi-Finals Are Set In Non-Pro Tourney

Semi-finals in the Pennsylvania Non-Pro Tournament will be held Saturday at Crucible Field in Midland with the first game at 1 p. m. finding Wampum meeting Clarence. The second game at 3:30 p. m. pits Youngwood against Quakertown. The two survivors meet Sunday at 2:30 p. m. for the championship.

Hamilton Leaves 8 Winning Seasons Behind Him At Midland; Accepts Vandergrift Post

George Hamilton, head basketball coach at Midland High School the last eight years, is leaving to take a similar position at Vandergrift, Pa. With him will go outstanding won-loss records matched by only a very few coaches in the state of Pennsylvania.

His records at Midland speak for themselves. He made the announcement of his new post Thursday.

Hamilton, who turned 42 Wednesday, has the distinction of leading Midland to five Section 8 championships in the space of eight seasons.

—:—

HIS OVERALL won-loss record is an outstanding one. It shows 151 victories against only 40 defeats for a percentage of .789.

The veteran Midland coach said "this new job is a challenge to me; the team last year at Vandergift only won four while losing 19 games."

"It will be like going back home for me," Hamilton said. He was raised in Salina, Pa., only 12 miles from Vandergrift.

"The job offers an opportunity for advancement, since a new $3,500,000 high school will be completed within two years."

Vandergrift will be taken in by the Kiski Area Joint Schools when the new high school is completed.

Officials at Vandergrift High School contacted Hamilton for the job.

Hamilton left a few parting words in the town where he made a hotbed of basketball and saw the construction of a new $587,614 gymnasium which was opened last year.

"I have enjoyed every year at Midland," Hamilton said.

"Midland is one of the better basketball towns that I have seen. And before leaving I would like to predict that Carl Anderson should be close to the all-state team next season. He is without a doubt one of the outstanding high school players in Pennsylvania."

—:—

HAMILTON had great teams at Midland. They called the 1954-55 squad the best he has ever coached. That year with such stars as Herbie Lake and Mel Evans Midland posted a 23-2 record and reached the semi-finals of the WPIAL tourney before being eliminated.

GEORGE HAMILTON
Leaves Outstanding Record.

His first Section 8 championship came in 1953-54 when his team posted a 19-5 record. Hamilton's first season at Midland in 1952 ended in an 18-4 record and the Leopards finished second in Section 8.

In 1955-56, Hamilton's team showed a 16-6 mark, followed in the 1956-57 campaign by a 12-10 record, his worst in eight years at Midland.

In 1957-58, Midland started a string of Section 8 titles. That team posted an 18-5 mark, followed the next year by a 22-5 campaign and another Section championship.

Last year's team went down in the books as one of the winningest clubs in Midland's history with a 23-3 record matching the 1954-55 squad.

The 1959-60 team featured by Movie Smith, Gene Lake, Steve Yetso, and Anderson, all brought along under Hamilton, advanced to the semi-finals of the WPIAL before losing to Uniontown in an overtime battle.

BEFORE Hamilton came to Midland he coached at Bell Township and met with similar success there. In five years, his teams won three Sectional championships and was never worse than third in the Section.

Another record Hamilton is quite proud of was his mark of 29 consecutive victories as football coach at Bell Township.

His coaching career started in 1946 at Washington Township High School, where he suffered his only losing season as a high school coach. That team was 9-11 for the campaign, but still finished third in the Section 21 standings.

This past season Hamilton was named head coach of the Western Pennsylvania which plays an annual two-game series with Northeastern Ohio All-Star cagers.

Paul Charges Dodger Pitchers With Beaning

By CHARLES MAHER
Associated Press Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Like Russia and the West, Cincinnati and the Los Angeles Dodgers are not at war. But they haven't exactly got a flourishing alliance going either.

Lingering hostilty came to the surface Thursday when Cincinnati general manager Gabe Paul accused the Dodger pitching staff of conducting a calculated campaign of bean-balling.

The atmosphere lacked some of the cordiality of a fraternity reunion Thursday night when the Dodgers won the rubber match of the three-game series 8-6.

Dodger reliever Larry Sherry was spiked on the shoe by Vada Pinson while covering first base in the ninth inning and Sherry said later he thought Pinson might have gone out of his way to step on him.

The other show of belligerence occurred in the fourth, when one of Roger Craig's pitches hit Redleg catcher Ed Bailey on the leg.

Craig and Bailey bellowed at each other as Bailey trotted to first. Bailey said later they were "just shooting the breeze," but it appeared at the time they might have preferred to use bullets.

The Dodgers ridiculed Paul's bean-ball accusations.

"I'm certainly not aware of any plot," said pitcher Don Drysdale, who hit Pinson with one pitch Wednesday night and put Frank Robinson on the seat of his pants with two others.

Madison Square Garden lost about $200,000, when it promoted the Gene Tunney — Tom Heeney fight in New York's Yankee Stadium in 1928.

East End Tied For 1st Place In City Loop

Jerry Seevers, the losing hurler, gave up only five hits.

In another contest, American Vitrified was leading Patterson-Wetzel, 5-0 in the third inning when the game was called because of rain.

Littler Leads Eastern Open By 2 Strokes

By GEORGE BOWEN

BALTIMORE (AP) — Gene Littler, a golfer with a seeming penchant for money and shy on prestige, is off and running again today in the race for the $3,500 first prize in the Eastern Open tournament.

Slumping Indians Extend Losing Streak To Five Straight

Twi-Night Affair Goes To New York

BALTIMORE (AP) — Eleven days ago the Cleveland Indians were fighting for first place in the American League and now they are fighting to stay out of the second division.

That sharply points up how far the Indians have fallen in that period. The New York Yankees used the Tribe as a stepping stone into first place Thursday night with a doubleheader triumph, 4-0 and 9-2, dropping Cleveland 5½ games off the pace.

The Indians now have lost five in a row, 10 of the last 12 and 15 of the past 20.

And on that sour note, the Indians open a three-game series with Baltimore tonight. They need to take three in a row to jump into third place ahead of the Orioles.

Whitey Ford and Bobby Shantz blanked Cleveland on seven hits in the opener Thursday night, only the second time this season the Indians were shut out. Jim Perry (11-5) was the victim of a New York home run barrage—by Tony Kubek, Mickey Mantle and Cletis Boyer.

In the nightcap, the Indians managed nine hits off Bob Turley and Ryne Duren, including a sixth inning home run by Marty Keough who broke a scoreless string of 21 innings by the Tribe. But by that time the Yanks had nine runs.

Singles by Rocky Bridges and Ken Aspromonte scored Cleveland's final run in the seventh frame. Barry Latman was knocked out as the Yanks tallied four runs in the first inning, highlighted by Yogi Berra's ground-rule double.

Johnny Temple was ejected in the first inning by umpire Al Smith, the second time this season the fiery infielder has gotten the thumb.

By the seventh inning of the nightcap, the Indians were fielding a team that even the most ardent fan would admit couldn't win a pennant.

Bob Hale was at first base, Ken Aspromonte at second, Mike de la Hoz at shortstop and Vic Power at third. In the outfield were Tito Francona, Jim Piersall and Keough, Red Wilson was catching.

In the three-game series with New York, the Indians matched the Yanks' 25 hits, but were outscored 19-3.

Cleveland now is only two games ahead of fifth place Washington.

Browns' Offensive Unit Is Given Passing Grade

HIRAM, Ohio (AP)—An offensive unit made up mostly of probable regulars for the 1960 season got a passing grade Thursday from Coach Paul Brown in its first brief test of the Cleveland Browns' training camp drills.

"We had only four plays, so we couldn't fool the defense," Brown said. "Taking that into consideration, we moved the ball pretty well."

About halfway through the 35-minute session of "two - handed tap," the secondary units took over and the defense reserves gave passer Len Dawson a hard time. In "two-handed tap," backs are not tackled, but line play is just as rugged as in full scale scrimmage.

Milt Plum was at quarterback on the starting offensive unit, and Brown was pleased with Plum's progress. Jim Brown was fullback, and Bobby Mitchell running halfback. Homer Floyd, Massillon rookie, filled in for Ray Renfro at flanker, sharing the job with Bob Brooks, a freshman speedster.

Rich Kreitling and Gern Nagler were at ends, Gene Hickerson and Jim Ray Smith, guards; Mike McCormick and Dick Schafrath, tackles, and John Morrow, center.

Brooks, who played no college football at San Jose State, has impressed the coaches with his speed. He and Kreitling made some good catches in Thursday's workout.

Collapsed Lung Shelves Red Sox Star For Season

By BOB HOOBING
Associated Press Sports Writer

BOSTON (AP) — Gary Geiger's collapsed lung has Boston reeling today just when the Red Sox appeared to be mending the outfield riddled by the retirement of Jackie Jensen.

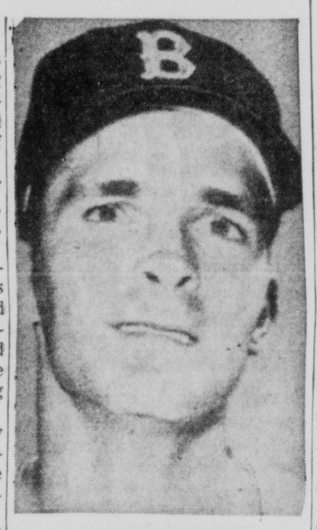

The Red Sox announced sadly Thursday that Geiger, the skinny, left-handed slugging right fielder, is lost for the season.

Dr. Ralph McCarthy, team physician hastened to add there was no evidence of tuberculosis and that when Geiger's right lung returns to normal and he has had a complete rest he should be ready for 1961 spring training camp.

Geiger underwent minor surgery when a tube was inserted to remove excess pressure from the collapsed lung and hasten its return to an inflated condition.

The 23-year-old sensation had become a local favorite and had lifted his average to .301. His ninth homer of season Wednesday was his third in as many starts.

Jensen had been the long-time right field proprietor for Boston. During his six years as a Red Sox player he knocked in more runs for the total span than any other major leaguer. The powerful right-handed slugger fell below 100 RBI only one season.

Piersall Continues Antics In New York

NEW YORK (AP) — Jimmy Piersall, Cleveland centerfielder whose antics have made him a conversation piece in recent weeks, continued his droll buffoonery as the Indians lost a twin bill to the New York Yankees Thursday night.

While Cleveland was changing pitchers in the first inning of the second game, Piersall hid behind the stone monuments in centerfield. He came out on orders from Umpire Joe Paparella and took a position, hands on knees, far out on the running track. He finally came in 100 feet to his regular position when Manager Joe Gordon motioned him to move.

In the eighth inning of the same game he amused the crowd of 39,812 by moving to about 10 feet behind second base when Yankee pitcher Ryne Duren was batting. Second baseman Ken Aspromonte made him go back to a more reasonable distance.

After the double-header, Gordon said the only thing he didn't like about Piersall's performance was his coming in behind second base when Duren was at bat.

Bold Ruler, in three seasons of racing, won 23 of 33 starts and $764,205.

Baltimore Pitcher Turns In 1-Hitter

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Jimmy Piersall may be right, after all.

When the Cleveland players threatened recently to hold a meeting to discuss what should be done about Piersall's scrapes with the umpires, the explosive outfielder remarked:

"While they're discussing me, maybe they should also discuss the hitters who have been taking so many third strikes with men on bases and the pitcher who have been throwing so many home run balls."

The Indians staged one of their most inept performances of the season Thursday night as the New York Yankees mowed them down twice, 4-0 and 9-2, to regain first place from Chicago by .003 percentage points. The White Sox lost their game and a half edge by dropping a daytime 4-2 decision in Boston.

In other American League games Baltimore blanked Kansas City 5-0 and Washington edged Detroit 6-5.

Cleveland's glaring weakness — inability to hit in the clutch—was most evident. The vanishing Indians, losers of 15 of their last 20 including their last five, put 22 runners on base in the twin bill at Yankee Stadium, 16 via hits and six via bases on balls. Only two of them scored. They left 17 on base.

Jim Perry, Cleveland's ace righthander with 11 victories, permitted only nine hits in losing his fifth dceision in the opener. Three of the Yankee hits were home runs. Mickey Mantle cracked his 26th, Tony Kubek his ninth and Cletis Boyer his eighth.

Tom Brewer spaced 10 hits and catcher Haywood Sullivan, a .165 hitter, smashed a two-run homer to give the Red Sox their first victory in their last 10 meetings with the White Sox. Billy Pierce absorbed his sixth defeat.

Jerry Barber hurled a one-hitter for Baltimore over the A's. A sixth-inning single ruined the no-hit bid of the 21-year-old southpaw who fanned 10. Two-run homers by Brooks Robinson and Ronnie Hansen and a solo smash by Gene Woodling paved the way for Bud Daley's eighth defeat. He has won 12.

Washington rallied for three runs in the ninth—as the Senators came from behind to nip the Tigers. Four walks, a sacrifice fly and an error by Frank Bolling, highlighted the winning rally.

Slumping Indians Extend Losing Streak To Five Straight

Twi-Night Affair Goes To New York

BALTIMORE (AP) — Eleven days ago the Cleveland Indians were fighting for first place in the American League and now they are fighting to stay out of the second division.

That sharply points up how far the Indians have fallen in that period. The New York Yankees used the Tribe as a stepping stone into first place Thursday night with a doubleheader triumph, 4-0 and 9-2, dropping Cleveland 5½ games off the pace.

The Indians now have lost five in a row, 10 of the last 12 and 15 of the past 20.

And on that sour note, the Indians open a three-game series with Baltimore tonight. They need to take three in a row to jump into third place ahead of the Orioles.

Whitey Ford and Bobby Shantz blanked Cleveland on seven hits in the opener Thursday night, only the second time this season the Indians were shut out. Jim Perry (11-5) was the victim of a New York home run barrage—by Tony Kubek, Mickey Mantle and Cletis Boyer.

In the nightcap, the Indians managed nine hits off Bob Turley and Ryne Duren, including a sixth inning home run by Marty Keough who broke a scoreless string of 21 innings by the Tribe. But by that time the Yanks had nine runs.

Singles by Rocky Bridges and Ken Aspromonte scored Cleveland's final run in the seventh frame. Barry Latman was knocked out as the Yanks tallied four runs in the first inning, highlighted by Yogi Berra's ground-rule double.

Johnny Temple was ejected in the first inning by umpire Al Smith, the second time this season the fiery infielder has gotten the thumb.

By the seventh inning of the nightcap, the Indians were fielding a team that even the most ardent fan would admit couldn't win a pennant.

Bob Hale was at first base, Ken Aspromonte at second, Mike de la Hoz at shortstop and Vic Power at third. In the outfield were Tito Francona, Jim Piersall and Keough, Red Wilson was catching.

In the three-game series with New York, the Indians matched the Yanks' 25 hits, but were outscored 19-3.

Cleveland now is only two games ahead of fifth place Washington.

Baltimore Pitcher Turns In 1-Hitter

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Jimmy Piersall may be right, after all.

When the Cleveland players threatened recently to hold a meeting to discuss what should be done about Piersall's scrapes with the umpires, the explosive outfielder remarked:

"While they're discussing me, maybe they should also discuss the hitters who have been taking so many third strikes with men on bases and the pitcher who have been throwing so many home run balls."

The Indians staged one of their most inept performances of the season Thursday night as the New York Yankees mowed them down twice, 4-0 and 9-2, to regain first place from Chicago by .003 percentage points. The White Sox lost their game and a half edge by dropping a daytime 4-2 decision in Boston.

In other American League games Baltimore blanked Kansas City 5-0 and Washington edged Detroit 6-5.

Cleveland's glaring weakness — inability to hit in the clutch—was most evident. The vanishing Indians, losers of 15 of their last 20 including their last five, put 22 runners on base in the twin bill at Yankee Stadium, 16 via hits and six via bases on balls. Only two of them scored. They left 17 on base.

Jim Perry, Cleveland's ace righthander with 11 victories, permitted only nine hits in losing his fifth decision in the opener. Three of the Yankee hits were home runs. Mickey Mantle cracked his 26th, Tony Kubek his ninth and Cletis Boyer his eighth.

Tom Brewer spaced 10 hits and catcher Haywood Sullivan, a .165 hitter, smashed a two-run homer to give the Red Sox their first victory in their last 10 meetings with the White Sox. Billy Pierce absorbed his sixth defeat.

Jerry Barber hurled a one-hitter for Baltimore over the A's. A sixth-inning single ruined the no-hit bid of the 21-year-old southpaw who fanned 10. Two-run homers by Brooks Robinson and Ronnie Hansen and a solo smash by Gene Woodling paved the way for Bud Daley's eighth defeat. He has won 12.

Washington rallied for three runs in the ninth—as the Senators came from behind to nip the Tigers. Four walks, a sacrifice fly and an error by Frank Bolling, highlighted the winning rally.

Browns' Offensive Unit Is Given Passing Grade

HIRAM, Ohio (AP)—An offensive unit made up mostly of probable regulars for the 1960 season got a passing grade Thursday from Coach Paul Brown in its first brief test of the Cleveland Browns' training camp drills.

"We had only four plays, so we couldn't fool the defense," Brown said. "Taking that into consideration, we moved the ball pretty well."

About halfway through the 35-minute session of "two - handed tap," the secondary units took over and the defense reserves gave passer Len Dawson a hard time. In "two-handed tap," backs are not tackled, but line play is just as rugged as in full scale scrimmage.

Milt Plum was at quarterback on the starting offensive unit, and Brown was pleased with Plum's progress. Jim Brown was fullback, and Bobby Mitchell running halfback. Homer Floyd, Massillon rookie, filled in for Ray Renfro at flanker, sharing the job with Bob Brooks, a freshman speedster.

Rich Kreitling and Gern Nagler were at ends, Gene Hickerson and Jim Ray Smith, guards; Mike McCormick and Dick Schafrath, tackles, and John Morrow, center.

Brooks, who played no college football at San Jose State, has impressed the coaches with his speed. He and Kreitling made some good catches in Thursday's workout.

Wings Score 8th Straight

The heat's on tonight in Richmond—and for good reason.

Those torrid Rochester Red Wings, with eight straight International League victories and a share of third place, move into the old Confederate capital for the start of a weekend series with the equally hot second-place Vees, who have won six in a row.

At the same time, the two coldest teams in the league—Buffalo and Columbus—will try a thawing out process (they hope) at the latter's park in Ohio.

Rochester extended its victory streak Thursday night with a 5-4 victory over Columbus, dumping the Jets to their eighth straight loss, while Richmond sent Buffalo to its sixth consecutive defeat, 3-2.

Toronto won the first game of a doubleheader from Jersey City 7-1 but the Reds came back to beat the league-leaders 8-3. Montreal shut out Miami 2-0.

Rochester's victory and Buffalo's loss left the two tied for third place.

Chief Isaac Captures Hamilton Feature Trot

HAMILTON, Ohio (AP)—Chief Isaac pulled an upset Thursday night, capturing the featured pace at Hamilton Raceway.

Rated only 13-1, the 6-year-old lagged in the middle of the pack most of the way, then put on a stretch sprint that carried past the favorite, Edgewood Frisco, by less than a length at the wire.

Chief Isaac covered the mile in 2:08 1-5 under the urging of owner-driver Bob Wehner of Lima, and returned $2840 on win bets.

Randall Park Changes Post Time To 3 P. M.

Beginning Monday, post time for the first race will be 3 p.m.

Home Grown Team

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The entire UCLA football roster shows only four players from states other than California. Two are Rock Island, Ill., brothers. They are tackle Steve Bauwens, 22, and guard Joe Bauwens, 19. Other "invaders" are Chuck Hicks, Memphis, Tenn., tackle, and Ivory Jones, a back from Houston, Tex.

Pike Like Walleyes

ELY, Minn. (AP) — Joe Boldine, fishing with friends on Picket Lake near here, noticed an unusual disturbance around their stringer of fish.

Pulling the stringer up, Boldine found a 12-pound northern pike gulping down one of his party's two-pound walleyes. A companion dropped a landing net under the northern and it was quickly added to the stringer.

Another Sellout

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The sellout of Michigan State's home football clash with Michigan makes it the 13th straight year that a capacity crowd will see the two rivals meet. They play on Oct. 1.

Tractor Kills Farmer

COSHOCTON, Ohio (AP)—A Coshocton County farmer, Francis Emig, 50, was killed Thursday when crushed under his tractor which had rolled over. Emig's farm is about three miles east of here.

Woman Keeps Pitching Despite Baking Woes

GASTONIA, N. C. (AP) — Even beauty contest winners have their troubles.

Mrs. North Carolina—Mrs. Nan Leaptrott, a minister's wife — explained her woes of cake baking in the national contest to the Lions Club here.

The pan she was given had a hole in it and the cake batter ran through and burned.

After transferring the batter to another pan, she didn't have time to let it bake.

After she pulled out what cake she had and arranged it on a platter, another contestant brushed it and made it crumble.

"In spite of all this," she says, "I put a lot of icing on it and covered up the bad spots."

She placed third in cake judging.

Angler Nets Mermaid, But Tosses Her Back

MADISON, Conn. (AP) — Fisherman George M. Smith caught a mermaid the other day.

He says he and a friend were casting into Long Island Sound from shore when Smith got a big strike.

He reeled in a female skin diver, who had swum out of range of her diver warning flag. The line had wound around her waist.

Smith let her go. Wrong species.

Adcock Foils Plan

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Maybe Gene Mauch forgot about Milwaukee Joe Adcock's home run over the scoreboard in Connie Mack Stadium last spring. In July when the Braves came here they swept a three-game series. With first base open, Mauch ordered Chris Short to walk Hank Aaron. On the first pitch Adcock blasted a home run with the bases loaded. Adcock is fourth among active players in grand slam home runs.

Kaline Gets Hit Sign

DETROIT (AP) — When Al Kaline was hitting .243 he had Manager Jimmie Dykes on his side. "I can help him only one way," said the Detroit manager. "That is, to give him the hit sign whenever he has an edge on the pitcher. That way he'll get a chance to swing at some fat pitches. He never has been under .250 for half a season in his life."

Kaline has a .311 career average.

Alaska has at least 34 active volcanoes.

DeFina Defeats Barth In Tennis Elimination

CINCINNATI (AP)—Top seeded Stephanie DeFina has coolly hammered her way to the singles semi-finals at the national girls' tennis tournament, using a combination of skill and shrewdness.

The Hollywood, Fla., girl eliminated the last unseeded singles entrant, Patty Barth of San Diego, 6-3, 6-0, in Thursday's quarterfinals of this tourney for girls age 15 and under.

Coast Guard Auxiliary To Make River Cruise

Plans have been made to sponsor an overnight cruise to Warwood for members of the Coast Guard auxiliary and their friends.

The cruise will get underway Aug. 13 at 8 a. m. from the flotilla headquarters at the East Liverpool Yacht Club. They will stay overnight at Warwood and return Aug. 14.

Plans also were discussed for projects of auxiliary members this winter for promoting safe boating next year. William Keim, commander, presided.

Perfect Record

OCEANPORT, N. J. (AP) — When Eddie Arcaro led First Landing to victory in the $112,000 Monmouth Handicap it marked the jockey's fourth victory in as many efforts in the event. Arcaro won with Nashua in 1956, with Dedicate in 1957 and with Bold Ruler in 1958. Sword Dancer, with Willie Shoemaker riding, won the Monmouth in 1959.

Chief Isaac Captures Hamilton Feature Trot

HAMILTON, Ohio (AP)—Chief Isaac pulled an upset Thursday night, capturing the featured pace at Hamilton Raceway.

Rated only 13-1, the 6-year-old lagged in the middle of the pack most of the way, then put on a stretch sprint that carried past the favorite, Edgewood Frisco, by less than a length at the wire.

Chief Isaac covered the mile in 2:08 1-5 under the urging of owner-driver Bob Wehner of Lima, and returned $2840 on win bets.

Randall Park Changes Post Time To 3 P. M.

Beginning Monday, post time for the first race will be 3 p.m.

Home Grown Team

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The entire UCLA football roster shows only four players from states other than California. Two are Rock Island, Ill., brothers. They are tackle Steve Bauwens, 22, and guard Joe Bauwens, 19. Other "invaders" are Chuck Hicks, Memphis, Tenn., tackle, and Ivory Jones, a back from Houston, Tex.

Pike Like Walleyes

ELY, Minn. (AP) — Joe Boldine, fishing with friends on Picket Lake near here, noticed an unusual disturbance around their stringer of fish.

Pulling the stringer up, Boldine found a 12-pound northern pike gulping down one of his party's two-pound walleyes. A companion dropped a landing net under the northern and it was quickly added to the stringer.

Another Sellout

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The sellout of Michigan State's home football clash with Michigan makes it the 13th straight year that a capacity crowd will see the two rivals meet. They play on Oct. 1.

Tractor Kills Farmer

COSHOCTON, Ohio (AP)—A Coshocton County farmer, Francis Emig, 50, was killed Thursday when crushed under his tractor which had rolled over. Emig's farm is about three miles east of here.

Woman Keeps Pitching Despite Baking Woes

GASTONIA, N. C. (AP) — Even beauty contest winners have their troubles.

Mrs. North Carolina—Mrs. Nan Leaptrott, a minister's wife — explained her woes of cake baking in the national contest to the Lions Club here.

The pan she was given had a hole in it and the cake batter ran through and burned.

After transferring the batter to another pan, she didn't have time to let it bake.

After she pulled out what cake she had and arranged it on a platter, another contestant brushed it and made it crumble.

"In spite of all this," she says, "I put a lot of icing on it and covered up the bad spots."

She placed third in cake judging.

Angler Nets Mermaid, But Tosses Her Back

MADISON, Conn. (AP) — Fisherman George M. Smith caught a mermaid the other day.

He says he and a friend were casting into Long Island Sound from shore when Smith got a big strike.

He reeled in a female skin diver, who had swum out of range of her diver warning flag. The line had wound around her waist.

Smith let her go. Wrong species.

Adcock Foils Plan

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Maybe Gene Mauch forgot about Milwaukee Joe Adcock's home run over the scoreboard in Connie Mack Stadium last spring. In July when the Braves came here they swept a three-game series. With first base open, Mauch ordered Chris Short to walk Hank Aaron. On the first pitch Adcock blasted a home run with the bases loaded. Adcock is fourth among active players in grand slam home runs.

Kaline Gets Hit Sign

DETROIT (AP) — When Al Kaline was hitting .243 he had Manager Jimmie Dykes on his side. "I can help him only one way," said the Detroit manager. "That is, to give him the hit sign whenever he has an edge on the pitcher. That way he'll get a chance to swing at some fat pitches. He never has been under .250 for half a season in his life."

Kaline has a .311 career average.

Alaska has at least 34 active volcanoes.

DeFina Defeats Barth In Tennis Elimination

CINCINNATI (AP)—Top seeded Stephanie DeFina has coolly hammered her way to the singles semi-finals at the national girls' tennis tournament, using a combination of skill and shrewdness.

The Hollywood, Fla., girl eliminated the last unseeded singles entrant, Patty Barth of San Diego, 6-3, 6-0, in Thursday's quarterfinals of this tourney for girls age 15 and under.

Coast Guard Auxiliary To Make River Cruise

The cruise will get underway Aug. 13 at 8 a. m. from the flotilla headquarters at the East Liverpool Yacht Club. They will stay overnight at Warwood and return Aug. 14.

Plans also were discussed for projects of auxiliary members this winter for promoting safe boating next year. William Keim, commander, presided.

Perfect Record

OCEANPORT, N. J. (AP) — When Eddie Arcaro led First Landing to victory in the $112,000 Monmouth Handicap it marked the jockey's fourth victory in as many efforts in the event. Arcaro won with Nashua in 1956, with Dedicate in 1957 and with Bold Ruler in 1958. Sword Dancer, with Willie Shoemaker riding, won the Monmouth in 1959.

Cave-In Kills Plumber

CINCINNATI (AP)—Oscar Paul Needels, 24, a plumber from nearby Amelia, was crushed to death Thursday when a sewer pipe ditch caved in atop him in suburban Roselawn.

Not As Ike's Aide

Nixon Now Speaks 'On His Own'

(In the following story, Vice President Richard M. Nixon gives his own preview of the presidential campaign and some glimpses of what his administration may be like if he wins. Ernest B. Vaccaro of The Associated Press Senate staff got the vice president's consent to a leisurely interview before the convention, provided the story would be used only after a Nixon nomination.)

By ERNEST B. VACCARO

WASHINGTON (AP)—Beginning today, Richard M. Nixon speaks as the leader of the Republican party, expressing "my own views rather than the (Eisenhower) administration position."

The vice president and Republican presidential nominee used those words in a pre-convention interview.

He said nomination would be a mandate to assume the party leadership and enunciate Nixon's, as distinguished from President Eisenhower's policies in "the most intensive campaign anyone ever undertook in my lifetime."

Nixon said he will not be critical of the past—"I am proud of my association with the Eisenhower administration and its record of accomplishments."

But, he went on, "I will be stating my own views. I will be talking of the new administration and looking to the future."

In a wide-ranging discussion, Nixon paid his respects to the political prowess of his Democratic opponent, Sen. John F. Kennedy, and said he expects his own drive for the presidency to be a "hard, uphill fight."

He said the election will be one of the closest in history and the outcome may depend on events neither he nor Kennedy can control.

"What happens at home on the economic front, and developments abroad as they effect our hopes for peace, could have a greater impact on the outcome than what the candidates do," Nixon said.

Nixon will spell out his "policies for the 60s" in day-and-night campaigning in most of the 50 states.

He reserved for the campaign the detailed steps he has in mind on the farm, foreign policy and economic fronts, and the extent to which they might depart from or build on the Eisenhower programs.

But he was willing to share a few glimpses beyond the campaign at what a Nixon administration might be like.

The 47-year-old vice president, who has exercised unprecedented responsibility in that post, would assign even more duties to his own vice president, he said, and seek to raise even more the stature of the office.

Nixon, the intense party man, insisted he wouldn't hesitate to pick a Democrat for a key Defense or State Department post.

During the interview, Nixon was calm and relaxed. He was solemn as he spoke of the burdens of the presidency and of his hopes.

"I have never said that I am the man for the presidency," he said, earnestly. "The election will determine that. That is the way it works out under our system of government. I am going to present my case to the people, to as many of them as I can reach.

"My reading of history convinces me they have made few mistakes in choosing their presidents."

Of one thing he is sure — he would not have been available for the vice presidency if the presidential nomination had gone to New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, who decided against opposing Nixon in the presidential preference primaries.

"I think that eight years in the vice presidency is long enough and it is a good rule to change," Nixon said.

Whether he could have defeated Rockefeller in a primary fight, Nixon didn't profess to know. But he endorsed the primary system Kennedy used so effectively.

Nixon spoke realistically of the Democrats' nationwide advantage in voting registration and of the geographical appeal of their ticket, matching New Englander Kennedy with Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas.

"I'm going to campaign in the South as extensively as time will permit," he added. "All-in-all, I intend to visit more states than either presidential candidate covered in 1952 or 1956."

Did he think the Kennedy-Johnson ticket is the strongest the Democrats could have nominated?

"They thought so," Nixon said, "and I have great respect for Sen. Kennedy's political judgment."

Nixon thinks he is stronger in the Midwest, Kennedy stronger in New England.

"But the whole country will be a battleground," Nixon added.
